Gov. Casey Opens Farm Show, Announces Improvements

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Gov. Robert P. Casey opened the 74th annual Pennsylvania Farm Show last Sunday, and announced more than $3.7 million in funding for improvements to the Farm Show Complex.

"This year's Farm Show is dedicated to the theme of 'Good Food for Our Families,'" Gov. Casey said. "The number of farming families and, most especially, the children of those families who are here means that the future of farming in Pennsylvania will be in good hands.

"And as agriculture moves ahead into the 1990s, it's time that we made the Farm Show Complex fit for the next decade."

Gov. Casey said nearly $2.7 million of the renovation funding will be used to provide the new roof for the Farm Show Complex, located on approximately 80 acres in the city. The complex has 450,000 square feet of exhibition area, with a large arena for showing livestock and other events.

Gov. Casey also released $715,000 for heating system improvements in the large arena. The project will convert the present steam heat to a hot water system.

The governor also released $350,000 to replace the lighting system of the Farm Show Complex. The project will provide increased levels and uniformity of lighting throughout the complex. It will also include the use of energy efficient, long-life lights.

Gov. Casey said the projects will be done simultaneously to increase efficiency of the construction.

The governor, during a tour of the exposition, stopped to sample a famous Farm Show baked potato and looked at various farm machinery.

The governor and Mrs. Ellen Casey joined Agriculture Secretary Boyd E. Wolff and Mrs. Margaret Wolff for the traditional horse-drawn carriage ride into the large arena for the show's opening ceremonies.

Dairymen Honor Keefer, Moore And Hand

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.)—The 119th annual meeting and banquet of the Pennsylvania Dairymen's Assn., was held Tuesday evening at the Sheraton Harrisburg East. Three persons were honored for service to the dairy industry. They are Earl Keefer, Millersburg, who received the Charles E. Cowan Award; H. Lewis Moore, Professor of Ag Economics at Penn State, who received the 1990 Extension Award and Dr. Paul E. Hand, general manager of Atlantic Dairy Cooperative.

The Charles Cowan Award was established in memory of a man who was a longtime secretary and a leader of the PA Dairymen's Association. It recognizes dairy farmers who have made major contributions to the state's largest agricultural industry.

Keefer farms 300 acres and his Sycamore Meade herd of Ayrshires is well known to area dairymen and to Ayrshire breeders

Three-Time Winner Shows Grand Champion Steer Again

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — It was just like old times for 19-year-old Mike Messick of Middletown on Thursday. For the fourth time in five years he paraded a steer out that became grand champion of the Farm Show junior steer competition. Messick and his steers earned the title in 1986, '87, and '88, and he may have won last year had he brought a steer to show.

Judge Scott Schaake, from the University of Kentucky, commended Messick's heavyweight steer, Simon, for having good muscling, being sound in structure, and having the finished look that steers going to market should have.

Simon is representative of the animals bred and raised on Mes-

Mike Messick, right, of Middletown showed yet another Farm Show grand champion Farm Show steer. This year it was 1,285-pound Simon, a Chinanina-Angus, that won the title. Holding the banner is Boyd Wolff, Secretary of Agriculture.

Delmarva Broiler Fryer

Jan. 10, 1990

Movement of ready-to-cook whole fryers was generally fair today but about as expected. Supplies were in good balance with buyer interests. Less than trucklot asking prices were unchanged to higher at 51-66 cents. Live supplies continued short of needs. Average live weights ranged light to desirable. The processing schedules were moderately heavy. Today's trade sentiment was fully steady to firm. In the parts complex, supplies of wings were at least adequate, breasts items were in close balance, and and dark meat items were tight with some interest for current deliveries going unfilled.

NY & Phila. Frozen Eggs

Jan. 9, 1990

The market tone was unsettled and cautious. Trading was spotty as dealers continued to work from a hand to mouth basis. Offerings of raw materials increased but breakers were selective and also worked close and generally bought on an as needed basis. Floor stocks were limited but usually sufficient to cover current needs.

N.E. Chicken Parts

Jan. 10, 1990

Trucklot buying interest was mixed and irregular. Supplies of breasts, both skinless-boneless and whole were in close balance and generally easy to place. Leg quarters were adequate to short as heavy retail ad activity at 39 to 59 cents kept most supplies clearing. Legs were only about adequate as traders concentrated on filling the call for leg quarters. Wings continued adequate to fully adequate at unchanged prices.

National Egg Market

Jan. 10, 1990

The market tone continued barely steady to weak. Cartoned egg movement was spotty with occasional retail promotional activity noted in an attempt to stimulate trading. Supplies were mostly adequate to fully adequate and in some instances building to uncomfortable levels. Breakers were working cautiously and selective in their purchases.

Eastern PA & NJ Poultry

Jan. 10, 1990

Prices were unchanged to slightly higher. Demand was irregular as traders from outside the area were trying to purchase product. Availability was about adequate for needs. Undertone unsettled.

Take Your Seat, The Performance Is About To Begin.

You'll applaud the performance of Funk's G-Hybrids like G-4543, G-4626 and G-4446 when the curtain falls at harvest time.

A top choice for shelled grain or ear corn in 110 to 120-day maturity areas, G-4543 produces maximum yields even at lower populations. In Delaware hybrid field corn trials, it topped the field with 148.4 bu./A.

G-4626 has it all in a 115 to 120-day maturity hybrid—fast dry-down, outstanding stay-green, superior standability, excellent plant health and exceptional yields. In Delaware trials, G-4626 produced yields up to 200.9 bu./A.

G-4446 delivers superior late season standability, excellent grain quality and high test weights. A multi-purpose, widely adapted hybrid, G-4446 produced a state record 252.4 bu./A. in the 1986 Pa. Five-Acre Corn Club competition.

Get your ticket to superior performance by contacting your local Hoffman sales representative or our Landisville office. Call toll free 1-800-233-0137. In PA: 1-800-732-0456.

OPINION

Family Food

If you attended the 74th Pennsylvania Farm Show this week, you already know we saw some new innovations that helped show the state's leading industry to the world. Maybe the most notable addition on the show schedule was the selection of five supreme champions.

Last year, the champions in the dairy breeds were brought together to select the supreme champion of the show. This year all the other livestock catagories had the same opportunity. Beef cattle, sheep, swine and horses all crowned the best entry from all the breeds. This gave the show participants the opportunity to focus more clearly on each livestock category.

Entries were up for this show too. Fifty two hundred animals were entered in the competition, a significant increase over the 4,338 animal entries last year.

Record premiums totalling $190,000 also offered exhibitors additional incentives to show their agricultural products and livestock. That's a 10 percent increase over last year.

Of course, many traditional events happened too. It snowed. Exhibitors of farm equipment and supplies again bought all the space available and showcased a who's who in agribusiness.

No question about it, if you attended the farm show in Harrisburg this week, you know Pennsylvania Agriculture provides good food for our families.

NOW IS THE TIME

By Jay Irwin
Lancaster County Agriculture Age

To Be Aware Of Child Labor Laws

If you have boys or girls between the ages of 14 and 16 that plan to operate a farm tractor or machinery on a farm, other than your own farm, be sure they have the proper certificate. Under the child labor regulations, the law requires that those boys or girls between 14 and 16 years of age, be certified and carry a certification card before they are permitted to operate hazardous equipment. Some equipment listed under the law as hazardous are: a tractor with over 20 PTO horsepower, corn picker, hay baler, feed grinder, fork lift and many more. Again, on your own farm your children can operate any equipment that you feel is safe for them.

The Certification process in most cases is through the Vocational Agricultural Department in the schools or through the 4-H Tractor Clubs. Contact either for more information.

To Attend Winter Meetings

This is the time of year that a lot of educational meetings are held, and they're held during this season of year for a good reason -- you have more time to attend meetings. During the spring, the summer and into the fall, there's just too much field work that must be done. Take the time to become acquainted with the meetings of interest to you and your operation. Some meetings are designed to reach certain production groups such as Dairy Days, Livestock Day, Crops and Soils Day and Poultry Day, but others are programmed to reach all agribusiness people like the Financial Management, Estate Planning and Farm Transfer Arrangement meetings.

Also, many agri-business and lending institutions conduct meetings to keep you abreast of the changes in their organizations. We urge you to mark your calendar as these meetings are announced, and attend as many as possible.

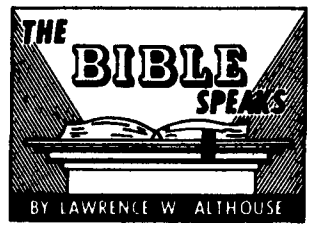
To Preserve The Topsoil

The spring of the year is an excellent time to develop some soil conservation practices on the land. Contour strips, slit tillage, terraces and diversion ditches can all be established before the 1990 crops are planted. These various methods of controlling water will not only prevent soil losses but will help hold more water on the higher slopes and fields. Good topsoil is a precious natural resource, and every land owner should make an effort to keep it from eroding. Farmers that are growing continuous corn should be very careful to keep their soil from washing away. In these cases terraces and contour strips can be established to help slow down the loss of both water and soil. Addition of extra organic matter in the form of crop residues and green cover crops will help keep the soil loose with a higher water holding capacity.

To Use The Farmer's Tax Guide

I have to mention it, yes it is Income Tax reporting time again. For farmers this becomes quite complicated with the many changes in the regulations.

The Farmer's Tax Guide is published by the Internal Revenue Service and is a real help to farmers and others who file for agricultural concerns. We have a supply in our office, as do other extension offices. They are also available from the Internal Revenue Service. Most farmers have their taxes filed by a tax practitioner, but you will find the tax guide very helpful in preparing your materials for the tax person. The filing date of March 1 for farmers rolls around rather quickly.



STOMACH ALIVE; SOUL EXTINCT

January 14, 1990

Background Scripture:
John 6.
Devotional Reading:
John 6: 31-40.

Last week my wife and I were invited to dinner in a very fine restaurant. At the end of the meal, I happened to glance at the check and was shocked to find that dinner for just the two of us had totaled $210! I couldn't help but remember the years of the Great Depression of the 1930's when our family was glad to have even the simplest of meals, I also remembered times during my college days when I couldn't afford more than one meal per day.

The food which we eat today is generally much fancier, more expensive, and even sometimes exotic in comparison with the simple fare of my childhood and youth. Sometime when you're in a supermarket, just ask yourself how many of the products on the shelves today would have been there 50 years ago. Still, with all of this today are we any more satisfied with what we eat than we were? I think not.

ALWAYS HUNGRY

In many respects we are as "hungry" today as we were in much less affluent times. The "hunger" may be for food, fast cars, drugs and alcohol, power, or sex. Our society seems obsessed with satisfying our ravenous hungers that, unfortunately, seem never to be satisfied. These hungers are like bottomless pits that take everything we offer and still want more and more. Someone has said that the epithet for our generation will be: "Stomachs alive; souls extinct."

So, we live in the most abundant material culture the human race has ever known, but we are still hungry! And worst of all, we don't even know what we're hungry for. As soon as we get enough of anything, we realize that that is not what we wanted in the first place. No matter how much we may gorge ourselves with material things, we find that the emptiness inside ourselves still prevails.

TO FILL THE EMPTINESS

Life in Jesus' day was so much more simple and basic. Still, the problem was much the same: people kept looking for something or someone to fill their emptiness. So, when, by the Sea of Galilee, Jesus miraculously multiplied the loaves and fishes, many looked to him as God's messenger. But the feeding of the five thousand was basically symbolic of a different kind of hunger which Jesus alone can satisfy.

Only Jesus can satisfy all the appetites which drive our society. "I am the bread of life," he proclaimed; "he who comes to me shall not hunger, and he who believes in me shall never thirst" (6:36). All other sustenance is but fleeting in its power to sustain us. This was even true of the manna which Moses gave the people in the wilderness. "Your fathers ate the manna in the wilderness and they died" (6:49). It sustained them for a time, but it did not bring them eternal life. So, he warns: "Do not labor for the food which perishes, but for the food which endures to eternal life" (6:27).

Most of our appetites are attempts to fill a vague and undefined void within us. But this emptiness can be filled and satisfied only by Jesus Christ, who came, not only to sustain us in time of need, but also to preserve us to eternal life. So, may our response be the same as theirs: "Lord, give us this bread always" (6:34).

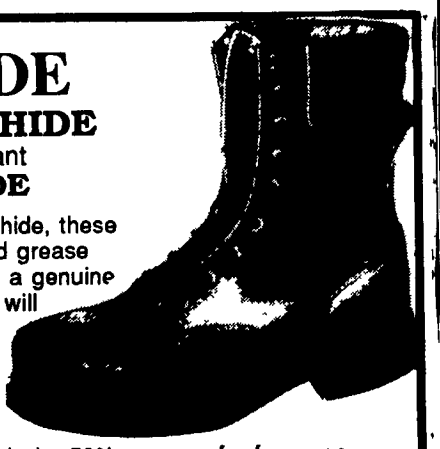
HORSEHIDE
GENUINE HORSEHIDE
Barnyard Acid Resistant
AMERICAN MADE



Made of tough, long wearing horsehide, these shoes stand manure, silage, oil and grease better than cowhide. Shoes feature a genuine Goodyear welt, nitro cork sole that will not track, steel shank, padded collar, cushion insole and arch support. Ideal for barn use. Sizes 7-13 including ½ sizes. 1st quality. Our experience shows that horsehide outlasts good cowhide by 50% or more for farm use.

Berks County Looks For Easement Applications

BY VAL VAN TASSEL
Berks Co. Correspondent

Leesport (Berks Co.) — The Berks County Agricultural Land Preservation Board is looking for more land owners interested in selling their conservation easements. According to land preservation specialist Bernard Riley, farmers still have plenty of opportunity to have their easements purchased by the board.

"We had seven applications in our first round and we are working to process them now. The next round of applications must be in my office by January 31."

There is still plenty of money left to purchase developmental rights on appropriate pieces of property. "We have nearly three million dollars available for purchasing easements this year. Either we spend it this year or we lose it," Riley explained.

Riley and Extension Agent Clyde Myers explained the application process at a recent public meeting. "The process is a little complicated, but Bernie is available to help landowners fill out their applications," Myers stated.

Actually the preliminary application due on the 31st could be filled out while standing at the counter of the cooperative extension office. The only information that may give farmers difficulty involves agriculture security areas "The primary criteria to be considered for purchase of conservation easements is being in an officially recorded agricultural security area," Riley stated.

There are 16 officially recorded ag security areas in Berks County including Bethel, Colebrookdale, Douglas, Greenwich, Jefferson, Longswamp, Maidencreek, Maxatawny, Oley, Penn Richmond, Tulpehocken, Upper Bern, Washington, Heidelburg, and Windsor. "There are five other areas that have been approved by the township supervisor but haven't been officially recorded including Perry, Hereford Amity, Tilden and Upper Tulpehocken with close to 13,000 acres involved in these areas," Riley added. There is over 48,000 acres already in ag security areas in Berks County Riley stressed that while a farmer's township may have an ag security area the farmer must be signed up in the area and it must be officially recorded in order to be considered for the program

Riley will be available to help farmers with the second part of the application, the Farmland Evaluation and Site Assessment. The FLESA will take approximately an hour and a half for the land owner to complete with Riley's help. "Much of the application is work I have to do and the farmer doesn't need to be present," Riley explained

According to application the Land Evaluation portion is based on the soil, survey of Berks County USDA Soil Conservation service, which was completed in September 6, 1970. The score on this portion of the application is based on the soils corn producing capacity.

The site assessment involves 19 factors related to the value of the farm for preservation. It evaluates the chances that the land is ripe for development with such questions as the distance from public water, sewer, and boroughs. It favors larger portions of agricultural land in areas zoned for agricultural preservation. It also considers the amount of money being generated on the parcel.

"The purpose of the site evaluation is to identify three aspects of the property. We need to know the character of the area. We want to know what is around you. If there is development on three sides of your farm we can't stave off the fourth side. It's very attractive to have your property close to other land in ag security areas. We also need to know the developmental pressure within a few miles of where you are. Finally we want to know the character of your farm. What you are producing and how much is important to determining which property should be purchased," Dr. Robert Ziegenfus, a professor of geography at Kutztown University, explained.

Farmers interested in the conservation easement program have a simple set of steps to follow to get involved in the process. "Start by calling Bernie Riley at 378-1327 then stop into the office and fill out the preliminary application. Then arrange with Bernie to complete the application. He's happy to help you; in fact, that's one of the reasons we hired him. After that it's up to Bernie and the board to evaluate the property," Myers said.

"First, Bernie will check to see that the property meets the minimum criteria set down by the state board. It must be in an ag security area. It must be part of a farm operation capable of generating $25,000 in income and product sales must be more than $10,000. Finally more than 50% of the land must be in crop, grazing or pasture area. The production yield has to be at least equal to the county average. Fifty percent of the soils have to be in classes I through IV. Finally the parcel must meet the standards addressed by the county ranking system."

Riley comes up with a point value for each application based one-third on the land evaluation and two-third's on site assessment. If a piece of property ranks highly in the evaluation process, the next step is an appraisal. Dr. Ziegenfus, explained the appraisal process. "If your property is selected, you will be asked to pay $500 for an appraisal. This money will be refunded if your property is selected for conservation easement purchase and you electo to sell your easements to us. If the board decides that they don't wish to purchase the easements, we will also refund your money. If we offer to purchase your easements, but you decide not to participate in the program then the money will not be refunded. Regardless of what happens you have an appraisal worth some where between $1,200 and $1,500 for $500. After the appraisal we will enter the final selection process," Ziegenfus said.

The final selection will involve six assumptions. "The higher the FLESA, the higher the ranking. The smaller number of dollars required to purchase the conservation easements the higher the ranking. The larger the number of acres with ag restrictions the higher the ranking. The smaller the dollars spent per acre, the higher the ranking. The higher percent of acres of the total farm offered, the higher the ranking and lastly the larger the number of acres offered the higher the ranking. The important thing to remember is that while you are involved, Bernie gets the pleasure of doing most of the work," Ziegenfus stated.

Warren Lamm finished the program explaining the sale procedure. "First a contract of sale must be prepared. A deed must be executed and title insurance procured. Than the board recommends the purchase to the state board. There is very little likelihood that the state board would not accept our recommendations. We also want to encourage all program participants to consult someone experienced in the area of tax considerations. The only thing we know at this time is that the purchase will not be subjected to the realty transfer tax," Lamm said.

If farmers are unable to submit their preliminary applications by January 31, another round will start on February 1.

Maryland Forage Conference

WESTMINSTER, MD — This year's Central Maryland Forage Conference will feature firsthand slide presentations on grazing management systems in Ireland and New Zealand during its afternoon session, reports Dr Leester R. Vough, forage crops specialist for the University of Maryland's Cooperative Extension Service.

Dr. Vough believes that Maryland and Mid-Atlantic livestock producers could benefit by adopting either the Irish or New Zealand systems, which feature continuous and rotational grazing.

The Irish system, particularly, stresses quality and digestibility of forage for dairy cattle. Both systems also are managed in line with economics for beef cattle and sheep.

The conference is set for Saturday, January 20, in the Carroll County Agricultural Center at Westminster. Registration will begin at 8:30 a.m., and the program gets under way at 9:30. A $10 registration fee includes educational materials and lunch

Morning sessions will include presentations on pasture improvement and maintenance for all types of livestock, including goats and horses. The conference will conclude with a "Putting the Pieces Together" session which features separate panel discussion groups for various types of livestock producers Adjournment is set for 3:30 p m

Commercial exhibits will be on display throughout the day, featuring products like fencing supplies, seed and fertilizer. A plant identification contest also will be held

Livestock producers throughout the Mid-Atlantic area are welcome to attend Maryland residents are asked to contact their county office of the Cooperative Extension Service ahead of time to assure adequate seating and food. Residents of surrounding states should call Dr. Vough's office in College Park during normal working hours at (301) 454-4695.

Pennsylvania Dairy Herd Improvement Association

Call 1-800-DHI-TEST for service or information.

THOMAS E. PIPER
Adams County Extension Agent

With dairies looking for milk and paying record prices, this is not the time for lost production due to herd health problems. What can be done to keep the herd healthy and economically productive?

To get started, let me suggest that you become familiar with the Pennsylvania Dairy Health and Biosecurity Manual which has been prepared by Dr. Larry J Hutchinson, D.V.M., extension veterinarian and his staff at the Pennsylvania State University. Developed in support of a statewide extension program on the health and biosecurity of animal enterprises, this handy reference manual provides a check-list of practices which, when customized by you and your veterinarian, can become the health management plan for your herd.

Focusing on the modern concept of production medicine, the manual is organized into eight sections. The first is a calendar of health/biosecurity practices for protecting the herd from the entry of new diseases and to minimize the spread of diseases within the herd. The remainder of the manual is a series of information sheets explaining the whys and hows of the checklist practices.

Here is a brief overview of the contents:

- Disease Control—Beginning with control of new animals entering the herd, you are reminded to obtain health certificates, to isolate new animals for a minimum of 21 days, and to test them for Brucella, tuberculosis, and for certain low prevelance diseases that are absent or controlled in your herd such as Johne's, Bovine Leukosis and certain forms of mastitis.
- The Calf and Heifer Calendar—Lists recommended practices to be performed at birth and at different intervals through preparation for freshening at 24 months. These include vaccinations, dehorning, and checking for normal weight gains.
- The Cow Calendar—Monitors pre-calving practices from dry treatment at last milking to providing added selenium and vitamins A, D, and E and consultations with your veterinarian on dry cow management. Post-calving recommendations include a pre-breeding reproductive examination with goals for re-breeding.
- Environmental management—Will help you control the outside sources of disease organisms. This section reflects the lessons we have learned from the costly Avian Influenza epedemic in poultry flocks. Programs for vaccination and parasite control are suggested.
- Medicine use—A final section will keep you in compliance with drug use requirements.

Fact sheets supporting the checklist will improve your understanding of the Bovine Leukosis Virus, the chronic Johne's disease, and the value and limitations of a health certificate.

The remainder of the manual focuses on the whys and hows of the checklist practices. Sections deal with control of new arrivals; control of farm traffic; separation of groups of animals on the farm; and the importance of sanitation and disinfection.

A section on preventive medicines outlines which products to use and when to use them. The need for a programmed approach to disease and parasite control is stressed, including management practices as well as vaccine and drug use. In the section on maintaining disease resistance, he authors provide valuable reference material on maintaining water intake and quality. The influence of stress on production and health is discussed and suggestions are made for decreasing stress in dairy animals.

The role of environment and health is explained and reliable guidelines are offered for mechanical ventilation, hot weather comfort, restraint and handling.

The Food and Drug Administration and the milk marketing co-ops are setting up new regulations which mandate the proper storage of drugs. A section in the manual on meat and milk quality provides instructions for acceptable drug storage and an approved drug use guide. Practices for preventing antibiotic contamination of milk and meat are listed.

Fact sheets and tables included in the manual are short and to the point, well-illustrated, and easy to read. Fact sheets on disposal of dead animals and preparation of a footbath are followed by a table of common disinfectants including chemical characteristics and uses.

The section on preventive medicines provides valuable background material on controlling ringworm, managing contagious mastitis, identifying and controlling both external and internal parasites.

You'll find valuable tables on internal parasite control products and cattle vaccines. The latter identifies the disease, the causative organism, symptons, and available vaccines together with how to use them and other prevention/control measures.

Designed as a loose-leaf notebook, the Health and Biosecurity Manual is designed to provide unbiased information and to serve as a workbook for planning and recording your health/biosecurity procedures. Read it, then sit down with your veterinarian to customize the checklist for your herd situation. Add or modify items as necessary. Be sure to update the customized checklist once or twice per year. Additional information sheets from your veterinarian, your extension agent or other sources may be added as they become available.

To obtain a copy of the Pennsylvania Dairy Health and Biosecurity Manual, send a check in the amount of $8, payable to "Penn State University," to Publications Distribution Center. 112 Agricultural Administration Building, University Park, 16802. Ask for the manual by name. Some county extension offices may have a supply on hand so you may want to check there before ordering.

The Dairy Health/Biosecurity Manual, if used as suggested, will help you do an even better job of managing your herd for health and profitability. Use it to improve your competitive position.

Six-Year-Old Holstein Is Supreme Dairy Champion At Farm Show

BY LISA RISSER & JOYCE BUPP

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — After an absence of nearly a decade from Farm Show competition, the Gordon Wood family of Mansfield returned with their prize-winning showstring to capture both top Holstein honors and the coveted supreme champion dairy banner.

Their powerful, deep-bodied homebred aged cow, Gor-Wood-D Persuading Favor, won judge Jim Shaw's nod for the Holstein senior and grand champion titles. The six-year-old Favor is sired by Plushanski Persuader and scored EX-90. With two production records higher than 900 pounds of fat, she is fresh since early December and milking more than 120 pounds daily.

The bid for the supreme champion title was close race between Favor and the champion Ayrshire, a two-year-old St. Cesaire Johnny daughter.

"We felt that for her age, the Holstein has shown wearability. Her udder is still very correct," explained Douglas Evans, a Georgetown, N.Y., veterinarian and Ayrshire breeder, who judged the supreme champion contest with Jim Shaw of Mercer and Merton Sowerby of Warrenton, Va.

"The Ayrshire is real young and is a tremendous individual in her own right, but she just doesn't have the same maturity. Give her a couple years and a few calves (and she would win)," Evans continued.

Reserve senior and grand champion Holstein honors went to Favor's herdmate, C Boltonia Warden Julie, an EX-92 five-year-old by Hilltopper EL Warden. She was champion at last fall's New Holland Auction show and sale and has tested at 90-plus pounds daily since freshening more than two months ago.

The Gor-Wood-D showstring also earned the premier exhibitor plaque for the Tioga County family. Gordon and Dorothy Wood began showing at the Farm Show in the early 1950s and had claimed one previous grand champion win early in the '70s. Their winning Excellent cows are just two of the total of 54 Excellent cows in their herd, with 17 of those newly scored Excellent in December classification. In addition, the remainder of the herd comprises 87 Very Goods, 26 Good Pluses, and two Goods for a combined BAA of 109.5.

The supreme champion dairy cow for the 1990 Pennsylvania Farm Show was Gor-Wood-D Persuading Favor, a Plushanski Persuader daughter rated as EX-90. At her halter is owner Gordon Wood who got a helping hand from Boyd Wolff, Secretary of Agriculture, and Anne Mitchell, Pennsylvania Dairy Princess.

Taking junior champion honors was the sharp, straight senior yearling bred and exhibited by the John Foster Jr. family. That win by Globe Run Enhancer Kitty, a Glenaston Enhancer daughter, and the high placings by the total eight head in the Foster showstring combined to win the premier breeder honors for the Petersburg, Huntingdon County family.

Leroy and Ida Jane Plance of Wellsboro exhibited their senior yearling to the reserve junior champion title. L & J Marlin Maxine, a homebred, is sired by Elevation Marlin.

Topping the youth classes in the Holstein division was Meranda Dum of Landisburg. Her five-year-old, Dumbelle Christopher Angel by Browndale Christopher, was named senior and grand champion of youth division.

Dale-Pride Monique Roxy, the homebred five-year-old exhibited by Rebecca Hostetter of Annville.

Named junior champion in the youth division was Sunnybend Nectarine Starbuck, the intermediate yearling exhibited by Bridgette Boyer of York. The youth reserve junior champion rosette went to John Andrew Foster III with his junior yearling, Globe Run Starbuck Beverly.

Ayrshire

The Hunter family of West Alexander took home three of the four top open Ayrshire championship titles from the 1990 Farm Show. This was the third year of showing for the Washington County family and their first Farm Show champions.

Toll Gate Ayr Johnny Jerr, owned by Jeremy G. Hunter, was named senior and grand champion in the open and youth divisions plus won the champion udder rosette. The two-year-old is a St. Cesaire Johnny daughter out of Meadow Brae Jill. She was junior champion in last year's state youth competition and seventh at the All American. In addition, she was first-place two-year-old in the open and junior show in Louisville last fall.

The reserve senior and reserve grand championship titles were presented to Toll Gate Ayr Lib's Finny, owned by Dwight Hunter. Finny is an eight-year-old cow that was named first-place dry cow at the '89 Ohio State Fair and Pennsylvania All American and fourth aged cow at the Southern National in Louisville last year.

Also coming from the Hunter's Toll Gate Ayr Farm herd of 150 head was the junior champion, a senior calf. Rakin Rebel Sara is a Des Pupliers Rebel daughter out of Walnut Bottom Oracle.

The reserve junior champion rosette went to Plum Bottom Flashy Kitty owned by John Rodgers of Belleville. Kitty, a Hammonds Flashy daughter out of Anchor Mere Kat, was named junior champion at the Mifflin County Fair, reserve junior champion at the Huntingdon County Fair, and seventh place senior yearling in the '89 All American.

In the youth division, the junior champion was shown by Jeremy Hunter, while the reserve junior champion was exhibited by Sharon Rader of Connoquenssing. Her entry was a junior calf named Sycamore-Meade Dynamite's. The reserve senior and reserve grand champion was Christopher Harding's Kemerer Farm Taffys Carmel. Carmel is a Toll Gate Albi Major daughter out of Kemerer Kathie Taffy.

The premier exhibitor award in the Ayrshire competition went to Homestead Acres and the Harold Rader family, while the premier breeder award went to Maulfair Acres of Jonestown.

Brown Swiss

Pretzel Jade Poptwin, a-two-year-old Bridge View Jade ET daughter, was proclaimed the best balanced animal in the Brown Swiss competition by judge Douglas Evans and therefore the grand champion. Evans also appreciated the teat placement on the cow, which came from the Bruce Heilinger herd in Newmanstown. Poptwin is out of Improver Pretzel.

Another Lebanon County herd did well at this year's Farm Show. The Mase family, led by Gary L. Mase of Lebanon, went home with the premier exhibitor and breeder awards as well as the reserve grand champion, junior champion, and youth junior and grand champion titles.

Nine-year-old Garrett Mase led out Meadow Hill Jade April, a junior calf whose dam, Meadow Hill Amaretta, was named reserve champion at a previous Farm Show. Besides being named junior champion in the youth and open shows, she was reserve grand champion in the youth show. April is a Bridge View Jade ET daughter.

Gary's sister Judy exhibited the reserve grand champion in the open show, an aged cow that also was named senior and grand champion in the youth show. Meadow Hill Prospect Lauren is a VB Great Prospect daughter out of Jessie Improver Lena.

Twelve-year-old Jeremy Hunter, right, holds his senior and grand champion of the youth and open Ayrshire shows. Named reserve senior and reserve grand champion of the open show was Toll Gate Ayr Lib's Finny, held by exhibitor Dwight Hunter.

Edens tapped for the reserve junior champion title. Nyla, a Top Acres Elegant Status daughter, comes from a herd of 55 heifers. Kunkle's operation consists of buying heifers from Richard Wenger in Manheim and selling them bred shortly before freshening. Nyla's dam, Shady Creek Anchorman, is a Fox Trail Anchorman daughter.

The reserve junior champion honors in the youth show went to Kelly Myers of Thomasville. Her senior calf, Welsh Pond Crusader Gina, is a VB Great Crusader daughter out of Sand Rock Lois Gigi.

Guernsey

Berneta Gable of Snider Homestead Farm in New Enterprise brought a four-year-old cow, Sniders Fayetes Aften, out of her herd of 65 cows that was named grand champion of the Guernsey competition. Although this is Aften's first Farm Show win, it isn't her first time in the champion spotlight. She was named the champion three-year-old in the Pennsylvania Futurity at the '89 Pennsylvania All American. As a two-year-old Aften milked 14,400 pounds.

Aften's dam and granddam were show cows and her granddam lived to the ripe old age of 21 years.

Dave Smith of Annville exhibited the reserve grand champion, Lebanon Valley Fayette Marie. Marie is a three-year-old sired by Dutch Mill Fayette out of Lebanon Valley Emory. Marie is estimated to milk 15,500 pounds of milk in her first lactation, which isn't complete.

Robert Smith, Dave's father and owner of Lebanon Valley Farms, led out the junior champion, Lebanon Valley Baker Nicky. Nicky is a senior yearling sired by Kenmir Nances Baker out of Lebanon Valley Lance. These two titles helped Lebanon Valley Farms win the premier breeder and exhibitor awards. The Smith family has been coming to Farm Show for about seven years to show dairy cattle.

Scott and Elsie Wolff and Peb-L-Brook Farm in Quarryville walked away with the reserve junior champion honors in the open show. Their winning heifer, was a junior calf, Peb L Brook Laredo C J. C J is a Renwind Fay Laredo daughter out of Peb-L-Brook Charlotte.

In the youth division, the senior and grand champion was Sniders Fayetta Sugar Plum, owned by Kristi Snider. Youth reserve senior and reserve grand champion honors went to Sniders Fayettes Onyx, led by Aaron Gable. Onyx is a Dutch Mill Fayette daughter out of Sniders Opal.

The junior champion in the youth division was a junior calf owned by Jenelle A. Boyer of York. Jenelle's calf, Sunnybend Fayette Gretchen, is a Dutch Mill Fayette daughter out of Golden Lock Greta. The reserve junior champion was also a junior calf owned by Jenelle. Sunnybend King Girdle is a Clearbranch NP King daughter out of Golden Lock Gretel.

Jersey

Patricia Jenkins of Toughkenamon in Chester County had reason to be happy on Tuesday. Her Jersey swept the championship titles in the open division. The grand champion was Gusto Milestone Fatima of SSF, a Milestone Advancer daughter out of Pacesetter Flower. Fatima was grand champion at the Delaware State Fair in '88 and milks about 13,000 pounds.

Fatima's daughter, CLV Faithful Golden Farina, came in second to mom winning the reserve senior and reserve grand champion rosettes. The '89 Delaware State Fair grand champion, four-year-old Farina is a Golden Faithful daughter.

Jays Leona of S V was Jenkins' junior champion. Leona is a senior calf sired by Valleystream Silver out of Valhalla Leslie. She was eighth place at the '89 All American Jersey Show in Louisville. Coming in one spot higher at the Louisville competition, but reserve junior champion at Farm Show was CLV Schlitz Sweet Sheena. Sheena is a Silver Spring Schlitz daughter out of CLV Gemini Shamrock.

The youth division junior champion was owned by Joyce Harpster of Boalsburg. Her entry was Edn-Ru Beacon Fancy, a Valley Stream Beacon daughter out of Milu Audry Finalist. The youth division's reserve junior champion was High Snowflakes Frolic, owned by Owen Bewley. Frolic is a Milestone Zorro daughter out of S V Faith Snowflake.

Milking Shorthorn

Veteran exhibitor Jim Young and family of Three Springs Farm in Newville dominated the Milking Shorthorn classes, which led to their being named premier breeder and exhibitor.

Leading their prize winners was Bell Ringer's Faith, an aged cow that judge Jim Shaw selected as grand champion. The cow, which also was named best udder in her class, is a Three Springs Bell Ringer daughter out of Light Weg Faith Promise.

The Farm Show title was the first grand championship garnered by Faith, but not for the Hunters who showed a Farm Show champion about four or five years ago. Faith is co-owned with L. Arthur of Newville.

Herdmate Three Springs Kay, shown by James C. Young, nabbed the reserve senior and reserve grand championship titles as well as that of the youth division senior and grand champion title. Sired by Three Springs Jake, Kay is out of Crest View Wachess and was named champion udder in the Milking Shorthorn contest.

The Young family's senior calf, Three Springs Ashley, owned by Christine Young, took the junior champion rosette in the youth show and the reserve junior champion ribbon in the open show. Ashley is a Ridgewood Glen Cit-R daughter out of Three Springs Argie, a three-time All American winner.

The first-place senior yearling, Maple Glen Rosie, another Three Springs Farm entry, was named junior champion in the open show. Rosie is a Red Cedar Dan daughter out of Three Springs Rosie.

sick's farm, which is owned by his father, Pete. From the family's herd of Chianina-Angus and Simmental breeding stock also came the reserve grand champion shown by Messick's cousin Melanie.

Although only in her second year of showing steers at Farm Show, 12-year-old Melanie Messick is quickly following her cousin's lead. Her middleweight steer, Smokie, didn't do well at the 1989 Keystone International Livestock Exposition, but turned around and won reserve grand champion honors at the Dauphin County roundup last fall, again placing second to Simon.

The Ira Coble Award, given annually to an outstanding 4-H beef leader, was presented to Lancaster Countian Harvey High, left, by David Coble. High has been helping Lancaster County youth with their steer projects for more than 25 years.

Both Messicks plan to bank the money they will earn from the sale of 1,285-pound Simon and 1,215-pound Smokie. Mike Messick hopes to begin amassing money toward the one-day purchase of a beef farm.

The lightweight championship went to first-time Farm Show exhibitor Amy Jodikinos of Clinton. The 18-year-old 4-H'er purchased her 1,140-pound animal from a Keswick, Va., breeder. She chose the calf, named Kes, when he was running the pasture with his dam. Kes was a stubborn eater, Jodikinos related. "It takes him forever to eat feed; he's real picky," she said. However, he must have eaten the right stuff to be in championship form. Jodikinos currently is attending Robert Morris College in Coraopolis where she is majoring in accounting. Her earning from Kes' sale will go toward her education.

Dairy Price Support

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Acting Secretary of Agriculture Roland R. Vautour said recently that the level of price support for milk will be reduced from $10.60 to $10.10 per hundredweight (cwt.), effective Jan. 1, 1990.

Vautour said the Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1989 provides that the secretary may reduce the milk support price by not more than 50 cents per cwt. if purchases of surplus milk and dairy products during calendar 1990 are estimated to exceed 5 billion pounds, milk equivalent.

At the current $10.60 support price, the projected surplus purchases are estimated at 8 billion pounds, milk equivalent-milkfat basis. With the support level at $10.10, purchases in 1990 are estimated at 7.4 billion pounds milk equivalent-milkfat basis. On a total milk solids basis, the estimated 1990 surplus ranges from 3.6 to 4.4 billion pounds, milk equivalent-total milk solids basis.

All recent price support adjustments, including the adjustment taking effect Jan. 1, have been made based upon surplus determinations using a milkfat basis.

The price support of $10.10 per cwt. is for milk with a milkfat content of 3.67 percent — the national average — and compares with $9.88 per cwt. for milk with a milkfat content of nonfat dry milk.

The act provides further that the secretary must offer to purchase butter for not more than $1.10 per pound, except that the secretary may allocate the rate of price support between the purchase prices for non-fat dry milk and butter in such other manner as he determines will result in the lowest level of expenditures by CCC.

To better reflect current market conditions, all of the decrease in the support price for milk used in manufacturing butter and nonfat dry milk will be allocated to the CCC purchase price of butter. The CCC purchase price for butter will be reduced by 11.25 cents per pound to $1.0925 per pound. The nonfat dry milk price will remain unchanged. The CCC purchase price for block Cheddar and barrel cheese will be reduced by 4.5 cents per pound to $1.11 and $1.07 per pound, respectively, to correspond with the new support price level. These actions will assure an adequate supply of milk.

Further terms and conditions for CCC purchases of dairy products will be contained in CCC announcements.

CCC-owned dairy products, when available, can be purchased for unrestricted use at prices which are about 10 percent over the prevailing CCC price support purchase prices. Currently, only butter is being offered for sale.

SPEND YOUR HARD EARNED MONEY FOR PREVENTING BUGS, BLIGHTS, FUNGUS, DISEASES, LIVESTOCK PROBLEMS INSTEAD OF GETTING RID OF THEM AFTER YOU HAVE THEM.

For the alfalfa farmers and many of the vegetable farmers, the above problems are taken care of by the fertilizer check which averages only about $18 to $24 per acre per year.

Our fertilizer makes the crops sweet and mineral rich and the bugs can't stand to eat a sweet plant. They are sent by the Creator to get the unhealthy plants out of the way, so that you and I don't eat them. The healthy plants they leave for us. Vegetable growers tell us the sick plants have more bugs.

Our fertilizer makes hay, grain and soybeans so rich that the livestock will do better and eat less feed. A customer said he bought a new J.D. 4 bottom plow tractor with the money he saves on chemicals, drugs and vet. bills. He farms 4 farms without any chemicals. He said cow health is about perfect and they milk better than ever. He counted 44 earthworms in a space of soil about as large as a man's head. Now they make his fertilizer free. We would like to put you on easy street too.

On top of that, our customers get $8.00 per bu. for soybeans if they pass the low-toxin test. And some get around 80 bu. per acre. On top of that you are reducing pollution which kills and hospitalizes people which could be one of your family.

Apply our special detoxifying fertilizer as soon as this snow is gone, before the next one. Then it will start detoxifying the soil so that you will get low toxin livestock feed and the livestock will also do better, or you can sell the feed for high prices to a waiting market.

We have special opportunities for you to grow Spelt, and white soybeans for seed at high prices. And yields are high, (of course like other crops) if grown with our special fertilizer. Send $.50 (stamps OK) for literature that could be worth thousands of dollars to you.

Gov. Casey Opens Farm Show

The carriage was driven by Roger Thoms of Spring Mills, Centre County, the winner of the team hitched-horse competition at last year's show.

During the opening ceremonies, Gov. Casey paid tribute to the state's 55,000 farm families and 2,000 food processors. Then, he officially opened the doors of the show, which is free of charge to the public. The show will close Friday.

"Pennsylvania has traditionally been seen as a state of heavy industry — coal, steel, oil, railroads," Gov. Casey said, "but we're also home to America's largest rural population. Agriculture is the state's biggest, most productive industry, generating $35 billion in economic activity.

"It's important that the tradition of farming in Pennsylvania, which stretches back 300 years, continues strong into the 21st century."

Gov. Casey cited several new programs that have benefitted agriculture, such as the creation of a state Animal Health Commission to protect farm animals from disease, and the establishment of a farmland preservation initiative that is the most ambitious in the nation.

The farmland preservation program helps farm families preserve their land for agricultural use.

"For years, state government has talked about saving the vanishing farms of our Commonwealth, and now we're doing something about it," Gov. Casey said.

MacCauley Wins Suffolk, Cheviot Junior Sheep Breeding Championship

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Junior sheep breeders at the 1990 State Farm Show may have had longer to wait for their prizes this year, because the judging took three and a half hours longer than anticipated, but the rewards of patience paid off.

Junior sheep breeders, ranging in ages from 9 to 19, showed their finest ewe lamb and yearling ewes. Judge Monty Chappel from Lexington, Kentucky admitted having an "awfully tough time" choosing the champions because of the enormous amount of entries and the high quality of the breeds. Of the 10 separate breeds, more than 65 exhibitors vied for the grand and reserve champions.

"What we were looking for this year were attributes of substance, strength, femininity, and balance," said Chappel. "I was impressed, particularly with the Suffolk breeders, especially the grand champion ewe, for her massiveness, strength, and muscle. It was the best class I'd seen all day."

Chappel emphasized the better structure, body length, and substance of the winners. Feeding and caring were paramount concerns for the young breeders and contributed greatly to their awards. Many of the select ewes were bred from champion stock, and will influence breeds for years to come.

Having the "massive" grand champion Suffolk, Donna MacCauley, 19, also won for supreme champion meat breed sheep for her Cheviot yearling ewe and grand champion Cheviot in the breeding category.

Shropshire

Arlisa Snavely, 16, attributes her champion ewe lamb to the ewe's mother, a champion herself. "Belinda has good breedling lines, and her mom was big — that helped a lot," Arlisa said, who has been raising sheep for eight years. "We've been exhibiting Belinda at local fairs, and she took First Champion at the Elizabethtown Fair."

The champion ewe "was impressive in strength, length, and overall physical balance," said Judge Chappel. "A good breeding stock overall."

Jessica McCrumb, 11, took reserve champion for her yearling ewe, Slice. The reserve champion garnered the same award last year at the farm show and has been exhibited in 13 fairs throughout the state all summer long. "We just feed her right and hopes she wins," said Jessica, who has been raising sheep for eight years.

The reserve champion was big in "overall pattern" and was an excellent contender.

Southdown

What did Luke Zerby, 10, did to ensure his ewe lamb Fluffy would win the grand champion?

"Just lucky breeding, I guess," Luke said. "He was bred from Snowhite, his mom, so I guess that was good enough."

Luke has been breeding sheep for about four years and has exhibited Fluffy at numerous state fairs. Fluffy won the championship at Beaver Fair.

"Good breeding, development, and overall length were impressive," said Judge Chappel.

The reserve champion when to Drew Bankert, 11, who has been raising sheep for three and a half years. His yearling ewe, Rhonda, won the Keystone championship and was champion of last year's state farm show.

"Even though the champion had overall better structure, the reserve had good build and development," said Judge Chappel.

Suffolk

Donna McCauley, 19, who won this year's supreme champion meat breed sheep with her Cheviot yearling ewe, also took grand champion with her yearling ewe Suffolk named Monkey.

"Monkey's mom was of really good stock, and had many offspring, so it was easy to find her," said Donna. She has been breeding sheep "all her life" and has exhibited and won in other statewide fairs. She won champion Suffolk at last year's state farm show.

"I was impressed with how massive, strong, and well bred this class was," said Chappel. "This is the best class I've seen today. There was good muscle here, and the heighth was fine."

It was a long, tough choice, but in the end Melanie Snyder, 12, took reserve champion with her ewe lamb, Pauli. "Pauli just grew

(Turn to Page A32)

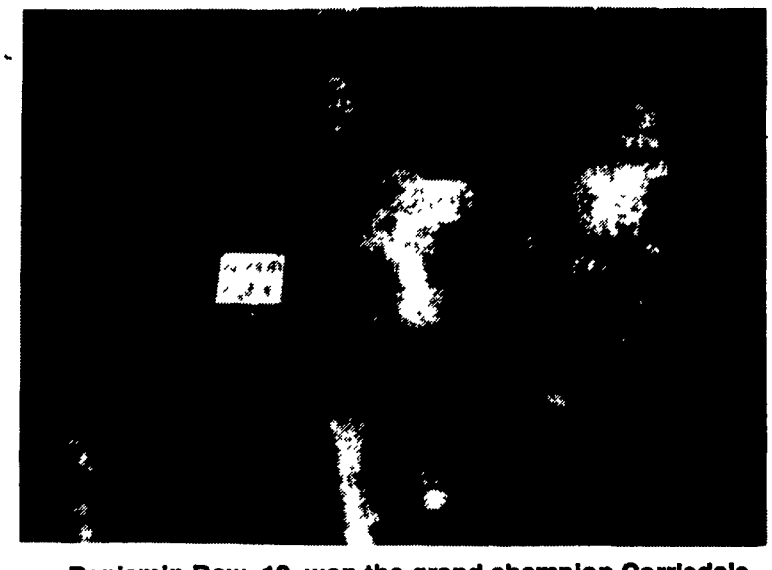
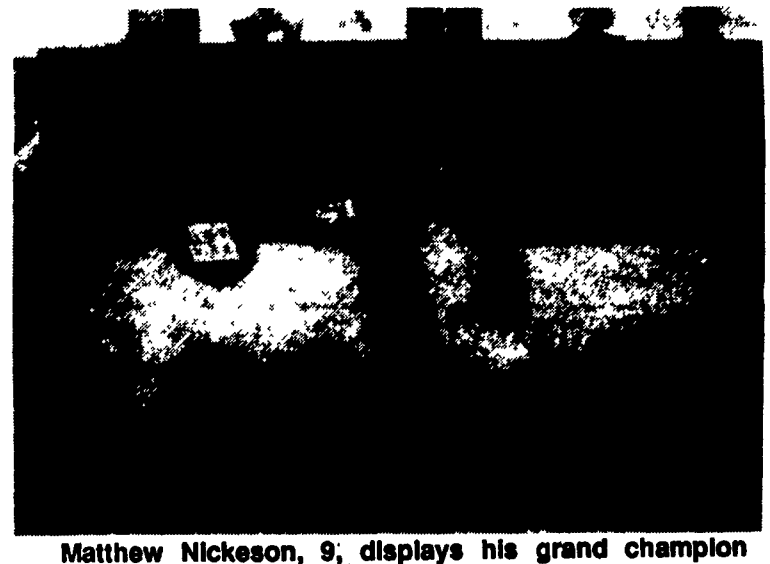
Jessica McCrumb, 11, won reserve champion Shropshire for her yearling ewe, Slice. The reserve champion won the same award last year at the state farm show.



Benjamin Bow, 12, won the grand champion Corriedale. The reserve champion ewe was won by Kelly Glaser, 9.



Matthew Nickeson, 9, displays his grand champion Hampshire yearling. "We give it a lot of proper feed and care," he said.

Junior Market Lamb Champions Decided By Heavyweights

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Heavyweight junior lambs finished as grand market lamb champions Wednesday night at the farm show.

"The breed overall was nicely balanced, with strength and muscle," said judge Monty Chappel.

Scott Kuzemchak, 19, has been raising sheep for 11 years. His entry, a Suffolk breed, won the junior lamb marketing grand championship.

"It was a lot of walking, to tone the muscles and keep the lamb in shape," said Scottt. Scott won the reserve champion last year.

Erick Hayes, 14, has been raising sheep for eight years. His Suffolk, Oreo, won the grand champion at Keystone. "Exercise and special feeding got us to the championship," said Erick.

Lightweight

Joe Kuzemchak, 14, has been raising sheep for six years, and won the grand championship in 1988. Joe and his brother have been exhibiting sheep for various state fairs, although his breed, a Southdown, won for the first time on Wednesday night.

"We exercise it a lot and feed it right," said Joe.

"The muscle in the leg remains good, and will produce some high-priced cuts," said Chappel.

Mark Tracy, 14, has been raising sheep for six years. Although he didn't exhibit his reserve champion lightweight Southdown anywhere else, he was "delighted" to win the reserve champion.

Middleweight

Elizabeth Stone, 10, raised Ben, a Hampshire, to win grand champion middleweight at this year's lamb marketing championship. Elizabeth has been raising sheep only one year, and she felt lucky to be the grand champ.

"There is a lot of muscle on the grand champ, and it is easily the strongest in its class," said Chappel. "The length of its top is most impressive."

Laura Folker, 18, has been raising sheep for four years. Her reserve champion Hampshire, nicknamed Skinhead, won at Swinkey, Iowa. The champ also won at the Manheim and New Holland fairs.

"We use good breeding stock and general care," said Laura.

Heavyweight

Scott Kuzemchak, 19, picked up the grand champion heavyweight award with his Suffolk breed. Scott has been raising sheep for 11 years.

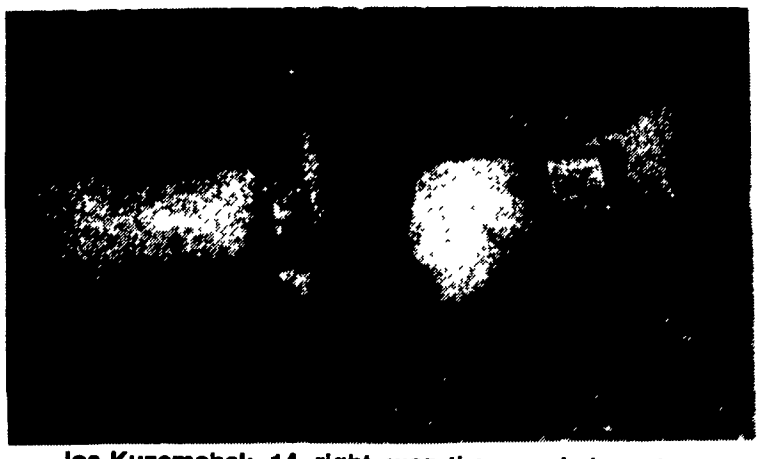
"This is a strong, strong breed shown here," said Chappel. "I was impressed with the strength and balance."

Scott attributes the award to "a lot of walking to tone the muscles."

Erick Hayes, 14, has been raising sheep for eight years. Oreo won the grand champion award at Keystone. Erick says his award came by "extreme care and special feeding — it has to be, to win this kind of award," Erick said.

Elizabeth Stone, 10, left, won the middleweight lamb marketing championship with her Hampshire breed. Laura Folker, 18, right, won the reserve championship.

Scott Kuzemchak, 19, won the heavyweight and grand lamb marketing championship with his Suffolk breed. Erick Hayes, 14, picked up the heavyweight reserve and grand reserve championship.



Joe Kuzemchak, 14, right, won the grand champion for the lamb marketing lightweight division with his Southdown breed. Mark Tracy, left, was awarded the reserve champion.

through feed and care, but in the end, I guess she just won because we give her a lot of love," said Melany.

Cheviot

Donna MacCauley took home several farm show awards. On Saturday it was the supreme champion meat breed sheep with her Cheviot yearling ewe, and once again she won for her Cheviot champ.

Even though there were fewer entries in this category than any other, the judge carefully considered four entrants and picked Donna's prize Cheviot because of the ewe's "meatiness and strength." She won both grand and reserve champion categories.

Donna is 19 and said she has raised sheep since she was born.

Dorset

"The champion has a lot of substance to her, at the top and overall length of body. There is more body depth and less of leg," said Judge Chappel.

Chappel refers to Jenny Zerby's Red Oak fall Dorset yearling ewe, who took grand champion. The ewe also won at Keystone and other fairs. "We just give it care and feeding — we take care of it constantly." said Jenny, 13. The ewe's mother has fostered other champions of which her family raised. Jenny has been raising sheep since she was born.

Lori Tyson, 13, took reserve champion for the ewe lamb, Princess Di. Lori has been raising sheep for 10 years, and Princess Di has won the grand championship at the Sussex Fair in New Jersey and Kutztown State Fair.

"We worked real hard," said Lori. "It takes years to get a champion like this."

Hampshire

Matthew Nickeson, 9, stands alone. Not only did he win the grand champion Hampshire yearling ewe class, but holds the reserve placing as well.

"The breed's structure and pattern, lines, thickness, and feminity are dominant," said Judge Chappel.

"We give it a lot of proper feed and care," said Matthew, who has been raising sheep for seven years. The ewe was exhibited at the Louisville, Kentucky national show and won a championship at Keystone.

Corriedale

Benjamin Bow, 12, has been raising sheep for eight years, and even though his yearling ewe won for the first time in any competition at the farm show, he was happy that "good care" got it there.

"This was a good body sheep, with good overall strength and looks," said Judge Chappel, who was impressed at the "meat body" of the sheep.

Kelly Glaser, 9, has been raising sheep since a toddler, and won reserve champion. Kelly won reserve placings in two other championships, at the Allentown and Kutztown fairs.

Montadale

"I was impressed with the graceful length of body and natural thickness of the sheep," said Judge Chappel, looking over the Montadale category.

Heather Fidler, 13, won grand champion for her yearling ewe Daisy. She has been raising sheep for only two years, and won first place at a "couple" of state fairs and placed in the championship at Louisville, Kentucky. "We bought her at the nationals, so we are happy she won."

Jeanette Fidler, 9, raised her ewe lamb, Becky, for the reserve title. This is only her first year, though Becky also won second place at the Louisville, Kentucky championship. "We just brought her up right," said Jeanette.

Merino

Suzanne Dollar, 11, won grand champion Marino with her yearling ewe, Pauley. Suzanne has been raising sheep for five years and won the championship at last year's state farm show.

"We feed Agway pellets to it and keep it out of the rain," said Suzanne. "It's a good wool breed, though, and we tend it really carefully."

The sheep showed "supreme feminity and strength," said Judge Chappel. There were no reserve champions.

Rambouillet

Billy Leib, 9, is proud to earn the Rambouillet grand champion for his yearling ewe. Billy has been raising sheep "all his life" and has exhibited his ewe at the Louisville, Kentucky championship. "We got the right parents and were careful with the stock," he said.

The body tops were "massive and well-rounded, with strong legs," according to Judge Chappel.

Billy also won reserve champion for his ewe lamb.

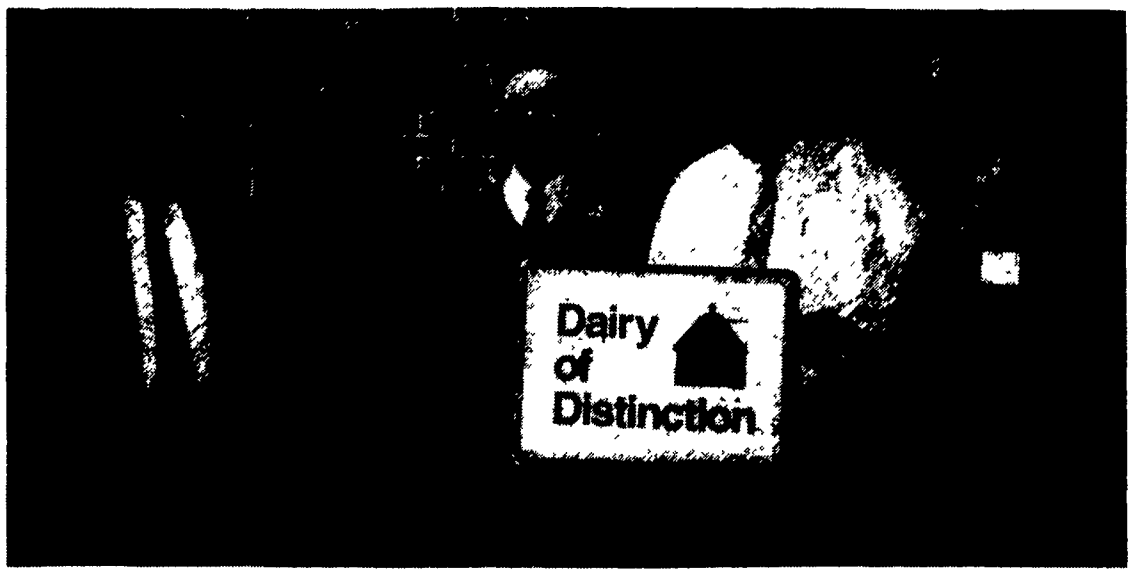
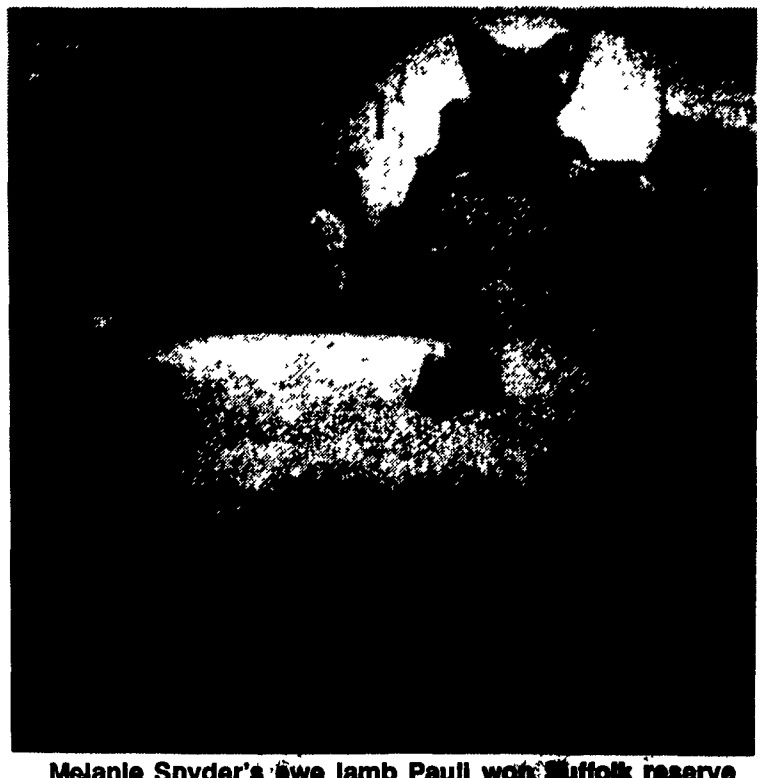
Suzanne Dollar, 11, won grand champion Marino with Pauley, her yearling ewe.

The champion and reserve Southdown were noted for good breeding, development, and overall length. Grand champ Luke Zerby, 10, left, says it was "lucky breeding and the ewe's mom, Snowhite." Reserve champ Drew Bankert, 11, has raised sheep for more than three years and won the Keystone championship.



The newly elected officers of the Dairy of Distinction program are (l to r): Steve Spencer, advisor; Donna Gearhart, treasurer; Russ Rooks, vice president; Dan Baker, president and Paul Nichols, secretary. Everett Newswanger, who was president since the program came into Pennsylvania four year ago, retired but remains on the board of directors.



Melanie Snyder's ewe lamb Pauli won Suffolk reserve champion. Melanie said Pauli grew through feed, care, and a "lot of love."

Eastern Cooperative: We Test Our Milk

SYRACUSE, N.Y. — Eastern Milk Producers Cooperative" is committed to a safe and wholesome milk supply," and "routinely tests milk" for quality and drug residues, according to Eastern General Manager Michael Donovan. Speaking at a district meeting of member-farmers held in Wysox recently, Donovan made the statement in reaction to recent Wall Street Journal stories on drug residues in milk.

He assured farmers that Eastern's quality control procedures, supported by a state-of-the-art laboratory, "prevent tainted milk from entering the marketplace."

Futhermore, Donovan said Eastern provides incentives for member farmers to produce quality milk.

"We pay extra for higher quality milk," he said. "We also pay farmers who alert us to possible contamination problems before their milk is picked up."

Eastern President Lewis Gardner, a dairy farmer from Galeton, reported that Eastern began an informational campaign about the proper use of animal drugs a year and a half ago. At the same time it banned sulfamethazine from its member farms.

The Wall Street Journal report said trace amounts of sulfamethazine and other antibiotics used to treat injured or sick animals were found in milk samples.

Farmers who allow tainted milk from their farm to spoil a load of milk are penalized for the loss, he noted, and repeated violations will result in a farmer's dismissal from the cooperative.

Donovan said that Eastern producers represent some 3,000 farms in nine states and bring to market over 1.8 billion pounds of milk a year.

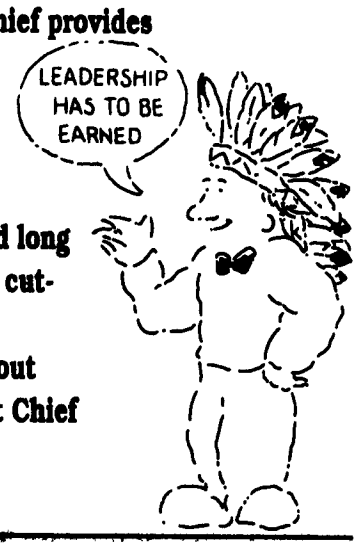
Alfalfa

There's only one Chief!

Why give up yield and forage quality for superior disease resistance...especially when you can have both? That's what makes Chief alfalfa the leader.

Of 99 alfalfa varieties tested by the University of Minnesota, none even came close to Chief's resistance to Bacterial Wilt and Phytophthora Root Rot. Yet, Chief also has the ability to produce exceptional yields of high-quality, leafy forage. In addition, Chief provides outstanding resistance to Anthracnose, Verticillium and Fusarium wilts. Fast stand establishment, rapid recovery after harvest and long stand life mean you'll get more cuttings over more years, too!



You don't become chief without standing out from the rest. Put Chief alfalfa to work for you.

Yearling Heifer Shines, Supreme Title To Angus

VERNON ACHENBACH, JR.
Lancaster Farming Staff

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — A 13-year-old York County girl's Angus heifer is the 1990 Pennsylvania Sumpreme Champion Beef.

From a mixed-sex field of 10 beef animals, representing five different breeds of cattle, judges chose Jennifer Calderazzo's young Angus, Personality Preference, to wear the first state supreme champion crown.

"I'm very excited about it," Calderazzo said, "especially since it's the first supreme (beef cattle) at the Farm Show. And since it shows my work paid off, it makes me happy."

Calderazzo said she didn't have any premonition that her heifer was going to be named supreme. "She's so young and there were a lot of older heifers. I just kept my concentration on what I was doing," she said, adding that she wasn't sure what specific animal attributes the judges were going to be stressing when making their decision.

Nevertheless, Calderazzo is no stranger to center ring. She said the 11-month-old heifer has earned other trophies and the heifer's mother, Prim Personality, has also seen some ribbons and attention. Last year, Prim Personality was named Farm Show grand champion. Jennifer has bred and owned both champion animals.

She said that although she does breed her own animals, "My parents help me."

A four-year Farm Show veteran and the daughter of Dr. Joseph and Sally Calderazzo, York RD 6, Jennifer is an eighth grade student at Central York. "She gets a lot of ribbing about it (raising Angus) at school," Mr. Calderazzo said, visibly proud of his daughter's accomplishment. "She just lets it run off her back like water."

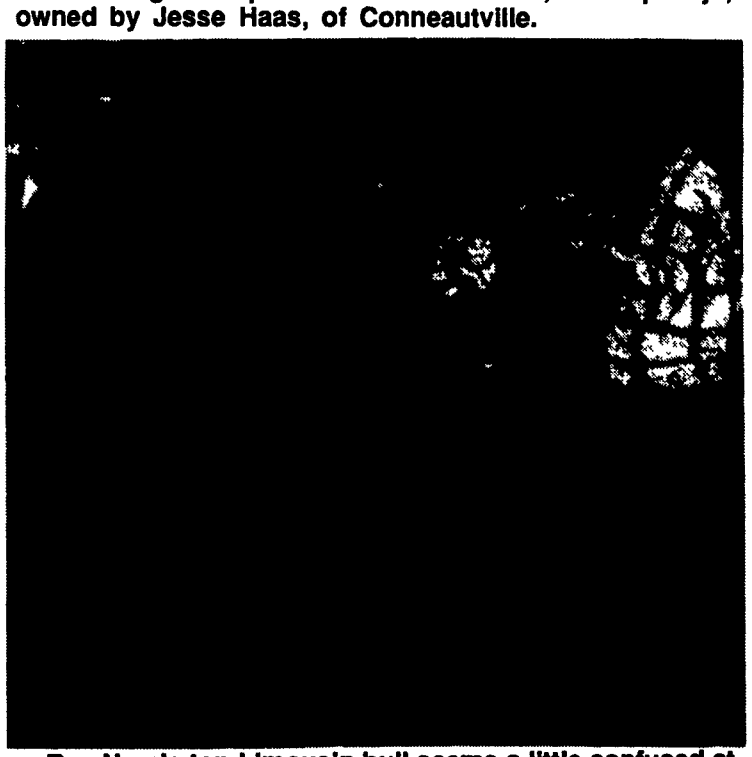
Despite some of the negative comments coming from some eight-grade peers, Jennifer said raising Angus has its own social rewards. "I've met a lot of friends and it's a nice industry to get into."

However, Calderazzo said she doesn't necessarily hold the Angus breed as superior to the Polled Hereford, Simmental, Charolais, or Limousin breeds.

(Turn to Page A39)

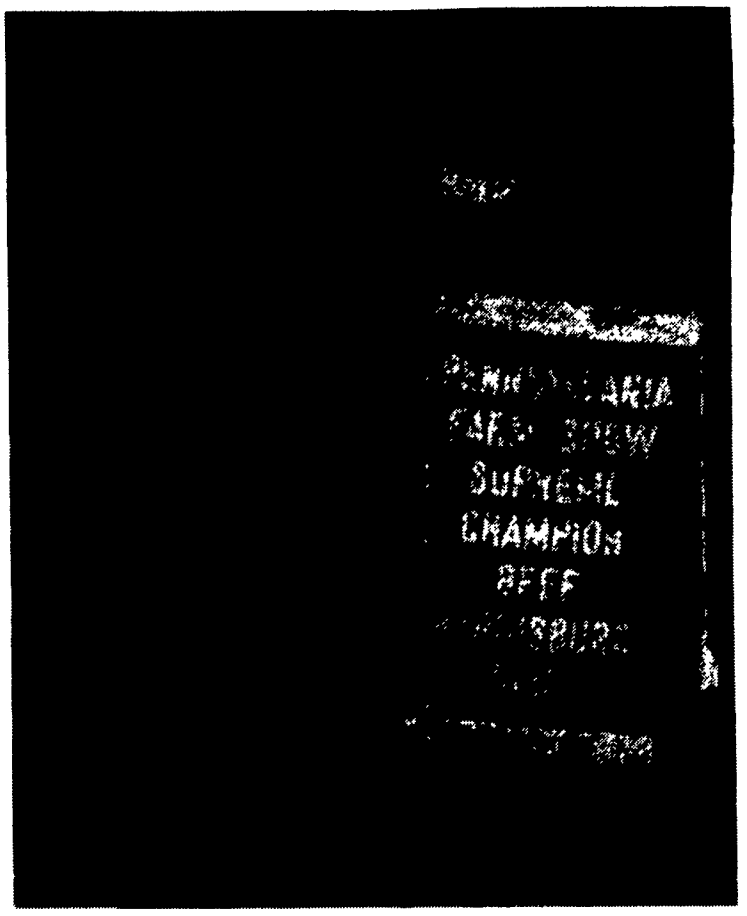
Age of showman is irrelevent in the big ring as young Kyle Rooker, Uniontown, keeps grand champion Polled Hereford female, Miss Dawn, looking pretty for judges.

Assistant state agriculture secretary, Fred King, presents rossette and grand champion plaque to Jay Temchak for showing the top-ranked Charolais bull, Hill Top Cujo, owned by Jesse Haas, of Conneautville.

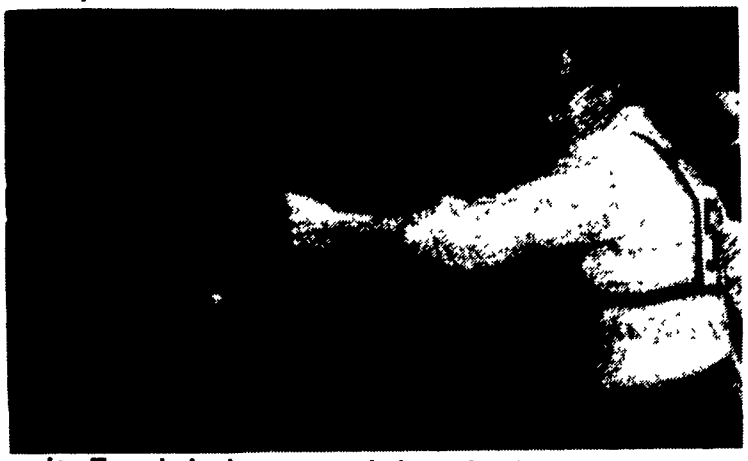


Roy Neer's top Limousin bull seems a little confused at not being chosen supreme beef for 1990.

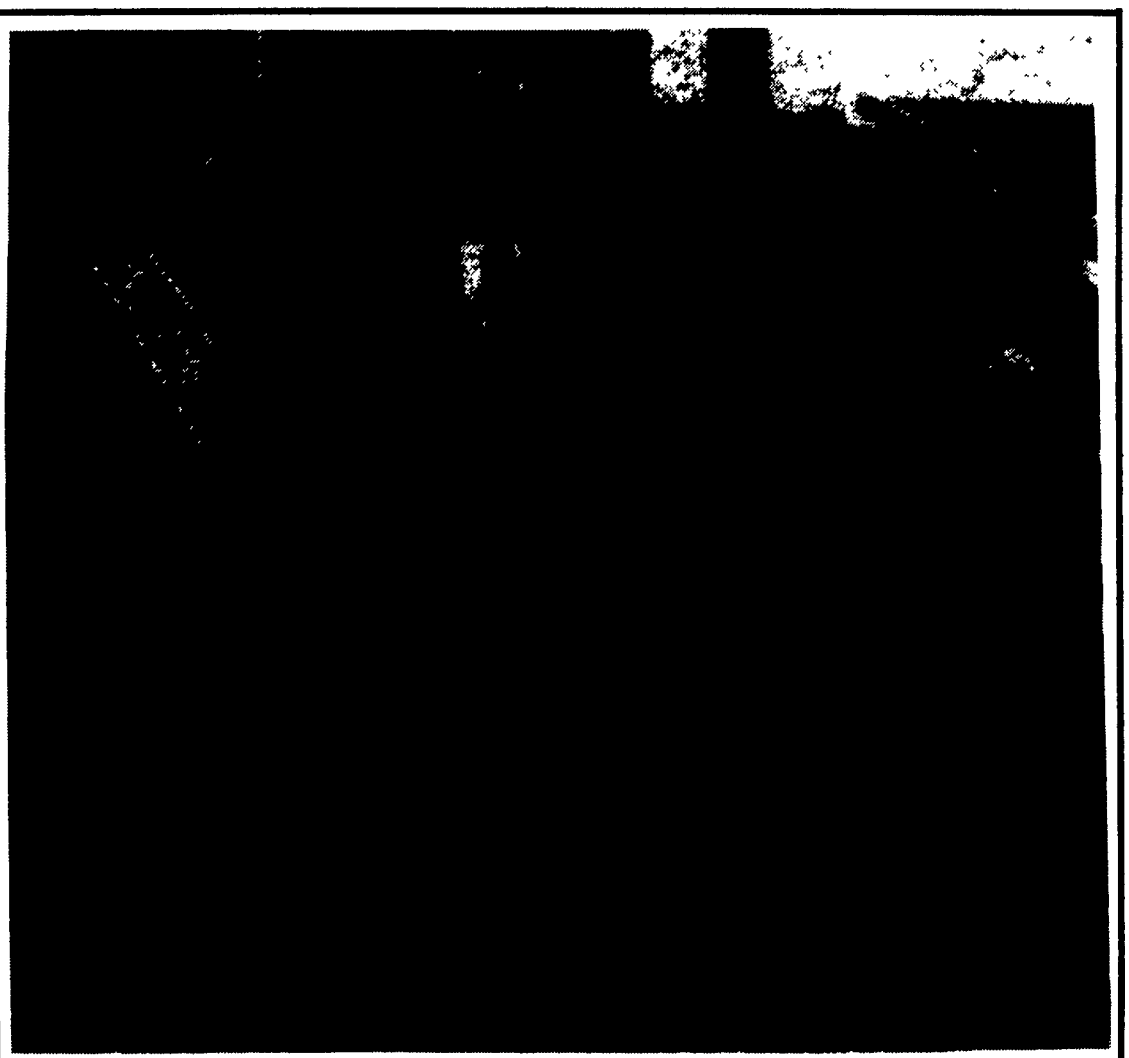
Scott Eastep holds grand champion Charolais female, SMR Crystals Forture ET. Dorothy Heistand holds the rosette and plaque. She and her husband Walter, of Manheim, own the top animal.



Jennifer Calderazzo holds her banner proclaiming her Angus heifer, Personality Preference, state supreme champion beef.



Jay Temchak shows grand champion Limousin female, DFLC BSC Willow, owned by Maple Lane Farms, in Enon Valley.



The Leib family — Bob, Suzie, and their son Billy — captured the 1990 sheep wool breed supreme championship with their Rambouillet yearling ewe Thursday night at the farm show. On Wednesday, Billy, 9, won the junior sheep breeding championship with the yearling ewe, which went on to win the supreme championship. "The Rambouillet is the backbone of the American sheep industry, and we were careful in breed selection, primarily for the sheep's meat and muscle," said Bob. Standing, left to right, are Julie Maust, Pennsylvania Lamb and Wool queen; Boyd Wolff, state secretary of agriculture; Billy Leib; and Billy's friend, Kelly Ziegler. See story next week.

Dairy Auctioneers Must Know Seller's Motivation

BY JOSEPH KEEPHAVER
National Auctioneers Magazine
December 1989

CINCINNATI, Ohio — If you are interested in auctioning dairy cattle, it is essential that, in addition to knowing the value of the livestock, you also understand the motivation of the people for whom you'll be selling.

That was the message of C. Sherman Allen and Howard J. Hammond, two of the speakers at the Agribusiness Council Workshop at the 1989 Cincinnati Convention.

"It's an inept sale manager who determines all livestock auctions can be run on the same format," said Hammond, a professional pedigree announcer and former sale manager from Corry.

For example, the auctioneer should recognize that the farmer who is preparing for retirement has likely invested a great deal of effort in making every aspect of his operation a success. "You're going to have to go the extra mile with this man," Hammond said. "His cattle require a little more preparation, a lot more advertising, a little better catalog.

"When you go to the part-time farmer, the second-income farmer or when you're working an auction that is lender-motivated, this man probably hasn't been nearly as meticulous," Hammond said. "In order to book that auction, you're obviously going to have to get your pencil a little sharper. The lender is going to be very critical of what you charge for a commission. The farmer doesn't want the extra hassle of having a fitting crew there 10 days before the auction, having a photography crew there two months before the auction, and having a lot of pre-auction activity around the farm. In some cases, he may even be embarrassed about having the auction."

In the purebred business, club consignment auctions are very important to participants as a means of showcasing their livestock to the rest of the country.

"In a consignment auction, you have to understand that your expenses are going to be a lot higher," Hammond said. "When you're selling a 400-cow dairy and get the pace rolling, every once in a while you can drop a cow off quickly to keep people awake." That isn't possible in a consignment auction, where each animal is individually owned.

When you are selling pedigreecd cattle, you must be able to credibly present the pedigrees. "My work in the sale business is analyzing these pedigrees in a manner to accentuate the auctioneer," Hammond explained, "keeping the auction moving ahead and, hopefully, getting a little money out of the cattle for the farmer."

There are a variety of ways by which you can learn of potential auction situations, but Allen believes one of the best is to stay in touch with lending institutions. "I keep in close contact with my Production Credit Association and my local bankers," the Conneaut Lake auctioneer said. "I know the loan officers. Every time I go by the PCA building, I'm in there. You have to get out there and know what's happening in your community."

Where should the auctioneer and client hold their first meeting? "I prefer to go on that farmer's farm immediately, so I know what I'm getting into," said Allen. "I subscribe to our DHIA magazine for Pennsylvania, and it tells me every herd average in the state of Pennsylvania — if the farmer's on test. I go to that book and see whether he's a 16,000-pound herd average or 12,000-pound herd average. Immediately, I can have a little indication about what kind of a manager he is."

Allen doesn't pursue a commitment from the farm operator until after he inspects the property and understands the reason for the auction. "I don't pull out the contract and want him to sign on the dotted line within the first couple of seconds," the auctioneer said. "I like to go talk to the gentleman or the lady and see why they're selling. Once I've made my personal appraisal, I can tell what kind of an auction I can conduct for that farmer."

Alternatives might include holding an on-site auction or moving the animals to another facility, Allen said. Another decision to be made involves whether to sell inside an existing facility at the farm, rent a tent or conduct the auction under the open sky.

Your support staff is extremely important, Allen said, and you may want to consider the services of a breed association to assist with the auction.

"The Pennsylvania Holstein Association will clerk a county club consignment auction and take care of all the paperwork for $10 a head," Allen told the auctioneers in Cincinnati. "That's in our area. Your area may be different. In my opinion, I don't want the headaches at a consignment auction for $10 a head, and I highly recommend it."

When it comes to ring personnel, Allen believes they can be as important to the success of the auction as the auctioneer.

"A ringperson can set the cattle in for you and make your auction move along. They can keep the bidders' attention and make sure you get back to them, especially if you have a large crowd.

"I hire ringmen who I know buy cattle," Allen said. "Basically, you guys might call them dealers . . . If you have someone who you know has an order of cattle, it may pay you to have that person there.

Co-op Leaders Testify On Farm Bill

SYRACUSE, NY — Representatives of the 10,000 dairy farmers who own the Northeast's largest milk cooperatives were scheduled to tell the U.S. House Agriculture Committee that five more years of the dairy policy embodied in the 1985 Farm Bill would be disastrous to the region's dairy industry.

The Committee was to be in Syracuse on Jan. 10 to hold its only Northeastern hearing on the 1990 Farm Bill.

"Agriculture Secretary Yeutter and some in Congress have suggested that five more years of the '85 act look like a good deal. With regard to dairy policy, we respectfully, but emphatically disagree," said Steve Kerr, executive director of the Council of Northeast Farmer Cooperatives. "Our analysis suggests that such an approach will only push farm prices back to the dismal levels of the mid-80s, and accelerate the loss of dairy farms in this already milk-short region.

"Farmers understand that writing farm policy is no easy task," Kerr said. "We have a series of ideas which we think will do the job. The cooperative leaders will lay them out for the committee's consideration."

Among the proposals scheduled to be made are:

- Using the purchases of all dairy products — cheese, non-fat dry milk and butter — to more accurately gauge the degree of national milk surpluses (U.S.D.A. now considers only purchases of butter, a choice which grossly exaggerates the amount of surplus milk actually on the market);
- Separating dairy products purchased by the government for domestic and foreign food aid programs from those purchased to stabilize farm prices (U.S.D.A. now treats such products as market surpluses when, in fact, there is real demand for them);
- Developing a program of inventory management so that the Secretary of Agriculture can forestall the development of burdensome milk surpluses, and thereby stabilize farm and consumer milk prices.

Dairy Auctioneers

It's almost like buying a buyer to be there to set the floor."

A fitting crew and good barn help are also necessary.

"Fitting can be as simple as clipping and washing the tails, or it can be as in-depth as a complete clipping of the heads, tails — basically what you might call showring ready. That depends on the quality of the animal you're going to be selling.

For moving the cattle from the barn to the ring, Allen prefers to employ people he knows and trusts. Some farmers like to use friends and relatives, he said, but volunteers often get tired and lose interest midway through the auction.

Livestock transporters are notified of the upcoming auction so that they can be at the disposal of the buyers. "If a farmer/buyer doesn't know who he's going to get to haul his cow home, he might be a little hesitant about bidding," Allen explained.

Loading help remains on the site for about 1½ hours following the auction. "Unless the buyer has told us differently, we milk the cattle out as soon as the auction's over," Allen said. "Believe it or not, you'll have some farmers who will want to take that milk home."

Don't overlook the bidders' comfort, the auctioneer cautioned. Make certain there is adequate seating, food service, etc.

Tagging cattle would seem to be a simple procedure, but there can be problems. Whatever method you choose, the important thing is that the numbers stay on the cows.

"You can use the sale barn tag with the sale barn glue, if you like. I personally don't like to use that type of a tag. I have my own printed on cardboard with a heavier glue. If cattle are running loose, they can lick off the paper ones."

Other alternatives include commercial marking crayons, a bangle tag in the ear or neck tag.

The auctioneer must make certain the client has contacted a veterinarian to do the necessary blood work, pregnancy testing and health charts, Allen said.

He recommends producting a catalog for each auction, although some may not be as elaborate as others. "For 90 percent of the auctions I conduct — where I'm sale manager and auctioneer — I make them in-house," Allen said.

"You had better be pretty sure the information is correct," he continued. "I guarantee nothing because I'm not the one who's pregnancy checking the cows, I'm not the one who's doing the health testing. That's left up to the vet or your information that comes from the owner. But we do our best to present the information to the best of our knowledge.

"If you don't have production records, you can use what they've been sending to the milk dairy. Sometimes that means a lot more to potential buyers than do DHIA records."

In setting the advertising budget for an auction, Allen asks himself how far he would be willing to drive to buy what the farmer is selling. "If you're getting into some real pedigreed cows, you can go nationwide," he said. "In the Holstein business, that would be Holstein World. Or you can go with state, regional or just local papers.

"We sometimes use radio, but radio advertising in our area is a spontaneous, last-minute reminder. I personally don't do a lot of direct mailing, although there are some sale managers who do. I see nothing wrong with it."

Both Allen and Hammond believe in hiring consultants. "When you hire the right people who know the right information, it makes you look good," said Allen.

"We got out of sale management mainly because my interest is in farmers selling the 50- and 60-cow dairies around the upper Northeast," said Hammond. "I well realize that's probably a business that's shortly going to come to a close. The successful sale manager today has to be able to cover a lot broader scope than that."

Hammond has a strong empathy for the operators of small family dairies, but believes their day is past.

"For those who are interested in selling livestock, I think there'll be a lot of that kind of business out there in the next two years," Hammond said. "Again, I have a soft place in my heart for these people, and I'm very interested in them having a good auction."

C. Sherman Allen is owner of C. Sherman Allen Auctioneer & Associates in Conneaut Lake, Pa., and a partner with his brother in a 500-acre dairy farm. A past president of the Northwest Pennsylvania Auctioneers Association, he is also a member of the national, Pennsylvania and Ohio associations. He is active in a number of livestock, farm, fraternal and civic groups.

Howard Hammond is a professional pedigree announcer from Corry, Pa. He is associated with his family's purebred Holstein operation, Concord Ridge Farm, which milks 150 cows. Hammond merchandises dairy cattle worldwide and is involved in the appraisal of cattle for insurance companies and lending institutions.

Keystone Cornucopia

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Since 1981, the State Council of Farm Organizations has been pairing agricultural and food industry leaders with state legislators and policymakers over plates of Pennsylvania produced delicacies. The Keystone Cornucopia has become the premiere food celebration for the agricultural industry.

This year's dinner is scheduled for January 29th at the Harrisburg Marriott Hotel and Resort. Approximately 400 food and agricultural representatives are expected to attend and as many as 100 legislators may join in the festivities. Tickets are still available for $30 (prior to January 19th); call 717-234-5001 to order.

Entertainment at the dinner will be provided by Bryan Deitrich an upper-Dauphin County pianist. The evening's speaker has not been confirmed at this time but will be a key person in agriculture's future. The usual distribution of gift baskets of Pennsylvania products to the legislators will occur directly before the speaker.

The food industry is Pennsylvania's number one industry and the Pennsylvania State Council of Farm Organizations is devoted to promoting that industry. It is comprised of nearly 70 agriculture-related groups, organizations, and businesses. They work toward the solution of mutual problems and the support of constructive agriculture-related legislation.

More information on the Council itself can be obtained from Michelle Snyder, Executive Secretary, PA State Grange, 717-234-5001.

Supreme Title To Angus

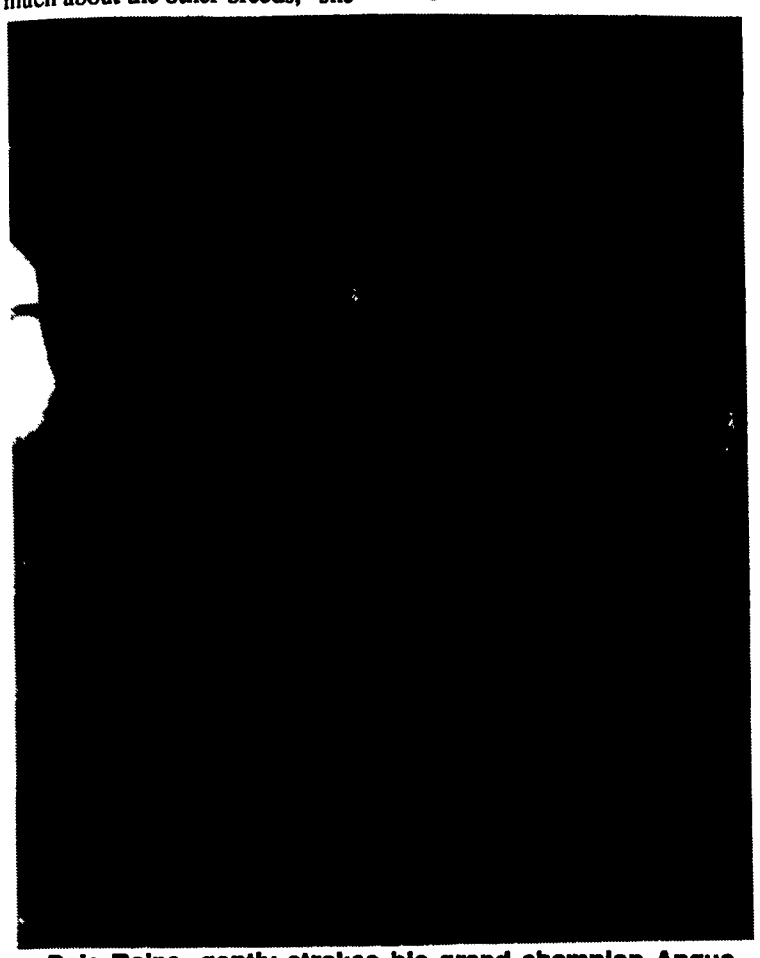
"When I started showing that's what I showed and I am comfortable with the breed. I don't know much about the other breeds," she said.

Calderazzo's show animals also took reserve grand champion bull and placed in some other class competitions.



Dale Rains, gently strokes his grand champion Angus bull, Rains Roadster, while keeping an eye on the judges.

The creation of supreme title was applauded by all exhibitors. However, some in the competition said they didn't feel it was correct to have judged bulls against females to determine supreme. They said that, similar to announcing a king and queen, the sexes should be judged separately; especially since the animals are chosen for breeding qualities.

"I feel they should have two supremes; a supreme male and a female," said Mike Clark of Maple Lane Farm in Lawrence County. "I don't see how you can pick the best animal out of two sexes."

"I feel the same way," added Ed Nicol, also of Maple Lane Farm. "But I do think it's a good thing that they put it in the show."

Maple Lane Farm's top-judged entry, a heifer Limousin was knocked down with eight other cattle during supreme judging.

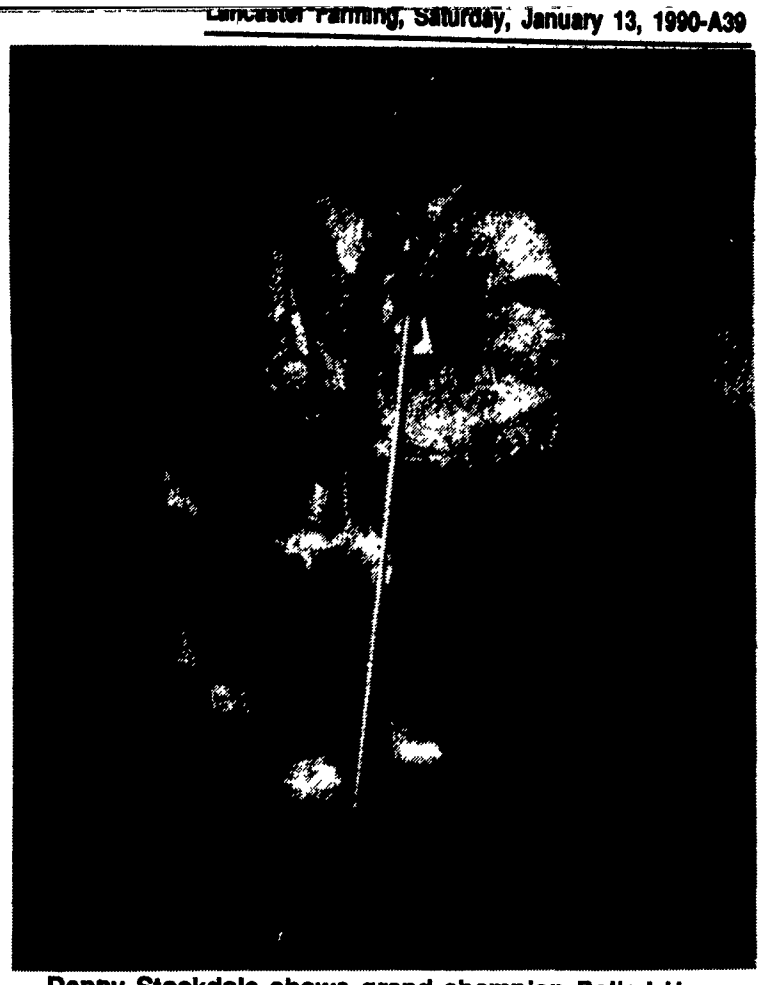
"I'm not disappointed. I would have liked to have it, but we still have the champion of the breed," Nicol said.

Calderazzo said she wasn't ready to take a stand one way or the other as to how judging ought to be done in the future. "It's a very big deal. I'd say it's just nice to have the supreme," she said.

Last year, Farm Show officials had returned to naming a supreme dairy cow, for the first time in more than a decade. The prize money accompanying that title was, and is, $1,000.

This year, officials extended supreme titles to swine, sheep, and beef cattle. The prize money accompanying these other titles is $250.

"I'll probably save it (the $250) for college. I want to major in fashion design," Calderazzo said.



Denny Stockdale shows grand champion Polled Hereford bull, Stone Ridge Knight Fire 80, owned by DRS Polled Hereford, Dover.

Pennsylvania Farm Women Grapple With Change

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — "Will we grow if we do things the way we've always done them?"

That's the question many members of the Society of Farm Women of Pennsylvania ask.

The society held its annual convention on Monday and Tuesday. As usual it was a two-day convention. The day-long Monday session was held in the State Forum concluding with 370 members attending a banquet at the Penn Harris Motor Inn. On Tuesday, 232 members of the 3,611 members registered for the business session in Room E of the State Farm Show Building.

In 1914, Mrs. Frank Black founded the society to strengthen home, community and farm conditions. Then, it was one of few organizations for rural women. But today, with more and more women in careers outside the farm and with fewer farm wives, membership has been dwindling.

An organization with more than 3,500 sounds like a strong base, but most members are retirement age. This past year alone, 49 members died.

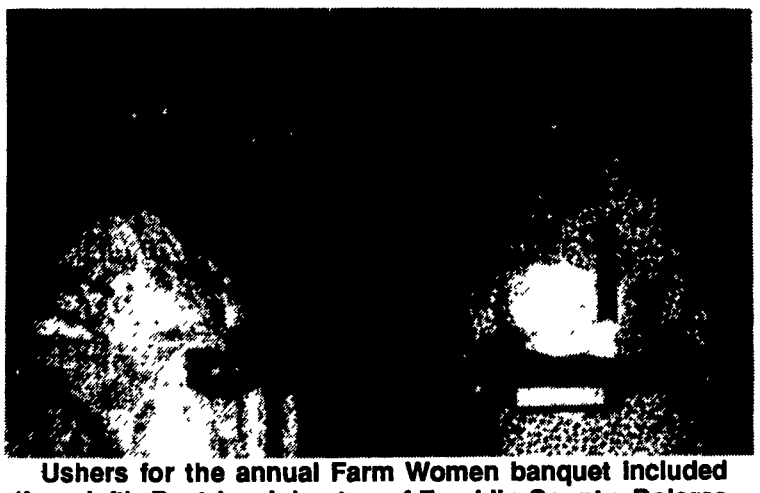
Many expressed concern that the society, which they have known and loved, will continue to dwindle in membership unless changes are made.

Exactly what changes are necessary causes controversial debate.

About half of the voting members believe that the two-day convention should be changed to a one-day convention. This would allow more working women to attend.

But others, like Mary Fizz of Berks County disagree. Mary, who is one of the younger members of the society, said that as a fulltime working woman and a wife and mother, she has had no trouble getting two days off work. She believes that it is a matter of priority. She believes that women benefit from the fellowship of a two-day mini-vacation in January. She, like many others, fear a one-day convention would be too jammed with business to allow time for fellowship.

Officers of the state society include from left, sitting: Catherine Schott, secretary; Arlene Witman, first vice president. Standing, from left: Dorothy Casky, treasurer; Edith Diehl, president; and Dorothy Stricker, second vice president. At the business meeting Catherine Schott was appointed director and Becky Swallow of Somerset County was elected secretary.



Ushers for the annual Farm Women banquet included (from left): Beatrice Johnston of Franklin County, Dolores Hitz of Lebanon County, Darlene Habecker of Lebanon County and Thelma Ommert of Franklin County.

Naomi Bupp (right) installed the following to office: Becky Swallow, secretary; Catherine Schott, director; and Mary Louise McMillen, director.

Some county societies, which travel from distant parts of the state, also disagreed with the proposed change. These societies stay overnight in Harrisburg to attend the two-day event. If it were a one-day affair, they said they would need to leave at 3 a.m. and wouldn't get home until 3 p.m.

The final tally showed 104 in favor of a two-day convention and 115 supporting a one day convention. To change convention by-laws a two-thirds vote is needed. Consequently the two-day convention remains intact.

Many members also desire to change the by-laws to allow county presidents to vote during executive board meetings. Presently seven directors are elected to represent the state and they form the voting body of the executive board. Many agree with Florence Vaitl of Lancaster County. She supports a by-law change that would phase out the directors and allow county presidents to vote. "It's frustrating to sit at an executive meeting, be able to express your opinion but unable to vote," she said.

But 104 other members, like former state president Naomi Bupp, voted to retain the seven directors. She and her followers believe that the directors who are past presidents have more knowledge and maturity to make wise decisions. A large percentage of the members wished to retain the directors and also allow the presidents to vote. But this proposal could not be voted upon since members must be notified 60 days in advance of voting.

Claiming that her gift wrapping has not improved, Arlene Whitman, right, presents an appreciation gift to Catherine Schott for her three year term as secretary.

Members failed to reach a two-thirds agreement and the proposal was thrown out.

Arlene Whitman, first vice president, pointed out that although 49 members died, the net loss to the society members was 17. "So we are adding new members," she

Ida's Notebook

Ida Risser

This is a grey January day as I sit down to write this article. Sometimes it seems that the less we have to do the less we get done. If I had eight people coming for dinner, I'd be busy in the kitchen. Or if I had a bushel of fruit to can, I'd be busy canning it. But, since there is no rush to complete a task in the next hour, I take my time and do little jobs.

My goldfish needs clean water in his bowl, my black kittens need to be fed and a braided rug needs to be repaired. If one dawdles, it is easy to fill a day simply by reading, going to the grocery store, making meals and washing the car. Not one of these things is a bit dramatic.

Every now and then the mailman brings us snapshots of our distant grandchildren. It is a pleasure to see how they are growing. Just last week we got a phone call from Atlanta telling us that we have a new grandchild. Her name is Rebecca and by looking through old records, I find that there was a Rebecca in my family five generations ago but I'm sure that is not why they chose that name.

There are many envelopes of snapshots from the past year that I have not put into a photo album. That will be a good job for a snowy winter day. The ones not chosen for the album will help to fill a camel-back trunk that holds many old wedding photos and pictures of our six babies taken long ago.

I suppose we all need a few days when there is not a lot of pressure to complete specific jobs. Maybe I'll get my watering can and check on my many flowers.

concluded.

Election

In other business, Becky Swallow of Society 12 in Somerset County was elected state secretary. Two new state directors were elected: Catherine Schott of Society 16 in Lebanon County and Mary Louise McMillen of Perry County.

Scholarships were given to Karen Martini of Somerset who is attending Indiana University and Sonja Miller of Dauphin County who is attending Penn State. Each received $500.

Scholarship winners must be children or grandchildren of members and must pursue the field of home economics.

Spring Rally Day is scheduled for May 23 at 10 a.m. held at Dickenson College in Carlise. Societies from Cumberland and Perry Counties are sponsoring the one day event.

Banquet

"If God gives you the gift of gab," Pattee Miller said, "gab it."

With fervor and fiery conviction, Miller encouraged the 370 Farm Women members to recognize that each person is different and to use the gift God gave them. "If you don't use it, you lose," she warned.

Miller, a social worker from Reading, spoke at the 71st annual convention banquet held at the Penn Harris Motor Inn, Harrisburg.

In recognition of their patriotic theme, many members dressed in early settler styles and inserted patriotic trivia into the entertainment.

Romayne Bridgette and Jeryl Metzler entertained the audience with patriotic songs and hymns. Bridgette, a music instructor, told the women that patriotic songs have only been inspired during hard times when freedom was threatened.

Many members of Farm Women have lived through hard times and know what is most important in life—God, country and home.

Founded in 1914, the society stresses the importance of preserving the spirit of patriotism and sacrifice found in pioneer homes and to foster a love for the farm and rural life, to uphold the dignity of farming, and to enhance the charm of a real country home.

On being a farm wife - And other hazards

Joyce Bupp

Beyond the fragile barriers of two panes of clear glass sandwiching dead-air insulation space, this January day is lead-gray and dull. Clouds hang just above the treetops, threating the imminent start of some sort of messy, mid-winter mix of moisture.

But the "in" side of the window barrier boasts an old friend, parked on the windowsill, brightening even the dreariest of such days. Above the plastic pot it displays wide, roundish leaves, crisp and deep green, with a zoned area of a much paler shade. Newer leaves cover the plant's center, displaying almost silvery-colored markings on their smaller surfaces.

Rising through the leaf cover, on slender, reddish stems, are the earliest buds of the cyclamen's annual array of delicate, long-lasting blooms. The tightly-furled buds are suggestive of some species of heron, tiny green heads with giant fushia-colored beaks, perched on an super-skinny neck. At least a dozen and a half of the buds are already poking from the crown of this beauty.

Lack of competition from fields, garden and perennial border during this period of winter dormancy allows for real enjoyment of prized houseplants. The cyclamens' preference for cold temperatures and mid-winter blooms won my affection years ago. My present trio of mature specimens will color the windowsill behind the kitchen sink almost through Easter, while another half-dozen seedlings thrive in the chilly environment of our little greenhouse.

Houseplants become an extension of self when you've had them very long, almost like part of the family. When they behave and perform well, they inspire great pride. Occasionally they frustrate, plagued with infestations, fungi or just a general "blah" look. No, I don't go around talking to each one, but..... well, maybe sometimes.

The lone African violet is waving fat clusters of double royal-purple blooms above its fuzzy leaves, after suffering a summer-long bout of neglect. Its fellow houseplants usually vacation outside or at least bask in the breezes of the open windows. Having wiped out my share of African violets over the year by exposing them to summer breezes, I've learned to shield them from fresh air. A safe spot is also often a forgotten spot; the violet no doubt figured the only way to get any attention was to burst into bloom.

Mission accomplished.

A venerable jade plant summers on the porch but hibernates in the living room. At more than thirty inches high and wide, it's become the housecat's house-bush. She stalks behind it, sulks behind it and uses it as a launch site for guerilla-tactic pouncing at unsuspecting passersby and toy balls left laying on the floor.

Years ago, a small Boston fern found its way here from some fellow plant lover and has reproduced like the proverbial rabbit. When the original waved fronds a yard long and filled a large pot, I butchered it into sections with a large kitchen knife and replanted the sections. Each section in turn followed suit, was attacked with a knife, and on and on.

Likewise with a small palm plant, apparently inspired by the reckless abandon with which the fern family was expanding. Between the ferns and the palms, I've pondered opening a rent-a-plant business.

"Christmas" cacti are just now blooming, save for one plant recently acquired at a church bazaar. Perhaps this particular specimen, with very tiny "crab" foliage segments, is instead a Memorial Day or Halloween cactus. That element of surprise - the unexpected bloom or unusual color - is part of the intrigue of houseplants.

And so are the memories they represent - cascading bridal wreath from our summer wedding, a Mother's Day hanging basket gift, begonias snatched from the icy jaws of frost, and geraniums rescued from storm flooding.

They give so much - and ask so little in return. Show'em you care. Hug your houseplants.

Everything but a cactus.

MICROWAVE MINUTES

By JOYCE BATTCHER

Yes, you can make old-fashioned bean soup in your microwave. But to speed things, use lentils instead of navy beans. Your soup will have the same flavor but will be done in about an hour.

Lentils (and split peas) are the smallest and softest legumes, so they need the shortest soaking and cooking times. Many microwave recipes omit soaking for these tenderest of legumes, but I've found soaking produces lentils that are tender all the way through. Not soaking produces lentils with a little "bite" or texture. Try today's recipes with and without soaking to see which best suits your taste.

To soak, cover rinsed lentils or split peas with fresh cold water and let them stand overnight or about 12 hours. To save time: Place lentils and water in a large microwave-safe casserole, cover, microwave until boiling, and let stand, covered, 30 minutes.

Cook lentils in the soaking water for greatest nutrient retention — especially when using the quick-soak method. With the overnight method, you may want to drain the lentils and add fresh cooking water. Draining off the soaking water drains away carbohydrate substances that cause gas to form during digestion.

Cooking time varies. Cook lentils until completely tender before adding salt and acid ingredients, such as tomatoes. For slow-cooked flavor, seasoning ingredients — such as onion, celery leaves, and herbs — may be added at the beginning of cooking.

Today's recipes give you choices: to soak, or not soak; to drain or not drain; to cook with cut-up meat or with soup bones. Any of the options you choose will produce a hearty and nutritious soup for the cold winter days ahead.

French Country Lentil Soup

2½ cups (1 pound) dried lentils
7 cups hot water, divided
1 pound smoked pork hocks or small shank-end of smoked ham
2 stalks celery with leaves
1 medium onion, chopped
1 clove garlic, minced
½ teaspoon dried thyme
2 medium carrots, thinly sliced
1 can (16 ounces) cut tomatoes in tomato sauce
Salt and pepper
½ cup minced fresh parsley

Rinse lentils with cold running water and discard any stones or shriveled lentils. If desired, soak according to directions below.

If possible, cut apart hocks or cut off large chunks of meat from ham bone. Separate celery from leaves; chop leaves and reserve. Thinly slice celery and reserve.

In a microwave-safe 4- to 5-quart casserole, combine lentils, 5 cups of water, onion, celery leaves, garlic and thyme. Add smoked pork hocks or ham bone and meat, pushing them down into water. Microwave (High), covered with lid, 35 to 45 minutes, stirring once, or until lentils and meat are tender. Cut meat from bones and return meat to soup. Add remaining 2 cups water, sliced celery, carrots and undrained tomatoes. Re-cover and microwave (High) 15 to 20 minutes or until vegetables are tender. Season to taste with salt and pepper. Right before serving, stir in parsley. May be frozen. Makes 10 to 12 servings.

Note: If desired at end of cooking, mash some of the lentils (or puree in blender or food processor) to thicken soup.

Each serving — 1/12 of recipe: 127 calories, 10g protein, 4g fat, 20g carbohydrate, 285mg sodium, 8mg cholesterol.

With cooked ham: Cook about 25 to 30 minutes or until lentils are tender. Stir in remaining ingredients, along with 2 cups diced smoked ham. Add more seasonings.

For lower sodium: Substitute chicken pieces or cooked chicken, following cooked ham variation (above). Taste and add more herbs or no-salt seasonings. (Note: Do not substitute turkey ham for regular pork ham if you're trying to reduce sodium — both contain about the same amount of sodium. For the traditional ham flavor, but less sodium, try one of the lower-sodium hams available.)

Soaking lentils or split peas -

Cover rinsed lentils or split peas with about 6 cups fresh cold water and let them stand overnight or about 12 hours. Refrigerate (covered) to prevent fermentation if your kitchen is very warm.

Quick soak: Place lentils and 5 cups water in a microwave-safe 4- to 5-quart casserole; cover with lid. Microwave (High) 10 to 12 minutes or until boiling. Let stand, covered, 30 minutes. (For harder legumes, such as navy, pea, kidney, pink, white or black beans, let stand in hot water for 1 to 2 hours.)

Split Pea Soup

2½ cups (1 pound) dried split peas
8 cups hot water, divided
1 medium onion, chopped
½ teaspoon dried basil
1 large bay leaf
½ teaspoon dried marjoram
2 teaspoons instant chicken bouillon granules or 2 cubes
2 cups diced smoked ham
1 or 2 stalks celery and leaves, thinly sliced
2 large carrots, thinly sliced
2 medium potatoes, thinly sliced
Salt and pepper

Rinse split peas with running cold water and discard any stones or shriveled peas. If desired, soak according to directions above.

Combine peas, 5 cups of water, onion, celery, herbs and bouillon granules in a microwave-safe 4- to 5-quart casserole, Microwave (High), covered with lid, 30 to 35 minutes, stirring once, until peas are tender. Add remaining 3 cups water, ham, celery, carrots and potatoes. Re-cover and microwave (High), covered, 15 to 20 minutes or until vegetables are tender. Season to taste with salt and pepper. Remove bay leaf. Makes 10 to 12 servings.

With bacon: Microwave 8 slices of diced lean bacon in casserole; add other ingredients and continue as above, omitting ham and chicken bouillon granules.

With smoked pork hocks or small shank ham: Add 1 pound smoked pork hocks or ham shank to split pea mixture, pushing bones into water. (If possible, first cut apart hocks or cut off large chunks of meat from ham bone.) Microwave (High), covered with lid, 35 to 45 minutes, stirring once, or until peas and meat are tender. Cut meat from bones and add return meat to soup, along with water and vegetables. Continue as above.

Potatoes—America's Favorite Vegetable

Recently I read that fresh potatoes are making a comeback. In my family, potatoes never lost their popularity for appearing as a complimentary dish to almost every dinner. The versatile potato can be made and seasoned in so many different ways that we never tire of eating it.

We obviously aren't the only people who love potatoes, the potato stand at the Farm Show is jammed with eager customers who stand in line for as long as 15 minutes to get either French fries or a baked potato.

For taste, recipes are hard to compete with the traditional baked, mashed or whole potato topped with brown butter, but the variety definitely adds enjoyment to those who consider the potato a basic part of their diet.

A medium-sized potato contains about 116 calories, according to the U.S. Agriculture Department, has no cholesterol, is low in both sodium and fat, and rich in the B vitamins and vitamins C and K.

CHEESE POTATOES

1 large bag country style frozen potatoes
4 tablespoons butter
4 tablespoons flour
2 cups milk
8 ounces shredded cheese

Melt butter, blend in flour, add milk and microwave until thick and bubbly. Pour half the cheese into the hot sauce. Stir until melted. Put potatoes in a 9x13-inch pan. Pour cheese sauce over potatoes and sprinkle the remainder on top. Bake, covered, at 350 degrees for 15 minutes. Uncover and bake 25 more minutes.

Minnie Schlegel of Fleetwood, Berks County, captured first place in Saturday's second annual Blue Ribbon Apple Pie Contest at the 74th Pennsylvania Farm Show.

Representing the 1989 Reading Fair, Mrs. Schlegel earned $100 for her Creamy Apple Pie. The recipe she submitted was nearly identical to her Bavarian Apple Pie which placed second last year.

Fifty-nine contestants brought or sent pies for the contest, open only to top individuals who were first place winners in the apple pie class at their local fair during 1989. Judging was based on overall appearance, crust and filling.

Second place in the contest went to the York Inter-State Fair apple pie winner, Belinda Myers of Dallastown. She earned $60 for her pie called Peachy Apple Pie.

Third prize and $40 went to the representative from the Big Butler Fair, Shirley Hulihan of Slippery Rock. Her pie was called Breakfast Apple Pork Pie with a Cheddar Cheese Crust.

Cook's Question Corner

If you are looking for a recipe but can't seem to find it anywhere, send your recipe request to Cook's Question Corner, in care of Lancaster Farming, P.O. Box 609, Ephrata, PA 17522. There's no need to send a SASE. If we receive an answer to your question, we will publish it as soon as possible.

Answers to recipe requests should be sent to the same address.

QUESTION — Sherri Meily, Mt. Union, requests a recipe for making pepperoni sticks by using ground deer meat.

QUESTION — Linda Adam would like a recipe for making yogurt-covered pretzels and nuts like those you buy in grocery stores.

QUESTION — Dorothy McQuade, McConnellsburg, requests a recipe for a nut cake that has several kinds of nuts in it and is baked in an angel food cake pan. The cake is often used in place of fruit cake.

QUESTION — Phyline Northeimer of Narvon requests a recipe for preserving eggs in a "water glass solution." She said that her mother kept uncooked eggs for many months in this solution.

QUESTION — Madison, NJ, resident Hazel Doherty recently visited Pennsylvania and was served a boneless rolled pork roast called porketta. She'd like to know the seasonings used on the roast.

QUESTION — Cindy Stahl of Lititz asks for a vanilla frosting recipe to ice sugar cookies. She wants the icing to be fluffy but to harden slightly on top so it does not stick to plastic wrap when covered or that it would not come off when the cookies are stacked loosely.

QUESTION — Karen Zimmerman, Myerstown, asks for a good recipe for split pea soup and other recipes using split peas.

QUESTION — Carol Hoch of Berrysburg writes that she tried the recipe for granola bars submitted by Karen Zimmerman. Carol said the mixture tastes delicious, but it did not harden and needed to be eaten with a spoon. Please Karen or someone write and tell us if the mixture needs to be cooked to create a taffy-consistency so that it stays in bar form.

ANSWER — An anonymous reader said that she has weevils in her kitchen cabinets, flour, biscuit mix and other items and wanted to know how to get rid of them. Thanks to D. Keeny, Lancaster, who suggests that she purchase bay leaves and place them on her shelves and in boxed items such as cornmeal, oatmeal, pancake mix, etc.

Thanks to Mrs. Gary Martin of Hagerstown, Md., who writes that weevils love grain products including pasta, rice and crackers. They will also get into spices and jello. To get rid of them, completely empty out your cabinets. Throw away everything that looks suspicious. Watch for bugs, worms or webs. Spray the inside of cabinets with a good insect spray. Close tightly and let stand empty for a day or two. Buy fresh products and store them in plastic containers with tight snap or screw on lids. If you buy in bulk, store the bags in your freezer. This is especially important during hot weather. Since weevils are attracted to stale, seldom-used products, try to use products within a few months of purchase.

Kid's Korner

These Fellows Pedalled For Tractor Prizes

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — "Come on. Keep pushing!" the crowd screamed.

The contestants at the Farm Show tractor pull pushed, grunted and groaned as the strained their leg muscles.

Even when they crossed that finish line, they kept pedalling. They knew the prizes were awarded to those who went the farthest.

Three-year-old Andrew Grove said that he rides his tractor at home a lot. After reading about the event in Lancaster Farming, Andrew pulled on his work boots and his bib overalls. With his John Deere cap perched on his head, Andrew was raring to pedal.

He volunteered to give the tractor a trial run so that the contest officials could make sure everything was set properly.

After pedalling down the coarse twice, Andrew said his legs were really tired. But all his hard work paid off, for Andrew won second place in the 3- to 4-year-old competition and got to take a toy tractor home with him.

Eight-year-old winners had their formula for success figured out. Derick Carlise of Washington County had won at other tractor pulls. The son of Dave and Barb Carlisle credited his success to experience.

Ryan Garber who lives in Mount Joy with his parents Phil and Cindy said he won because, "I eat a lot."

Third prize winner, Chad Kuzemchak from Clymer in Indiana County said, "I drink milk, pedal my bike and jog."

The son of Jim and Patty Kuzemchak, Chad said that he had to come because his brother won last year—maybe it runs in the family.

At the tractor pull competition, I learned that many of you are reading Kid's Korner. That's how many of you found out about the tractor pull. It was fun talking with you and hearing you say that you like to read this page.

This was the second year that the Farm Show offered a tractor pull for kids ages three to eight.

Twenty kids were allowed to enter in the three divisions. Unfortunately, some didn't get to compete because the classes were filled. So next year, don't wait until you get there to register. Send your registration in the mail.

The tractor pull would not be possible if many people did not volunteer time and prizes. If you enjoyed the tractor pull, thank the following sponsors.

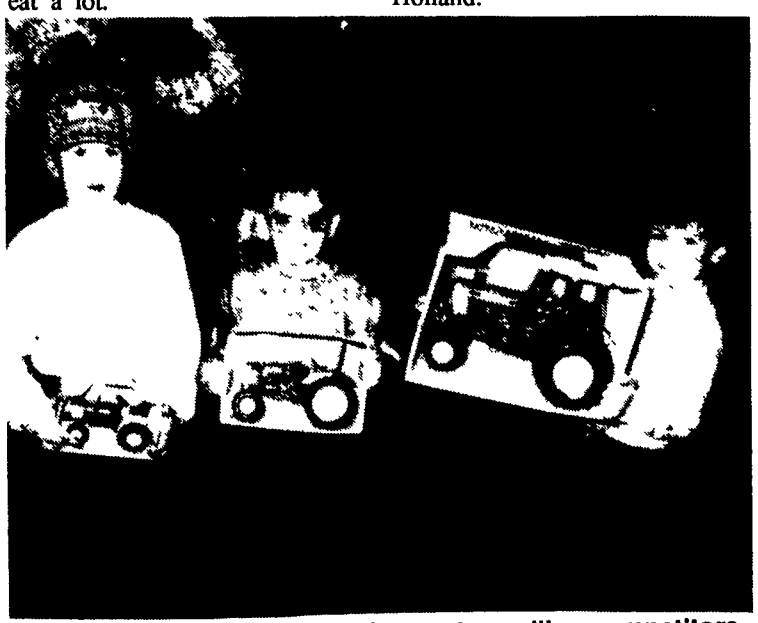
The three- to four-year-old division, was sponsored and given prizes by Foremost Lawn Equipment, Harrisburg.

Lancaster Ford Tractor sponsored and awarded prizes in the five to six year-old division.

Dave Nolt, who collects farm toys for a hobby, sponsored the seven- to eight-year-old division. Prizes were given by Ford New Holland.

Strong leg muscles enabled these eight-year-olds to claim tractor prizes in the seven- to eight-year-old division. From left: Ryan Garber, second-place; Derick Carlise, first-place; and Chad Kuzemchak, third-place.

These fellows are all smiles after pedalling their way to claim the top places in the the three- to four-year-old division in the tractor pull. From left: Andrew Grove, second-place; Jared Ellis, first place and Charlie Book, third place.



It was an all-male victory for tractor pulling competitors at the Farm Show on Sunday. Winners in the 5- to 6-year-old category included (from right): Christopher Bennetch, first prize; Bobby Yonce, second prize; and Matthew Brumbaugh, third.

Did you hear this fellow singing his happy tunes about the goodness of milk?

It's Colonel Beeauregard, a banjo-playing confederate sheepdog, who as a six-foot tall robot performed several talking and musical presentations at the Dairy Promotion Booth.

TAKING TIME

by Rebecca Wolf

Editor's Note: Rebecca Wolfe is a home economist with Penn State Cooperative Extension in Lehigh County. Her column replaces "Back Home" written by Michelle Rodgers. Michelle, promoted to assistant regional director for the Capitol region, no longer has time to write the column.

Rebecca writes: When I was invited to share some thoughts with you about today's family, the stresses it faces and the ways we can strengthen it, I considered many approaches. But above all others, the recurring thought was: "Quality family life is a matter of taking time"-- time to listen to a child, time to unwind after a stressful day at work, time to plan a major purchase, time to create a romantic surprise for a spouse. I hope that you will enjoy this column, and I hope that the thoughts I share with you during the coming months will encourage you to take time for yourself and your family.

Will You Read Me A Story?

This past holiday I spent some time at my parents' home and enjoyed a bit of nostalgia as I read a book that my Mom used to read to me each holiday season. What happy memories it brought to mind!

I also thought about a comment my friend had told me recently, "There's going to be no such thing as books for kids growing up today... just TV and videos."

Do you remember during story time as a child nestling in the arms of a loving adult and finding yourself magically carried to the imaginary world of your storybook? The winter months provide an ideal time for you to renew that tradition with your own family.

Not only is reading aloud a good activity for family time, it also promotes development of a young child's language, imagination, observation skills, and attention span. This is one of the best things a parent can do to help a child succeed in school. Reading together also allows a parent to reinforce values and communicate love to the rest of the family.

Reading can be fun for people of all ages. As your family grows, allow children to read to you or read silently to themselves. Remember, your example speaks louder than words. When is the last time you read a book JUST FOR FUN?

Here are some suggestions for your family?

With toddlers and preschoolers:

Allow them to sit close to you and look at the pictures. Encourage interruptions for questions or for a second look at a page. The youngest children will simply enjoy browsing through books. They are fascinated with the hinge action of the binding. The fun of "reading" a book is in turning pages, opening and closing the cover, and looking at the pictures. (Don't be surprised if they also want to chew the covers!)

Two to four year olds enjoy fast-paced books with rhyme, rhythm, and repitition. They love participation books and books with exaggeration. Try Hand, Hand, Fingers, Thumb and others by Dr. Seuss or The Day Jimmy's Boa Ate the Wash by Trinka Hakes Noble.

With elementary school-aged children:

Select books about real-life situations. The House on Maple Street by Bonnie Pryor and The Mare on the Hill by Thomas Locker are two good stories to share with these children. Children this age still enjoy listening to you read. They can scratch your back, paste trading stamps in a book, or draw while listening.

With young teens:

These individuals often have hobbies. The Eyewitness Books published by Alfred A. Knopf help them explore a variety of topics. The Tripod Trilogy by John Christopher, Matilda by Ronald Dahl, and Where the Red Fern Grows by Wilson Rawls offer a mixture of humor, adventure and sorrow.

With adolescents:

Teens enjoy books about relationships -- love, friendships, and families. Look for books about the challenges of growing up. You may also encourage a teen's reading by giving him or her a magazine subscription.

Suggestions for the entire family:

- Limit TV watching. Avoid making it look like reading together is taking away TV time by saying, "The TV set goes off at 8:30. If you want a story read before bed, that's fine. If not, that's fine, too. But no TV after 8:30."
- Make a trip to the public library a part of your family's routine. If you need help, ask the librarian for suggestions.
- Don't just read books. Also read newspapers, package labels, lyrics on CD covers, advertisements.
- Give books as gifts. Mail one to a friend in a distant town. You can frequently buy used books inexpensively. You can also sell or donate your books to others once you've read them.

Want to create memories that last? Want to invest in your child's future? Want to remind yourself about the lighter side of life? Take time this week to read with your family.

Flour Is The Foundation

Imagine a world without cookies, bread, cake doughnuts, pretzels, spaghetti, biscuits, pies, pancakes, muffins, pizza, waffles, or rolls! What an untasty picture!

Happily, North America's reputation for bountiful harvests rests in a large measure on the magnificent wheat crops grown on millions of fertile acres. There are essentially two kinds of wheat grown: hard and soft. (A third wheat, important to the American diet but not to most homemakers, is a hard wheat variety called durum, which is used in making pastas.)

Experienced bakers know there is not one particular flour best for all types of baking. Various flours have different characteristics making each more suited for one product than another. How, then, does the novice choose a flour most suited to her purpose? The key to flour differences is gluten - formed when the water soluble proteins present in wheat are combined by manipulation in the presence of a liquid. The variation of protein content in each type of wheat correlates with the baking characteristics of a particular flour. The amount of protein present in a flour determines the amount of gluten which can be developed and this determines the suitability of each type of flour for various baked products.

Hard wheat, grown on western prairie land, has a high gluten content and is milled into "bread" flour. Hard wheat flour has great elasticity that allows it to be stretched and rolled into an incredibly thin sheet for strudel or phyllo, or folded and rolled again and again to make puff pastry and Danish dough.

Bread flour has returned to the shelves of supermarkets after an absence of two generations. If bread flour is scarce in your market, you may substitute "unbleached" flour. This flour is bleached in an aging rather than a chemical process, and it is milled from a blend of hard wheats.

Soft wheat, grown in the milder regions of middle and eastern America, produces a flour lower in gluten, one that is ideal for baking such products as pastries, crackers, pretzels, cookies and cakes. At the lower end of the gluten scale is "cake" flour. It has only enough gluten to hold the cake together in the oven while a delicate and tender, yet stable, structure of cells is firmed. A little higher up the gluten scale is "pastry" flour, which is ideal for pie and tart doughs because it can tolerate a considerable amount of fat, such as butter, lard or margarine, without becoming tough. If you cannot find pastry flour on your supermarket shelves, a satisfactory substitute can be blended at home with 60 percent cake flour and 40 percent bread or unbleached flour.

At mid-range on the gluten scale is "all-purpose" flour, a blend of soft wheat flours, which has been developed by the nation's millers to take care of a wide range of baking needs — from breads and biscuits to pies and cakes. It can be substituted for other flours in recipes that call for bread flour or pastry flour. It will not rise as high as bread flour or be as tender as pastry flour, but it is a worthy substitute.

It is easy to check the protein or gluten content of a flour by looking at the paragraph of nutritional information on the package. Although figures vary somewhat from brand to brand and mill to mill, here is the range: bread flour, 14 percent; unbleached, 12 percent; all-purpose, 11 percent; pastry, 8 percent; and cake, 7 percent.

Flour freezes and keeps for periods of a year or more. If you have extra freezer space, watch supermarket shelves for bargains.

A final and important note about flour: For all doughs, the measurement of one of two ingredients must be taken as approximate — the flour or the liquid. The ability of the flour to absorb moisture varies from harvest to harvest, bag to bag and month to month as the humidity changes and the flour absorbs or releases moisture.

If a recipe calls for a precise amount of flour, the liquid must be added carefully so as not to overload the flour. If the recipe calls for a precise amount of water, add the last portion of the flour slowly and carefully. It is better to have a moist dough that will stiffen in your refrigerator than a hard and unforgiving cannonball for which there is no hope.

In batters, the measurement of flour and liquid can be precise. The determining factor then becomes the length of time the dough will be in the oven. The burden rests on the temperaature and the length of oven time to correct any imbalance there is in the moisture of the dough.

Family Day Draws Record Crowd

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — An enthusiastic crowd cheered as bucking steers threw their riders to the ground and cowgirls competed during barrel races at the Farm Show on Family Day.

During the 10 rodeo events, it was standing room only in the large arena that seats 9,000.

Chris Herr, in charge of the family day activities observed, "People are catching on to family day and anticipate a day of fun on the opening day of Farm Show.

Many savor the memory of the rodeo, garden tractor olympic and kiddie tractor pull held during family day activities.

To pull off such a successful event took a lot of people, Herr said. He mainly comes up with the ideas, puts someone in charge and coordinates the events.

Last year was the first for Farm Show Family Day. Herr said, "I heard they were going to turn off the arena's lights after the governor's speech and I thought that was a crime. I asked if I could plan some activities as a test to see how things went."

Things went well. So well, that more events were added this year.

Herr said he was fortunate to live in a family that showed sheep all over the country. Herr is the son of Dr. and Mrs. Robert Herr of Nix Besser Farm in Narvon. Their showing exposed him to the big draws of fairs in the West and Mid West.

"Rodeos especially are big draws," Herr noted. He invited the top three high school competitors for the Sunday event.

The barnyard petting zoo was back by popular demand. Herr said, "It's the most asked about event at the Farm Show. We couldn't get away without doing it again. Farm people might think the petting zoo isn't too important but it gives many kids their first opportunity to meet face to face with animals.

Jan Marchezak of Washington County took charge of the barnyard zoo where 125 farm animals participated.

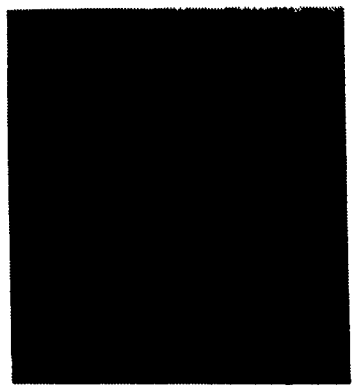
David Nolt of Paradise in Lancaster County contacted sponsors and obtained prizes for the kiddie tractor pull. Contestants from three to eight pedalled toy tractors with a weighted sled attached to win the race.

Celebrities and politicians participated in an obstacle course in the garden tractor olympics. Outfitted in bibbed overalls and hats, contestants steered a garden tractor through a course of everyday farm activities. They milked a goat, penned in the ducks, backed a tractor into the barn and loaded manure on a wagon.

"These activities offer more appreciation for agriculture," Herr said. "It's a tremendous educational tool for informing the public."

Herr is pleased that 80,000 people flocked to the Farm Show. He said, "I was always taught that if I do something, I should do it 100 percent or not at all."

But Herr is quick to add that success would not have been possible without the support of the Deputy Secretary and Chuck Kline, Farm Show director.



Chris Herr

Herr has the distinction of attending every Pennsylvania Farm Show since his birth 28 years ago. He said, "I've always had a personal interest in Farm Show and in agriculture and I'm glad to help inform the public of the importance of agriculture.

"Can we take these guys home?" The daughters of John and Jewel Campbell, Rachael, 8; and Rebekah, 5, from Quarryville believe sheep could be delightful pets.

Food Pantry Features PA Products

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Governor Robert Casey and Secretary of Agriculture Boyd Wolff cut the blue ribbon Sunday on the all-new Pennsylvania Food Pantry at the 74th Pennsylvania Farm Show.

Statewide commodity associations assisted Department of Agriculture officials in creating the concept of the new exhibit, showcase of Pennsylvania's vital food processing industry. Located in the west lobby of the Farm Show Complex, the display features hundreds of products processed in Pennsylvania.

The new exhibit was created to heighten consumer awareness about the economic importance of Pennsylvania's 2,000 food processors and the many wonderful products made in the keystone state.

Cooking demonstrations were held daily through Thursday in the Food Pantry. Chefs demonstrated many healthy and nutritious food preparation techniques featuring showcased products.

Mike McGovern, executive director of the Pennsylvania Bakers Association said, "The Pantry gives consumers the opportunity to see all the wonderful commodities produced at the end of the food chain. It's all possible because of the hard work of our agricultural community."

Franklin County Dairy Farmers Featured

LOUISVILLE, KY — Doug and Julie Martin, dairy farmers from Chambersburg, were among representatives of seven Dairymen Inc. divisions participating in the Outstanding Young Dairymen Program during Dairymen's 21st Annual Meeting, held recently in Atlanta, Ga.

Selected as the cooperative's overall Outstanding Young Dairymen were David and Mary Scott Fisher, representing the Old Dominion Division.

Dairymen Inc. is a regional milk and dairy products marketing cooperative headquartered in Louisville, Ky., and is owned by more than 5,200 member-farmers in 17 mid-Atlantic, southeastern and midwestern states.

The co-op's Young Dairymen organization, with more than 1,000 active members between the ages of 18 and 35, allows dairy farmers to gain a better understanding of their cooperative through a variety of programs, and helps them grow and learn more about problem-solving and decision-making on the farm.

Each year, Dairymen sponsors its Outstanding Young Dairymen program at the co-op's annual meeting. Again this year, the overall Outstanding Young Dairymen will represent the cooperative and the dairy industry at national dairy meetings.

The Martins, who represent the cooperative's Middle Atlantic Division, milk 200 registered Jersey cows at their Franklin County farm.

Dairymen's Annual Meeting in Atlanta attracted some 2,200 members. During the two days of meetings, they listened to reports from Dairymen's directors and top management on the cooperative's successes the past fiscal year and the challenges and opportunities for members and their co-op this fiscal year.

Tree Windbreaks Help Reduce Winter Fuel Bills

UNIVERSITY PARK, PA (Centre Co.) — Homeowners who are turning blue from rising winter heating bills may want to start planning where to plant a tree windbreak to lower future energy costs.

Dr. Gordon Heisler, Penn State adjunct professor of forest resources and research forest meteorologist with the Northeastern Forest Experiment Station of the U.S. Forest Service, has conducted research to determine the effect trees have on houses and other buildings. He and Dr. David DeWalle, Penn State professor of forest hydrology, have found that tree windbreaks typically can save 10 to 12 percent or more of the energy used to heat a home.

"Other studies have found savings as high as 40 percent, though that figure may be a bit optimistic for the average home," said Heisler. "However, it's clear that a well-planned windbreak can reduce wind velocity and heat loss while beautifying a yard at the same time."

To grow a winter windbreak, Heisler suggests planting a row of coniferous trees on the side of the house exposed to prevailing winter winds. "In most of the United States, these winds come from the north and west, so windbreaks usually are most effective on these sides of a house."

Nearby hills and mountains can cause variations in weather patterns, and Heisler recommends noting the direction of prevailing winter winds before planting. He also suggests contacting weather services or airports to gain similar information.

Heisler also said the National Climatic Center in Ashville, North Carolina, can provide interested individuals with prevailing wind patterns for particular areas. The center can be reached at (704) 259-0682.

"Though savings increase as the protected perimeter increases, just a few well-planned conifers will make a difference to a house that's currently exposed," he said. "They should be planted about 50 feet on the east and west sides of the house. On the north side, closer windbreaks will be more efficient. On the south side, windbreaks should be far enough from the house to allow winter sunlight to reach it."

The researchers note that any conifer will provide adequate protection from winds. "First, check which species grow best in your areas," said Heisler. "In general, choose fast-growing, visually dense species with stiff branches. Norway, White, and Colorado blue spruce are among the best windbreak trees.

"Blue spruce is perhaps the densest, but it grows more slowly than the other varieties. Fast-growing trees will begin saving fuel costs more quickly. Pine and spruce should be planted about six feet apart and cedar and arborvitae should be about three feet apart. Planting trees farther apart reduces their effectiveness for blocking wind."

Heisler said that a single row of dense conifers will provide an adequate windbreak, although efficiency may increase with 1 to 4 added rows. Generally, 1 or 2 rows is most cost-effective.

Lower branches should not be pruned, for this can increase wind speed near the ground rather than reduce it. Homeowners also should avoid planting windbreaks directly upwind of driveways and sidewalks to avoid nuisance snowdrifts.

Finally, homeowners should consider a windbreak's effects on summer weather. "If your home is not air conditioned, don't block the direction most of the summer breezes come from," said Heisler.

Crops, Dairy Days Feature Important Farm Topics

The Tri-County Dairy/Crops Fair for Clearfield, Elk, and Jefferson counties will be held on January 24, 1990 at the Ramada Inn in DuBois. The day-long program will begin at 9:00 a.m. with registration. There is a $6.50 registration fee, which includes lunch.

There will be several businesses setting up displays of their services for farmers. Time is built into the program for farmers to learn more about the services offered.

The program begins at 9:30 a.m. and concludes at 4:00 p.m. Speakers will include Steve Spencer, Penn State Dairy Extension, discussing milking equipment and mastitis; Dennis Calvin, Penn State Entomology Department, discussing insect problems in field crops; John Yocum, Penn State Agronomy Department, will discuss the growing of soybeans and weed control in field crops; Susan DuFour, county extension agent, will discuss the issue of BST; and Dave Gordon, multi county Extension agent, will discuss pesticides in water and the testing for these substances. The concurrent program this year for women is "Stress- Tapping Your Resources." It will be presented by Nancy Covert, county extension director.

Pre registration must be made by Wednesday, January 17, 1990. To register or receive further information, contact the Clearfield County Cooperative Extension office.

Lebanon County Places First For Rural, Urban Understanding

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — For the second consecutive year, the Lebanon County Farm-City Week Committee placed first among statewide organizations in their year-round efforts to promote rural and urban understanding.

The Lebanon County Committee, chaired by James Grosh of Annville, narrowly edged out the Franklin County Farm-City Week Committee, chaired by Dalton Paul. Third place went to the Lancaster County Farmers Association for their yearlong efforts, recorded by Kendy Allen.

Activities conducted by the Lebanon County Committee during 1989 included a job exchange between farmers and city business people, a media breakfast, senior citizen and student farm tours, leadership discussion, farmers tour business and businesses tour farms, food baskets for poor and elderly, and their annual Farm-City Week Banquet.

Lebanon County also sponsored a mall show featuring appearances by commodity representatives, agricultural organization displays, a trout and a chick hatchery, ice cream coupon distribution, kiddie tractor pull, agricultural product demonstrations and contests.

Franklin County's efforts included an agricultural exposition at the Chambersburg Mall, farm tour, pumpkin caper, children's poster contest, job exchange, annual banquet, award presentations and speakers bureau.

Other innovative approaches practiced around the state included the local buy Blair County agricultural products campaign, the mall events in Washington County, the Business Family Awards and Farm-City Week Banner strung across town in Mifflin County, farm family awards, public service announcements and Congressional visits.

The Lebanon County Committee, by virtue of their win, has earned the opportunity to host next year's statewide Farm-City Week kickoff luncheon. Next year's Farm-City Week Celebration is slated for November 15-21, 1990.

Secretary Wolff encouraged more local organizations to enter the annual contest. Nominations should be submitted to the Pennsylvania Farm-City Council by December 15. Further information is available by calling 717-540-9300.

Clean Water Awards To Six Pennsylvania Farmers

GRANTVILLE (Dauphin Co.)— State Environmental Resources Secretary Arthur A. Davis and Agriculture Secretary Boyd E. Wolff recently presented Chesapeake Bay Clean Water awards to six Pennsylvania farmers for their efforts to control agricultural runoff that contributes to pollution of the bay.

"These farmers represent the very best in Pennsylvania's family farm tradition," Davis said. "Not only are they protecting and enhancing the environment here in Pennsylvania, but these farmers have taken significant measures to reduce the amount of nutrient and sediment pollution reaching our nation's coastal waterways."

Davis said that Pennsylvania contributes more than 50 percent of the freshwater entering the Chesapeake Bay through the Susquehanna and Potomac river basins and smaller watersheds.

Since 1985, the state has committed more than $11 millin in funding for the Pennsylvania Chesapeake Bay Program to provide financial and technical assistance to farmers to reduce nonpoint source pollution through improved farm conservation management practices.

Gov. Robert P. Casey furthered the Commonwealth's commitment to protect the bay by signing the Chesapeake Bay agreement with the governors of Maryland and Virginia, and the mayor of Washington, D.C. in 1987.

"Agriculture is the Commonwealth's leading industry," Wolff said. "The farmers honored today prove that what is good for the environment also can be good for business."

More than 345 Pennsylvania farmers in 28 counties participate in the bay program through county conservation district offices. The program pays up to 80 percent of the cost of soil erosion and nutrient management improvements, including manure storage facilities, terracing, crop rotation plans, diversion ditches, grass waterways, erosion and sediment controls and soil testing.

Since 1986, the annual Clean Water Farm Awards have recognized efforts by farmers to reduce agricultural non-point source pollution in Pennsylvania's portion of the Chesapeake Bay watershed.

For more information on the awards or the state-funded financial assistance programs, contact the Chesapeake Bay Education Office, 225 Pine Street, Harrisburg, Pennsylvania 17101, or call 717-236-1006.

Master Farmer Awards Made On Tuesday

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Tuesday is Master Farmers Day at the 74th Pennsylvania State Farm Show in Harrisburg, in honor of six Mid-Atlantic farmers for their high achievement in farming and public service.

In the 56th regional competition, eight individuals representing six farm operations received Master Farmer Awards during a Farm Show luncheon for agriculture leaders at the Penn Harris Motor Inn in Camp Hill.

The Master Farmer program is unique and important because its recipients emphasize commitment not only to farming, but also to the industry and community. Nearly 250 nominees submitted extensive applications for the program.

This year's Master Farmers are:

William Brown, Browncroft Farm, Rome, Bedford County Careful attention to feeding is Brown's secret for his record-setting dairy herd. His 31 registered Holsteins had top average butterfat for DHIA in Pennsylvania the last three years with a 1045-pound average for 1989.

William England, Weeping Hollow Farm, Williamsburg, Blair County Since England purchased his first computer, electronic technology has taken on many jobs around the dairy farm. He turns to his computer more and more to spot production problems and analyze farm business decisions.

J. Paul Espy of Tyrone, Huntingdon County Espy has always been a hard worker, a hard driver and a manager who knows how to get top dollar for his cattle. He started and built his business to make a living and makes it work. He knows where his cattle come from and what to expect when they arrive.

William and Walter Hopkins of Sussex County, Delaware This father and son team are enjoying the fruits of good dairying. They had Delaware's top DHIA herd of more than 150 cows.

William and Marian Cadwallader of Salem County, New Jersey The Cadwalladers built an operation that now includes 330 acres and 300 registered Holstein cows and heifers.

Richard Brandenburg of Jefferson, Maryland Brandenburg feeds the dairy herd and manages the field work at R.B. Farms, a considerable job with 1,058 acres planted to corn, wheat, soybeans, hay and barley. His wife and daughter milk the cows and raise the calves.

The Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture has approved the conference as an update training session for pesticide certification renewal for private and public applicators. Applicators will receive two core credits toward certification renewal.

Highlighting the conference will be a panel discussion on "Topics in the News." Discussion topics will include the Perry Township piggery ordinance, sewage sludge application on farmland, farmland preservation, and wetlands and agriculture. Other topics to be covered include new tillage tools, farm economic outlook, groundwater protection, nutrient management, farming with your neighbors, and Chesapeake Bay program highlights.

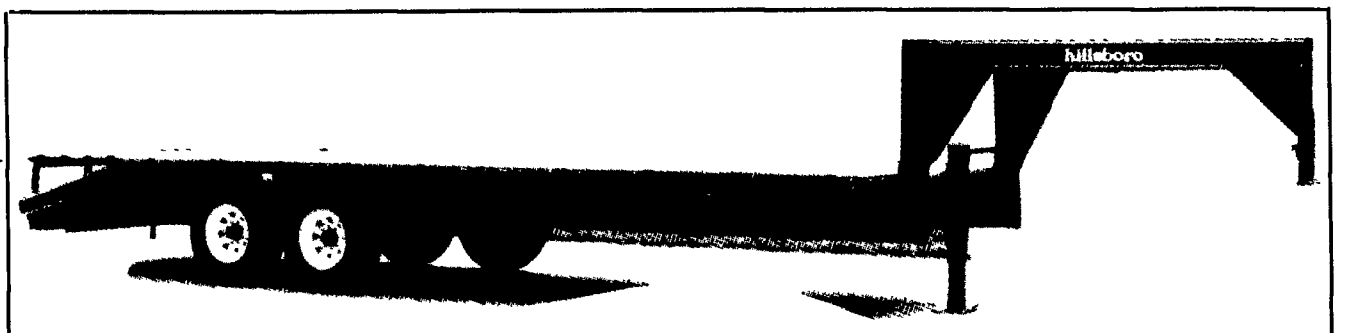
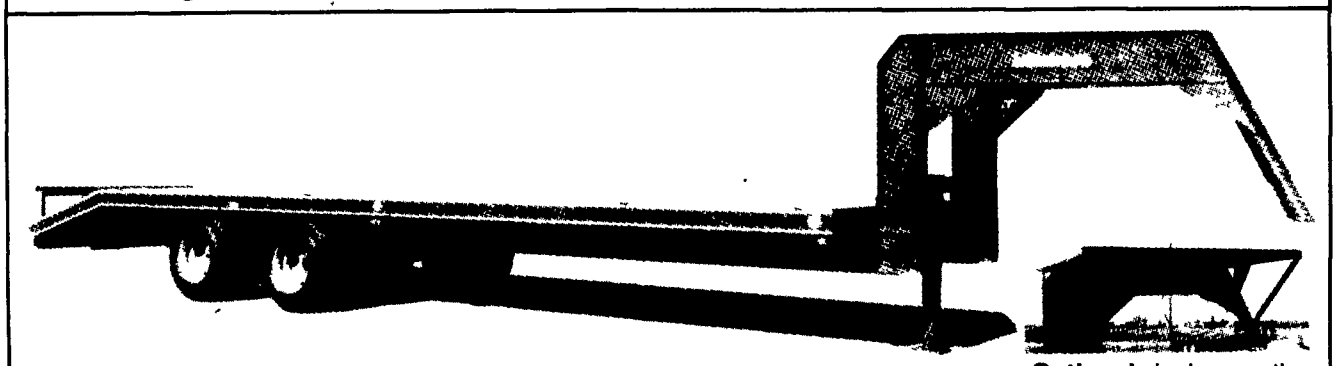
hillsboro
flatbed trailer
with flip-up beaver tail



24 Foot Length Shown



28 Foot Length Shown

Optional deck over the neck is 7½ 'x8'

The FLIP-UP BEAVERTAIL raises and lowers in seconds -- slide out ramps are stored under the beavertail The Hillsboro Flatbed features a full 96" deck width which is more value than the competition.

The Hillsboro Flatbed is available in two styles; the 20' and 24' trailer with standard neck, and the 28', 30' and 32' trailer with heavy duty neck

VERSATILE — RUGGED — RELIABLE and REASONABLY PRICED!

The Hillsboro Flatbed Trailer with flip-up beavertail can be the one trailer that means lower cost for you. Here's why!!

VERSATILITY! That's what makes a Hillsboro trailer such a good investment. With the beavertail down it's an excellent trailer for moving wheeled equipment. Flip the beavertail up and it adds an extra four feet of deck space for hauling hay and other bulky loads

HERE'S WHAT HILLSBORO QUALITY MEANS - All Hillsboro trailers are manufactured in precise jigs and fixtures which assures excellent alignment of axles, a better pulling trailer, a level and square trailer

HILLSBORO WORKMANSHIP INCLUDES-Exceptional weld quality, material that is chemically cleaned, two coats of high quality paint, material strength engineered into the best flatbed value.

Near Perfect Egg Score Recorded At Farm Show

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — With a score of 99.5 points out of a possible 100, a dozen eggs from Sauder's Eggs in Lititz may have set Pennsylvania Farm Show history.

Ray Kennerknecht, the Penn State Extension poultry specialist who chairs the Farm Show's egg competition, said the 99.5 score is probably the highest ever recorded at Pennsylvania's premiere farm event, but nobody he knows has the records to prove it.

Kennerknecht said the Sauder's entry won the breakout competition, which he labeled a tough class. Eggs are judged first on shell thickness and color. They are weighed. The albumen height is measured. The dozen eggs in the contest are examined for the proper shape and color, and for uniformity.

Paul Sauder, president of Sauder's Eggs, said his company entered 14 different classes this year, picking up 10 first place ribbons and four second place awards. In addition to winning the breakout contest, a company entry also took honors for the best dozen white eggs.

Other companies and individuals to record 1st place wins in the egg competition include Esbenshade Farm, Mt. Joy, four firsts; Barry Givens, Wyoming, four firsts; and Dale Godwin, Tim High and Michael Hess each one first place.

Franklin Countian Receives Conservation Award

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Secretary of Agriculture Boyd Wolff presented Richard Stoner of Greencastle, Franklin County, with a prestigious conservation award during the Pennsylvania Farm Show Monday night. Stoner represented Pennsylvania in the 1989 National Endowment for Soil and Water Conservation Farmer Awards.

Stoner and his wife, Lana, raise about 400 feeder pigs and 120 sows, and produce small grains and hay on their 115-acre farm.

Stoner began applying conservation practices like agricultural waste management, crop rotations, contour strips and drainage on his farm shortly after he purchased it in 1973.

"I practice conservation farming because I believe each person should be a good steward of what has been entrusted in his care," Stoner said. "I believe each farm should be utilized to its potential."

Stoner is no stranger to conservation awards. He was named the state's top conservation farmer in 1988 by the Pennsylvania Association of Conservation Districts and the county's conservation farmer of the year in 1987 by the Franklin County Conservation District.

The National Endowment for Soil and Water Conservation Award Program, now in its seventh year, recognizes selected farmers and ranchers for their conservation achievements. Ten finalists will be selected from the crop of state winners, and three of them will receive national recognition in December. The program is sponsored by the National Endowment for Soil and Water Conservation and is funded by the Dupont Company.

Newspaper is a completely natural product of wood fiber and hydrocarbon and vegetable oils. NEWSPAPER HAS MANY ADVANTAGES OVER STRAW AND NO DISADVANTAGES. It is priced significantly lower than straw. It is far more absorbant, provides better fly control, reduces ammonia odor, and carries neither dust nor fungus, mold or other diseases. It spreads better, decomposes faster in soil and slurry systems and is weed free. Moreover, it should equal or surpass sawdust, shavings, straw and corn stover in providing necessary organic matter in the soil when manures containing it are spread.

PENNSYLVANIA EGG PROMOTION

By Milton Madison
Asst. Professor
Ag Economics

A study committee has been appointed by the Pennsylvania Secretary of Agriculture, Boyd E. Wolff, to consider establishing an egg checkoff for generic promotion of Pennsylvania eggs. The committee had 12 members nominated to it, including egg producers and egg marketers. Six of the members attended the first meeting, which was held December 11, 1989. The committee has been asked to draft a proposed egg marketing program that potentially could lead to a commodity marketing program for eggs, as part of the Pennsylvania Agriculture Commodity Marketing Act.

The next meeting of the study committee is scheduled for January 15. When the committee finishes drafting the program, there will be at least one public meeting to discuss the program. There must be a public hearing on the proposed program, and it will be held after the hearing notice is published in the Pennsylvania Bulletin, news releases are published in state newspapers, and public hearing notices and a copy of the proposed marketing program are mailed to affected producers.

Depending on the reaction of the people attending the public hearing, the Secretary then can call for a vote on the proposed egg marketing program, cancel the program, or ask the committee to alter the program and resubmit it to the hearing process. If the program is brought to a vote, it must be favored by a majority (50.1 percent) of the producers voting and by a majority of producers based on their volume of eggs produced, to become law.

If passed by producer referendum, the egg marketing program calls for the Secretary of Agriculture to establish a board to manage the operation of the program. The board would be made up of eight producers that would each serve three year terms, with no more than three members' terms expiring in any given year, a ninth member would be the Secretary of Agriculture or his designee. The board would operate the program and hire people or contract for services of others to carry out the promotion, education, or research program that they choose to use.

If passed, the program can be terminated later in a number of ways if producers are not happy with it. The program can be suspended if more than one-third of producers that also produce more than one-half of the eggs in the state request termination of the program in writing. A vote on continuing the program will be called for if 10 percent of the producers request that a vote for termination be held. The program then will be terminated if a majority of those voting indicate that is their choice. In any case, every five years a referendum must be held and two-thirds of the voting producers must vote favorably to keep the program operating.

Pennsylvania is one of the few major egg producing states that does not have a state egg promotion checkoff. California has a one cent per dozen checkoff, while most other state checkoffs vary from two to six cents a case. Preliminary consideration has been given to a 2.5 cent per case checkoff to be paid by producers with 30,000 or more birds. Pennsylvania egg producers will be hearing more about this program as it develops.

Get Winter Farm Work Done

BY DAVE FILSON
Mifflin Co. Agent

LEWISTOWN (Mifflin Co.) — I've always been a bit amused at the attitude some non-farmers have about the good life associated with farming. Don't take me wrong, life on the farm can be one of the most wholesome environments to bring up a family. What amuses me is the idea that farmers don't have anything to do except milk cows once the fall harvest is completed. I would like to share some of the winter time jobs with those who think there is nothing else going on.

Winter means cold weather, freezing weather. Most dairy barns in our area are "cold" barns. That means no heat except for body heat from the cows. Even during periods of cold temperatures, fans must be used to ventilate stale, moist air out of the barn. Water lines can freeze. You can't just wait until the temperatures warm up to thaw frozen pipes or drinking cups. It only takes a few hours without water available and Bossy will let you know how loudly she can bellow.

Cold weather also means snow. I don't know of many farmers who have the luxury of having municipal equipment plow their farm lanes. Some of you might think, Ah . . . isolation - no interruptions, no salesman, no inconvenient visits, but an impassable farm lane also means, no milk truck to empty the bulk tank and no feed truck to make needed deliveries.

There are calves born during cold weather, too. Most often deliveries during cold weather are in an isolated accessible maternity pen, but many times those deliveries occur during the middle of the night. I know of several producers who will bunk in the barn when heifers are about to calve. Swine and sheep producers do much the same. At lambing time and at farrowing, good managers spend more time, day and night, in the barns than in their homes.

There are instances where cows that have access to winter pasture or exercise areas will choose to find the most remote section of the field to deliver their calf. Calves are hearty critters. It takes severe conditions or maternal abuse to cause the loss of a calf born outside, even in winter.

Other winter time problems occur in the handling of anything containing moisture. Some mechanical silo unloaders won't work when silage freezes to silo walls. That means unloading enough silage to feed 50 or more cows one forkfull at a time from silos as wide as 20 feet or more.

Over the past several years, many farmers have installed manure storage pits or lagoons. Those facilities are labor saving over the winter months. The majority of producers still have to haul manure to their fields, at least every other day, no matter what the weather. Not only is it uncomfortable because of the cold weather, but any breakdown in spreading equipment means immediate emptying of the manure spreader, one forkfull at a time. The manure must not be allowed to freeze on the spreader. If it would freeze, the spreader would be out of use until warm weather thawed the manure.

Almost all farms have more than a few vehicles or machines that must be winterized. Two gallons of anti-freeze doesn't go very far in the radiators of a family car, farm truck, and three or more tractors. Some farms have more motorized equipment that must receive attention . . . combine, harvester, haybine, just to name a few.

Winter is also the time most

farmers start to plan for the next growing season. Fertilizer and lime needs should be determined and ordered. Seed for next spring's planting is ordered. Decisions are made as to which fields will be planted in corn, which fields of alfalfa are allowed to remain, which are put in corn.

Another winter time activity that I think many farmers would not admit to is dreaming; thinking about what happened this past year, but more important, what the new year will bring. Dreams are good. We need to have goals in order to have a direction. Maybe next year that good cow will finally drop a heifer calf. Maybe I can improve the herd milk average by 1,000 pounds. Maybe I can raise six-ton alfalfa or 145-bushel corn. Maybe the milk price won't drop again. Maybe, just maybe, I'll be able to see my son or daughter farming this farm.

Winter is a very busy and important time for farmers. The cold and snow does have several advantages, but as I write this column, the temperature is dropping. The wind is swirling a recent snow, and I just can't think of many. Put another log on the fire, and do some dreaming!

That's because Case IH torque amplifier design has been improved over the years and those improvements have been incorporated in today's units. The result is positive lockup and greater strength for full-time, heavy-duty operation.

Who makes the most practical tractors?

Last year, more value-minded farmers picked Massey-Ferguson than any other make.

In fact, one of every five tractors now sold in the Western World is an M-F. Which makes Massey-Ferguson the Western World's largest tractor manufacturer.

One of the big reasons for this popularity is the great value of the 50-90 PTO hp line of M-F 300 Series tractors.

They all give you the torque, economy and reliability of world-famous Perkins diesel engines and all the advantages of advanced Ferguson system hydraulics. Plus you get the practical features you want, like hydrostatic steering as standard equipment.

Massey-Ferguson engineers put a lot of time and effort into designing these tractors to save more of your time and effort. They're incredibly easy to operate and maintain And they have one of the best reliability records of any tractor ever made.

Better ask your M-F dealer soon to show you why an M-F 300 Series tractor can be the best value for your hard-earned investment.

Practical choices.

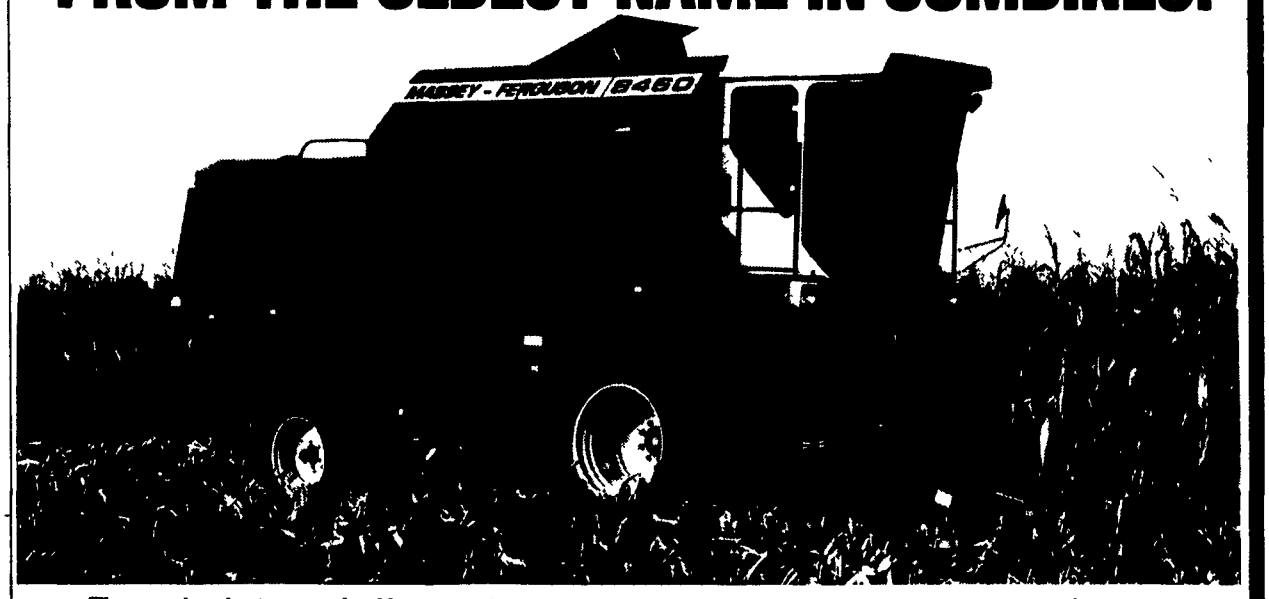
Introducing the M-F 8450 and M-F 8460.

THE NEWEST NUMBERS IN COMBINING. FROM THE OLDEST NAME IN COMBINES.

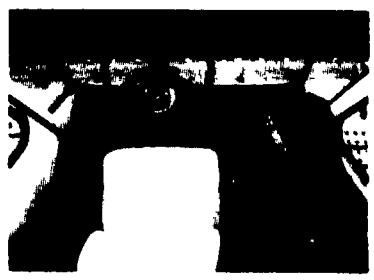


The people who invented self-propelled combines now bring you two new high-capacity, conventional combines that lead the field in performance, features and peace-of-mind.

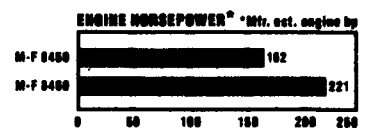
Look to a name you know and trust for the quality and features you need.

- Hydrostatic drive simplifies operation.
- Wide-view cab gives an unobstructed view of the cutterbar.
- Electronic harvest monitor displays how every stage of the combine is performing.
- Choose 6-row corn head, rigid or flexible bottom grain headers and a windrow pickup header.
- Trained M-F dealer service people and the M-F parts network.

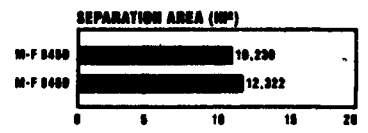
We can even arrange low-rate M-F financing, or a lease or rental plan to meet your needs. See us soon to learn more about the best values around in M-F tractors, combines and implements.



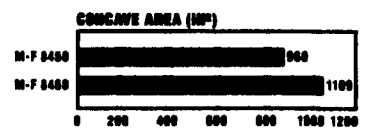
Spacious, center-mounted cab is dampened and insulated for less-than-80-dB sound levels.



Reliable Mercedes Benz diesel engines deliver lots of torque on very little fuel



Positive Separation Process utilizes every inch of separation area.



Torque-sensing cylinder plus in-cab mounted front and rear concave adjustments let you harvest faster and cleaner

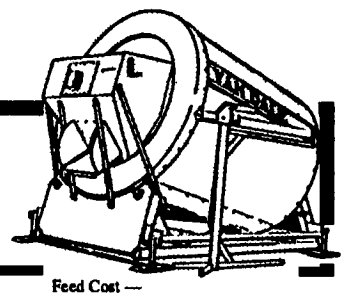
VAN DALE Dependability through Quality

RISING FEED COSTS?

VAN DALE
Has The Answer!

the Orbit Mixer



Thousands of dairy farmers just like you have changed to a total mixed ration program for their dairy herds—and they're glad they did By working with a qualified nutritionist to determine the most economical ration for their herds, and by using a VAN DALE Orbit Mixer designed to blend the exact ration every time, these dairy farmers are reporting significant profit improvements through lower feed costs and/or higher milk production.

Typical Savings for 60 Cow Herd:

Feed Cost —
20 cents per cow per day
60 cows x 365 x .20 = $4,380

Milk Production —
4 lbs extra per cow per day
60 cows x 300 x 4# x .10 = $7,200

Bottom Line Savings
60 cows per year $11,580

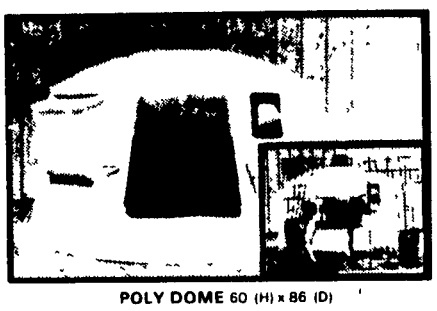
Poly Dome Means Healthier Calves.
All-Season

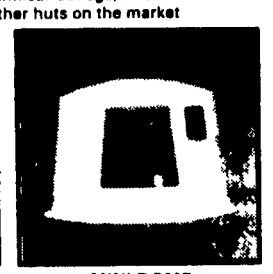


POLY DOME 60 (H) x 86 (D)

Raising calves is no easy chore! But dairymen everywhere have discovered the benefits of raising their calves in Poly Dome Calf Nurseries In fact Poly Dome is the first choice of dairy farmers throughout the United States and Canada After comparing Poly Dome Calf Nurseries with modified wooden hutches, the University of Minnesota-Morris found that Poly Dome calves were healthier and grew faster than calves kept in wooden huts And Poly Dome is now being tested at several universities across the country with similar results

According to a study at Vermont Technical College, this rotatable air vent distinguishes Poly Dome from other huts on the market

POLY SQUARE
5 (W) x 6 6 (L) x 54 (H)



MINI DOME
72 (D) x 68"(H)

DON'T ELIMINATE PROFITS!
Poly Dome will help put money back into your pocket faster Why risk burnt lungs frozen ears and tails? Poly Dome will help eliminate ammonia build-up Your calves will be healthier and they ll grow faster Your heifers will be part of your money-making milking herd sooner And with three different dome styles to choose from you can select the one that works best for you- Poly Dome, Poly Square or Mini Dome

Milk Component Pricing

BY ROBERT E. LEIBY
AND DAVID L. DUNBAR
Lehigh Co. Agents

Component pricing of milk is not a new concept. Dr. Robert Yonkers, Penn State Ag. Economist, says it has been widely discussed in the dairy industry for much of the past 30 years. Today, several factors have once again focused attention on the subject, including the consumer shift away from higher-fat dairy products, successful implementation two years ago of a milkfat-protein pricing scheme in Federal Order 136 (The Great Basin Market in Utah), and USDA's ranking of sires based on animal model economic indexes which include protein.

Under the current butterfat differential-volume milk pricing system, the value of milkfat is determined directly, while the remainder, or residual value of raw milk is allocated to the skim portion. Some handlers and coops in the Northeast and Middle Atlantic states do pay premiums to producers based on protein percent according to Yonkers. However, this is not a true multiple component pricing scheme, since buyers of raw milk are not always charged based on protein content of the milk. Rather, this is a milk procurement incentive used by those handlers manufacturing dairy products (primarily cheese) whose yields are sensitive to the protein content of raw milk.

Class I milk, which is used for fluid dairy products, is usually exempt from pricing based on protein or solids-not-fat content. The yield of fluid products is not sensitive to these components; 100 pounds of raw milk yields 11 5/8 gallons of fluid milk product regardless of protein or solids-not-fat content. Yonkers reminds us that's not true for other classes of dairy products. For example, the yield of non-fat dry milk is dependent entirely on the solids-not-fat content of raw milk. Therefore, only handlers manufacturing Class II (and Class III, where applicable) dairy products are charged for milk based on protein or solids-not-fat under a multiple component pricing scheme.

So, what does all this mean to Pennsylvania Dairy producers? A group of dairy cooperatives in the Federal Order 4 marketing area (which includes 15 counties in southeastern Pennsylvania) has petitioned USDA requesting a hearing on the issue of pricing milk for both milkfat and solids-not-fat. In addition, it is expected that within a year or two a similar petition will be filed covering Federal Order 36 (including 14 western Pennsylvania counties), except protein may replace solids-not-fat as a priced component. Regardless of the type of pricing scheme, the average price per hundredweight paid to producers for milk in any Federal Order is expected to remain the same. However, the milk check of any individual producer may change based on the value of milk components.

Dairy producers should remain informed about such pricing schemes because, if USDA recommends that a referendum be held, all producers in a Federal Order could vote on replacing butterfat differential-volume milk pricing with a multiple component milk pricing system. In addition, dairy producers may wish to evaluate current nutrition and breeding programs in order to be prepared to make changes should a new, multiple component milk pricing scheme be introduced.

Protect Drainage System By Checking Outlet Flow

LEESPORT (Berks Co.)— A subsurface (tile) drainage system is only as good as its outlet. The investment of a little time, paint, and a steel post can help farmers protect substantial investments in subsurface drainage systems, according to Duane Pysher, District Conservationist, USDA Soil Conservation Service.

"The key to a good subsurface drainage system is a free-flowing outlet," said Pysher. "However, with the passing years following original installation, many outlets become 'lost' or damaged." Heavy vegetative growth, siltation from flooding, livestock trampling, and snow plow damage combine to clog or obliviate the outlet's location. The result is a drainage system that is less efficient or ceases to function altogether.

Evidence of a malfunctioning drainage system includes a stream of water that pops up in the field where there was none before or an area that remains wet long after the rest of the field has dried out.

To correct or prevent this problem, the outlet must be returned to a free-flowing condition. But how do you find a 'lost' outlet without spending a lot of time and effort digging in a hit-or-miss fashion?

"Simple," said Pysher. "Just paint fluorescent orange on a standard 6-foot steel fence post and place one post beside each drainage outlet on the farm."

Pysher indicated the posts are readily available at reasonable cost. The posts serve as permanent markers to quickly locate outlets during semi-annual maintenance checks, they alert equipment operators to be more careful in the post areas, and they are particularly helpful in pointing out drainage outlets to new landowners or tenants when farms change hands or management.

A small investment in time and materials now can pay big dividends in preventing future drainage system damage and location problems.

"All subsurface drainage systems should be checked after every major storm for damage or at least semi-annually in the spring and fall," said Pysher. "Remember, your drainage systems will only serve you as well as you maintain their outlets."

Land use planning assistance is available from the U.S. Soil Conservation Service located in the Agricultural Center in Bern Township.

Parlett And Son Gilt Named Farm Show Supreme Champion

LISA RISSER
Lancaster Farming Staff

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The 1990 Pennsylvania Farm Show will be one that James Parlett and his son Gus will long remember. It was the year that the duo showed three grand champion bred gilts of which the Duroc was named supreme champion, and it was the year that Parlett, a veteran pork producer was honored by the Pennsylvania Swine Breeders Cooperative with the Pennsylvania Service Award.

Parlett, who shows Chester Whites, Durocs, and Spots, is a familiar sight at swine competitions and is no stranger to the winner's circle. Last year alone he garnered ribbons for top hogs at the 1989 Farm Show, Keystone International Livestock Exposition (KILE), and York Fair. And, that was only in Pennsylvania.

What made this year's supreme champion a winner? "The gilt did it all, but a lot of it was just proper feed and care," said Gus Parlett. "We used a Swine 69 mineral in our feed. Her genetics are strong, but the mineral feed we provided her helped a lot."

"One of the reasons we won," said James Parlett Sr., "is the Duroc has good feet and leg support. There is good freedom of movement, and the feet and length strength are real good."

Judge Gale Bressner, an Illinois pork producer, was impressed with the exhibitors at the show. "This year's quality was extremely high. The legs show good strength and cushioning to withstand confinement and environment." Bressner was so impressed that he admitted that, in the 25 years of his career, he never had a tougher decision. "Two or three (breeds) were closest in contention. All reserve champions were excellent. Sturdiness and strength were very evident. The exhibitors are to be commended."

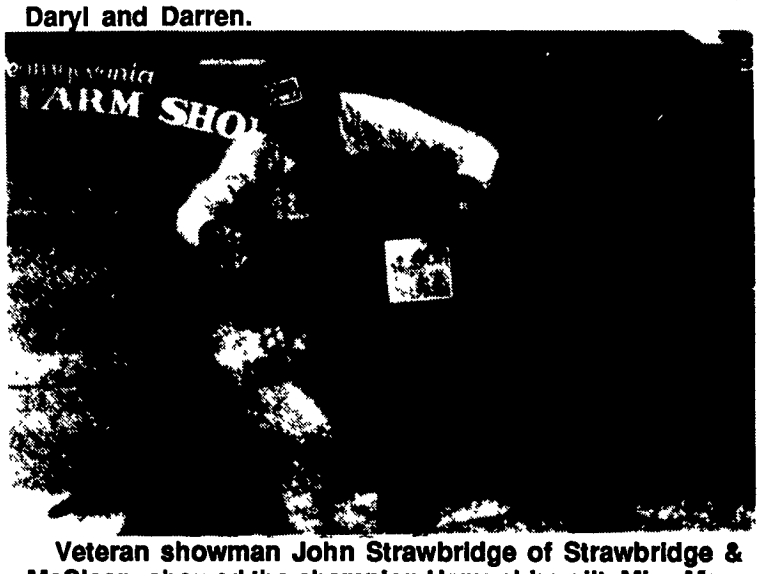
The supreme champion gilt at the 1990 Farm Show was a January Duroc named TM Miss S89 6-9. A Hilltop daughter out of TM Miss 1-2 S88, the gilt was exhibited by Gus, left, and Jim Parlett. Judging the show was Gale Bressner of Illinois.

Jim Parlett, left, of Airville and his son Gus dominated the Chester White classes. A January gilt, TM Ann 7-3 S89 out of TM Ann 7-7 S86, was named grand champion. The Parletts also showed the reserve champion, TM Dame 10-1.

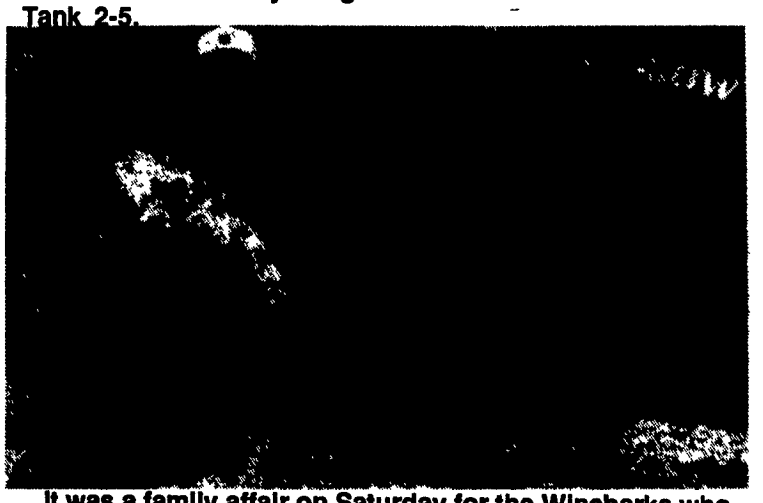
The reserve grand champion Duroc was the gilt owned by Ken Fetterolf of Centre Hall. A February daughter of LD8 Flatbush 11-3 out of KJF 9-4, KJF9 Ms Flatbush is bred to DCH Echo.

The Spotted Swine champion gilt was exhibited by James, right, and Gus Parlett. TM9 Jenny 2-9, a RRA7 Mr T daughter, also was named champion at the 1989 Keystone International Livestock Exposition and reserve champion at the 1989 York Fair.

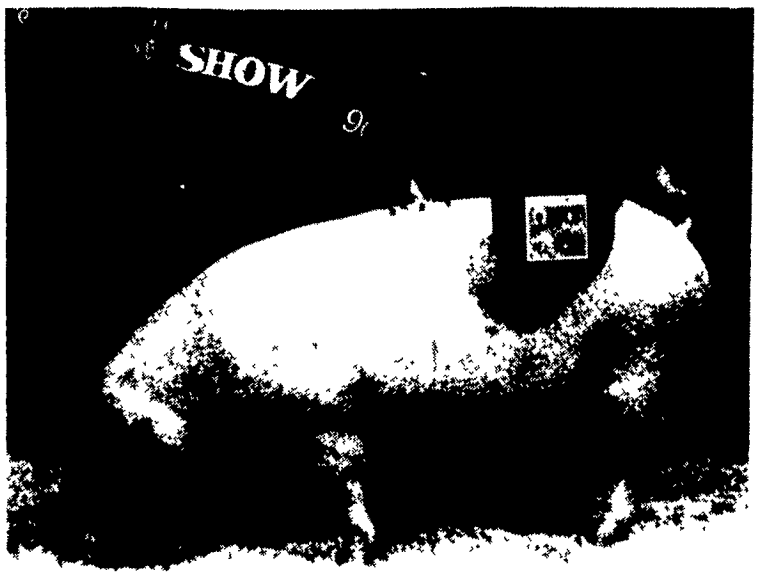
The Grumbines of Lebanon County showed the champion Berkshire gilt, FV Betty 3-1, a January pig sired by JBS7 Mr. Wildcat. From left are Dennis Grumbine and his sons, Daryl and Darren.



Veteran showman John Strawbridge of Strawbridge & McCleary showed the champion Hampshire gilt. Miss Master Tank is a January daughter of SBF Master out of Miss Tank 2-5.



It was a family affair on Saturday for the Winebarks who showed the reserve champion Hampshire gilt. Ken Winebark, right, was aided by Janine, center, 9, and Brandon, 3, in exhibiting Miss Hammer. A Hammer daughter out of Colts Belle 26-1, the prize-winning gilt was born on February 28, 1989. She is bred to CB Adidas.



THF Blender, a VBF 7 Barsk 2-12 daughter out of THF 7 Blender 6-1, was named the champion Landrace gilt. Owned by John H. Mummert of Seven Valleys, Blender is due February 1 to LDL9 Clarence 1-1.

Berkshires

For the second consecutive year, Dennis L. Grumbine took the top honors in the Berkshire gilt class. The Myerstown man and his sons, Daryl and Darren, showed two January gilts that outclassed the competition. FV Betty 3-1 edged out her littermate, FV Betty 3-3, for the grand champion rosette. JBS7 Mr. Wildcat daughters, the pair come from a sow line that has produced many Farm Show champions. Grumbine estimated that at least six gilts at this year's show came from FV Betty sow line.

Chester Whites

The Parletts dominated the Chester White division, taking the top two positions in the January and February classes. TM Ann 7-3, the January daughter of TRF Running Gear 1-6 out of TM Ann 7-7 S86, is a littermate to the 1989 KILE champion, and her sire was the $1,100 1988 reserve champion at the Summer Chester White Spotlight.

TM Dame 10-1 was the Parletts' reserve champion. Bred to Tar Heel, the pig is a TM Super M 2-10 daughter out of TM Dame 1-10 S88.

Durocs

The Parletts continued their winning streak with the Duroc show, in which they exhibited the champion, an animal that went on to be named supreme champion gilt of the 1990 Farm Show. TM Miss S89 is a Hilltop daughter out of TM Miss S88. She was judged grand champion at the 1989 York Fair and was the first-place January gilt at KILE last year. In addition, her dam was the supreme champion gilt at the 1987 York Fair.

The first-place February Duroc gilt, KJF Ms Flatbush 3-9, was selected by Bressner as the reserve champion. Owned by Ken Fetterolf of Centre Hall, Ms Flatbush is a LD8 Flatbush 11-3 daughter out of KJF 9-4. She also was reserve champion at the 1989 KILE.

Hampshires

"I don't know when I've judged a stronger class of pigs," said Bressner of the Hampshire grand champion gilt drive. "These gilts are lean, sound, and have a lot of shape and design."

After making an obviously tough decision, Bressner went with the January gilt exhibited by Strawbridge & McCleary of Windsor for the grand champion. Miss Master Tank 1-7 is a SBF Master daughter out of Miss Tank 2-5. She has won several awards at county fairs as well as at the Maryland State Fair last year. Bred to GF9 EMS Tuff 14-9, Miss Master Tank's sire was named champion of the York Fair the only time he was showed.

The growthy, feminine gilt showed by Kenneth L. Winebark and family of Myerstown easily nabbed the reserve champion Hampshire spot. Born February 28, 1989 Miss Hammer 3-1 is a Hammer daughter out of Colts Belle 26-1. She is out of a litter of 17 of which 11 were raised. Hammer is at stud at Stoney Creek, and Colts Belle is a littermate to the '88 Farm Show reserve champion, which holds the record sales amount of $1,050. Miss Hammer was bred artificially to CB Adidas, a national barrow show champion.

Landraces

THF Blender 2-4 is "one gilt that excells," according to Bressner. Blender, exhibited by John H. Mummert of Seven Valleys, is a half sister to last year's Farm Show champion Landrace, also owned by Mummert. Blender was champion at last year's York Fair, and her grand sire has fathered many Farm Show champions. The February gilt is a VBF7 Barsk 2-12 daughter out of THF 7 Blender 6-1.

The reserve champion Landrace went to a January gilt shown by Grant Lazarus III of Germansville.

Poland Chinas

In only her second year of owning and showing Poland Chinas, Cheryl Bennecoff of Kutztown has had a Farm Show champion. CAB9 S, a IXL8 Sal Balance 34-3 daughter out of IXL8 S Pk Pet 16-10, is a littermate to the reserve champion boar at last year's KILE. Her dam, Pk Pet, is the sister to the 1989 Poland China College Boar's dam.

RAF9S Miss Truck 20-2, exhibited by Rocky Acres Farm in New Tripoli, was tapped for the reserve champion Poland China gilt rosette. Miss Truck, a January RTS7S Dumpster 18-4 daughter out of SBP6 S Miss 18-7, is bred to RAF9S Bionic II 19-4.

Spotted Swines

TM9 Jenny 2-9 helped the Parletts to their third Farm Show grand championship ribbon this year. The January daughter of RRA7 Mr T out of TM7 Jenny 3-4, Jenny 2-9 is bred to BLL Standout 4-2. Her dam's sire, FSF6 Timber 2-2 fathered the champion gilt at last year's Farm Show.

Russell Kegg of Bedford consigned his second consecutive reserve champion Spotted Swine this year. Owner of the 1989 Farm Show reserve champion as well, Kegg has been coming to Farm Show with his gilts for 10 years. RA9 Beauty is a RA7 Oscar 30-2 daughter out of RA7 Beauty 30-6.

Yorkshires

Both championship Yorkshire titles went to gilts consigned by Strawbridge and McCleary. Strawbridge exhibited last year's reserve champion as well.

Wool Quality, Lamb Marketing Are Topics At Sheep Convention

DENVER, Colo. — Sheep producers can attend information sessions that will focus on headline issues the industry is facing at the annual American Sheep Industry Convention, January 14-17, in Phoenix, Arizona.

Warehouse workers and wool buyers will discuss the advantages of preparing wool properly on behalf of wool growers and the textile industry during the information session Wool Quality: Are we "Skirting" the issue?, on Tuesday, January 16. A panel of industry leaders, led by Chris Lupton of Texas A&M Research Center, will answer questions and address concerns on the economics of proper wool preparation and explain the importance of proper wool preparation from a buyer's perspective.

The wool information program also includes a hands-on skirting demonstration by qualified skirters.

Convention goers can attend Value-Based Lamb Marketing: The Case for Certification, an information session addressing lamb marketing programs and certification standards and its affects on producers, consumers, retailers and packers. Dr. Ann Perkins, a leading agricultural researcher, will speak on ram behavior and reproduction studies conducted at the U.S. Sheep Experiment Station, in Dubois, Idaho, during the Horizons In Sheep Production: Ram Behavior and Its Impact on Breeding Performances session. Perkins will be joined by three top veterinarians representing a national scope to address and answer questions on sheep health concerns and solutions.

Contact the ASI Convention Office, 6911 S. Yosemite St., Englewood, CO 80112-1414 or call (303) 771-3500 for more information.

Sheep producers nationwide have made valuable contacts at the American Sheep Industry Convention Trade Show for two consecutive years. The upcoming show on January 15-17, will feature new agribusiness equipment and feeds manufacturers, animal health suppliers, predator control projects, and sheep research.

Open to all convention goers, the trade show will present new livestock technologies offered to the sheep industry. In addition to equipment and production products, the trade show offers art and crafts for all ages, ranging from silver jewelry to wool-crafted clothing and home decor items.

Former RCMA Chief To Head United Dairy Co-op

SYRACUSE, N.Y. — In a move aimed at capturing further growth, United Dairy Cooperative Services Inc. has named Edward D. Anna president of the board of directors. Anna, who brings 30 years of dairy experience to the position, succeeds James G. Patsos, who will assume the role of chief executive officer.

United's board of directors voted Anna to the board and its presidency at a recent meeting. Patsos said Anna was chosen because of his expertise and success in milk marketing. Patsos cited Anna's accomplishments during his tenure with the Batavia-based Regional Cooperative Marketing Agency Inc. (RCMA).

"Ed Anna is the right person at the right time for United Dairy Cooperative Services. There's no better dairy professional we can have to pursue the aggressive marketing opportunities that challenge us. We're all delighted," Patsos said.

As general manager and CEO of RCMA, Anna implemented a plan that made the agency a highly successful dairy farmers' marketing cooperative. Under Anna's leadership from 1986 to 1989, RCMA paid out more than $66 million to 22,000 dairy farmers in 21 months.

"I envision great things for United," said Anna. "I've seen them establish the standard in providing members with premiums and patronage dividends. We want to build on that. I can't wait to roll up by sleeves and get to work."

Thanking the board for this "exciting challenge," Anna called upon the board to accept their own challenge.

"I'll need your help and the help of all the members. But, based on past success, I'm confident and thrilled about United's future."

Anna's other roles have included executive vice president of the Empire Group of H.P. Hood Inc., Cuba, and Empire Cheese Inc., and assistant to the general manager of Upstate Milk Cooperatives Inc. in Leroy.

Patsos, who will assume the role of CEO immediately, said United's growth has been strong since its incorporation in 1987.

"Starting as a new organization, we have shown how a bargaining cooperative can best serve its members with the least investment. Our profitability tells our success story," Patsos said.

United has filled a need to provide dairy farmers with an alternative bargaining method.

Based in Syracuse, United Dairy Cooperative Services has members in New York and Pennsylvania. In addition to milk marketing, United Dairy Cooperative Services provides other services to its members and to other cooperatives. Among the services are marketing, accounting, producer payroll, quality control, and computer-based financial planning.

Keystone Farm Credit Pays Dividend

SHOEMAKERSVILLE (Berks Co.)— The Board of Directors of Keystone Farm Credit, ACA has declared a 5-percent cash dividend to all holders of common stock as of December 31. These dividends will be payable to stockholders on March 15.

The ability to pay a dividend is reflective of the strong financial position of Keystone Farm Credit, according to Bernard C. Flory, president and chief executive officer.

"Keystone's strength is due, in part, to our ability to price more competitively, our loan staff's aggressive marketing of our loan products and financial services, and the support of our membership and the agricultural community," Flory said.

Keystone Farm Credit, ACA serves over 4,500 farmers and rural residents in the 15-county southeastern Pennsylvania area. Associated with the nationwide Farm Credit System, Keystone is affiliated with the Farm Credit Bank of Baltimore which currently is providing loans and financial services to over 49,000 farmers, agri-businesses and country home owners in Pennsylvania, Delaware, Maryland, Virginia, West Virginia and the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico.

Growers Fertilizer Sponors Low-Input Ag Seminars

MILAN, OH — Wilbur R. Franklin, one of the nation's foremost soil authorities and director of research of Growers Fertilizer Solutions, will present a low input -- profitable -- agriculture seminar on January 24 at Country Buffet in Ephrata and January 25 at Days Inn in Allentown both beginning at 10:00 a.m.

According to area representative, Mel Martin, Franklin will focus the seminar on the value of calcium (lime) in the soil complex, a widely discussed but little understood relationship which research has shown to be of vital importance to the regulated growth of plants resulting in greater yields and higher quality agricultural products.

Franklin brings to this seminar 35 years of on-farm practical research culminating in a well founded understanding of the LISA approach and how it is best implemented by farmers who rely on soil productivity for their living. His education came partially from working at the side of Dr. V.A. Tiedjens, author of the authoritative "More Food From Soil Science" and the developer of modern agriculture's most efficient liquid and solution fertilizers.

Franklin, himself a published researcher and nationally known scientist, will also discuss tillage, soil compaction, water retention and nutrient availability. His presentation will also include an analysis of the impact of environmental issues on area farmers and information on how to conserve soil nutrition while eliminating environmental concerns.

Among other seeming contradictions, Franklin will point out that horticulturists have, for years, utilized foliage application of nutrition and asks, "Why have farmers working with corn, soybeans, alfalfa, wheat and other main line crops ignored this highly practical and efficient approach which is so successful in other agricultural areas?"

The seminar, expected to conclude at 3:00 p.m. will allow for questions concerning specific plant nutrition problems.

Warren Firm Honored At Pre-Show Banquet

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — A Warren County firm that grew from a basement enterprise in the founder's home into a regional specialty-food processing company has received the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture's Agribusiness Award for 1990.

The Pellegrino Food Products Co., a family operation since its beginning in 1955, was presented the award by Agriculture Secretary Boyd E. Wolff at the Department's annual Pre-Farm Show Dinner Saturday evening in Harrisburg.

Accepting the award in behalf of the firm were its founder and chief executive officer, Anthony Pellegrino Sr., and a son, Thomas, company president. Another son, Anthony Jr., is vice president-treasurer and director of marketing.

"The story behind the Pellegrino company's success provides heartening reassurance that ideas, initiative, persistence and family vallues are all alive and functioning as we enter the decade of the nineties," Wolff said.

"This is also a vivid illustration of how state government-- in this case the Department of Agriculture-- encourages agribusiness growth for the benefit of the economy.

"Last year the company received a $90,000 grant under the state's Agricultural Entrepreneur Development Program to help finance a $250,000 expansion of its production facilities," the Secretary said.

The expansion project is expected to increase the number of employees from 30 to 60 within the next year, according to Anthony Pellegrino Jr. The company's sales have jumped from approximately $300,000 in 1987 to $1,125,000 last year, he said.

The Pellegrino product line currently is targeted at the quality market in the Pittsburgh, Cleveland, and New York areas, but the owners plan to expand into the Philadelphia-Baltimore-Washington region and into Canada within the next few years.

All these standard features, combined with a new frame dsign and a new stronger top-pulley, provide the V-4000 owner with years of trouble-free service and satisfaction at a very competitive price.

Fransgard winches are avaialble through the J.S. Woodhouse Co. Inc., 1314 Union St., P.O. Box 1169, West Springfield, MA 01090; 412/736-5462.

Northrup King Uses Soybean, Degradable Liners On Seed Bags

GOLDEN VALLEY, MN — Northrup King recently announced that it is using a soybean based ink for the printing of all soybean bags produced for the upcoming growing season. The ink includes a soy protein and according to the American Soybean Association (ASA) increases the demand for an abundant American farm product. The soybean bags will carry the ASA's "Printed With Soyink" logo.

The company also announced that it is producing some of its corn and sorghum seed bags with biodegradable plastic liners made from cornstarch. The Northrup King corn and sorghum seed bags will prominently display the National Corn Growers Association's (NCGA) degradable plastic logo. The NCGA estimates that the use of degradable plastics could potentially create a 150-300 million bushel market for corn.

"These are some of the ways we support American farmers' efforts to find new uses for their products," says Keith Hoffman, vice president of marketing, Northrup King Co.

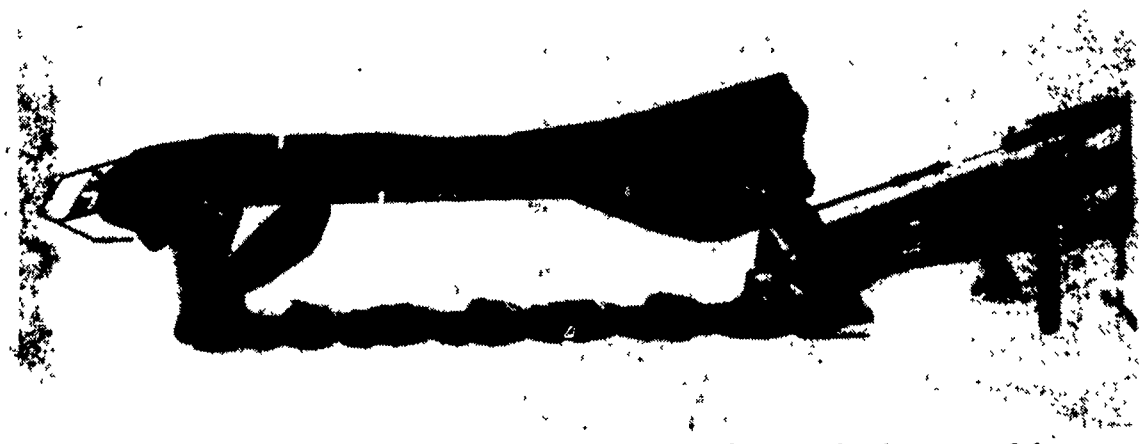
Deere Introduces Rotary Disk Mower

MOBILE, IL — John Deere has introduced a new rotary disk mower, model 270, featuring seven disks combined to cut a 9-foot 2-inch swath. The 270 has the same low-profile, ground-hugging cutterbar design as the 240 and 260 rotary disk mowers.

High-speed rotating disks — each with two easy-to-replace knives — cut at 3030 rpm.

Hydraulic lift raises and lowers the cutterbar for transport or field operation. An optional outer shoe-spring assist kit, to give additional floatation in tough cutting conditions, and an optional tall-stubble gauge shoe kit are available.

"The 270 model was added to our rotary disk mower line to meet our customers needs," said Mike Bieber, product information manager, John Deere Ottumwa Works. "Our customers wanted a mower with a wider cut to match their larger tractor's horsepower and their acreage requirements. Also, the 9-foot cut matches harvesting machines — such as round or square balers — better than the narrower cuts."



John Deere's new rotary mower features seven disks combined to cut a 9-foot 2-inch swath. Easy-to-replace knives on high-speed rotating disks cut at 3030 rpm.

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — A former dairy family that eventually sold its herd of registered and grade Holsteins to buy draft horses now claims ownership to the first supreme champion draft horse in Pennsylvania.

The top horse out of six entrants from three breeds was a six-year-old Percheron mare named Marissa Laet owned by Gerald Allebach, 26, of Spring Mills, Centre County.

Allebach said that getting the title was "wonderful. I love it." He has been showing horses at the Farm Show since he was 10 years old, and this year was the best.

However, he said that among the horse people there was some "mixed feelings about whether they like it (the new title) or not. Needless to say, I like it a lot," Allebach said.

Allebach and his father, Abraham, operate a 450-acre farm that they converted to a horse farm from a dairy farm because, "There's no money in dairy. Now the horses are supporting us. In the beginning, though, the cows bought a lot of horses."

The Allebach's show both Clydesdale and Percheron horses across the United States and in Canada. Marissa Laet recently had won big in Canada at the Royal Winter Fair as part of a team of registered mares. The Farm Show title means more, Allebach said, because, "It's our home show, the state show."

It almost seemed destined that the Allebach family was destined to take the title; they had three out of the six grand champions. Along with the top Percheron mare, they lay claim to the top Clydesdale stallion and mare.

Although Allebach is a car sales manager in the State College area by vocation, he is also heavily involved with his family business.

"We do a lot of breeding of outside mares. We're also into artificial breeding—no one else is into it—and we also do crossbreeding for hunter-jumpers,"

Percheron and Clydesdale horse judge Larry Honsberger, Port Clinton, Ohio, said the winning aspect of Allebach's horse wasn't necessarily her conformation and development. He said all six horses were top horses on a national basis.

"To me, the thing she has is a very good ring presence. She says she's a champion over the other ones," Honsberger said.

Bill McGrew, Belgian judge, and Honsberger co-judged for the first supreme title. McGrew agreed that "Showmanship has a lot to do with it."

McGrew said that although the decision was made within 10 minutes. It wasn't all that easy. "The thing is we had six good horses come back. Sometimes it's pretty hard to change breeds, and if you are a breeder you naturally think your breed is best. You have to try to overcome that and go for the best horse."

Winning the champion spot among the Percheron stallions was a yearling named Windsor Hills Daniel owned by Michael and Teresa Wian of Spring Mills in Centre County. Daniel is a February '88 son of Blackhome Duke out of Windermeres Dixie. Wian horses also won the Percheron produce of mare and Percheron stallion of any age bred by the exhibitor.

Arthur E. Reist of Lancaster led out a three-year-old Belgian that beat out the competition for the grand champion Belgian mare title. Carolyns Cinderella is a Orndorffs Premier daughter out of Carolyn. Besides Cinderella, the senior champion, Reist showed the reserve junior champion mare.

A main contender in the Belgian classes was Orndorff's Belgians of Waynesburg. The grand champion Belgian stallion title went to Congolaise Supreme, a five-time Farm Show winner. Congolaise is an '81 Congolaise son out of Orndorffs Highland Sue. The Orndorff family also showed the reserve grand champion Belgian mare and won classes such as Belgian junior get of sire, Belgian stallion and two mares, and Belgion two mares belonging to one exhibitor.

Most Mix-All owners will never buy another.

In fact, you'd probably have a hard time convincing Gehl Mix-All® owners to even look at anything else. And why should they?

The Mix-All's big 21-inch wide hammermill features 66 reversible thin hammers that cut, rather than pound the feed to deliver a more consistent grind and ensure uniform mixing for a better feed conversion rate.

Gehl's self-contained hydraulic system is designed-in, not added on. It provides the precision of infinitely variable in-feed attachment control to match tractor power for greater grinding capacity. Plus you get fast, smooth, trouble-free unloading with greater reliability.

And a wide variety of options and attachments lets you customize your Mix-All to fit any operation.

See your Gehl dealer for more details on the model that's right for you. It may just be the only grinder-mixer you'll ever need.

County Fair Queens To Compete For State Title

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — Thirty young women representing their hometown fair will compete for the Pennsylvania Fair Queen title during the January 17 to 19 convention held by the Pennsylvania State Association of County Fairs.

The fair convention meets in conjunction with the Pennsylvania State Showmen's Association held at the Lancaster Sheraton.

Beverly Snyder, secretarty of the fair association, said they expect 1,400 participants with more than 80 fairs represented.

The purpose of the fair queen competition is to encourage the promotion of agricultural fairs and to create better relations between youth and adults in both rural and urban settings.

Contestants for the state title must have already been chosen as the 1989 winner of the fair she represents. The contestants are between 16 and 20 years.

Participants will be judged on poise, appearance, neatness, speaking ability, knowledge of the fair industry and on a written essay: "What my fair means to me."

Each contestant will give a three to five minute presentation on "Why you should come to my fair."

The coronation will take place at the Thursday luncheon on January 18. Tickets are required. For more information, call (412) 867-2472.

Judges for the competition are Charley Wismer, Michael Firestein, and Mim Kauffman.

Soviet Agriculturists Bring Perestroika To Farm Show

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The openness sweeping the Soviet Union reached the Farm Show Monday afternoon when four Soviet ag scientists visited the Penn State University booth. The visit was part of a week long tour of Lancaster County, Harrisburg and University Park.

Their trip is the second step in a developing relationship between Penn State and the Siberian Branch of the V.I. Lenin All-Union Academy of Agricultural Sciences, known as VASKhNIL. Last April, three representatives of the College of Agriculture ventured to VASKhNIL's Siberian Branch, which is four time zones east of Moscow in Novosibirsk, or "New Siberia."

"Just three years ago this could never have happened," says Dr. Charles R. Krueger, associate dean for research and member of Penn State's delegation. "With the new openness in superpower relations, we can visit and talk with each other. We have the opportunity to learn from each other." Dr. Paul J. Wangsness, former head of Penn State's department of dairy and animal science, now regional director for the Capital Region of Penn State Cooperative Extension, and Dr. John M. Skelly, professor of plant pathology, also journeyed to Novosibirsk.

During this visit, Krueger hopes to identify potential areas of joint research with VASKhNIL. "The Soviets will have group meetings with faculty from the college. Through these dialogues, we hope to develop areas of mutual interest. But any project must be a two-way street so that we learn from them, as well as they from us," Krueger said.

The legal groundwork for collaborative study with VASKhNIL has been laid: the University of Alaska already has a cooperative agreement with the Siberian branch. "Alaska's a good fit, because it has a similar climate to Siberia's," Krueger said. "The things Penn State could do deal more with methodology and finding techniques that can work on our crops and livestock as well as theirs-- transferrable technology."

Dr. Gennady P. Gamzikov, director of the Altai Institute of Arable Farming and Plant Breeding, will head the VASKhNIL delegation. Gamzikov's interests include soil management systems, fertilization practices and plant breeding. Dr. Victor A. Bentz, deputy director of the Siberian Institute for Fodder Crops, is interested in all aspects of forage production, from pasture management to effective storage.

Dr. Margarita V. Shternshis heads the Laboratory of Microbiological Methods at the Siberian Institute of Arable Farming and Use of Agricultural Chemicals. She is interested in integrated pest management, biological control and plant breeding for pest resistance. Dr. Victor G. Guglya, director of the Siberian Institute of Animal Husbandry, is interested in animal production techniques such as feeding, breeding and manure management.

"During the week, they will tour some of our facilities and talk with faculty members who share their research interests," Krueger said. "These dialogues will help both of our institutions know what we have to offer each other."

The Soviets' visit will continue another dialogue-- a correspondence between students in Novosibirsk and the State College Area Junior High School. "While we were in the Soviet Union, we visited a junior high English class that Dr. Shternshis' son attended," Krueger said. "We brought back letters that the Soviet children had written."

Krueger gave the letters to his son, Brian, whose teacher passed them out to her class. Their replies, were sent to Novosibirsk last June. During her stay, Shternshis will visit the junior high to deliver personal responses from her son's class. "She'd like to visit my child's class, just as I visited her child's. I think both groups of children, like their parents, are learning how much they have in common," Krueger said.

Montgomery Co. Extension Meeting Announced

CREAMERY, PA (Montgomery Co.) — "Reflections on the Soviet Union" will be the subject of a slice presentation by Tom Leidy at the Montgomery County Cooperative Extension Annual Meeting on January 18, 1990.

The meeting will be held at the Montgomery County 4-H center on Route 113 in Creamery, Pennsylvania. A buffet dinner will be served from 6:30 to 7:30 pm and a short program will follow. Also being honored at the dinner are 4-H livestock winners, 4-H cabinet members, and longtime extension board members. The public is invited to attend.

Tickets for the dinner are $8.00 and are available from the extension office. Reservations may be made up to January 12 by calling 489-4315.

week.

Officials also said they would set a goal of uniting all four dairy promotion agencies in the effort to increase the sale of Pennsylvania dairy products.

The two-day meeting, held at the Grantville Holdiay Inn, focused on the outlook for the dairy industry in the 1990s and was highlighted with predictions by a Michigan State University professor and Boyd Wolf, secretary of the state Department of Agriculture.

Donald Duncan, chairman of the PDPP board replaces outgoing chair Paul Corbin. Duncan, who also serves on the executive board of the Regional Cooperative Marketing Agency (RCMA), said his goal is to continue to expand marketing efforts and to bring marketing agencies closer together.

"My personal goal is to continue the good work done by the two former chairmen. The tools are in place and the objectives are in place and with the agreements with the other two marketing programs we can continue to do good work," Duncan said. Good work, according to Duncan, " . . . is to increase the bottom line for dairy farmers by increasing sales."

As far as continuing efforts at mutual cooperation among marketing agencies, Duncan said, "I'm going to do everything I can to bring in the fourth organization to share proportionately in the 10 cents coming in. We'll take it day by day and do the best we can."

Duncan added that PDPP is " . . . certainly welcoming suggestions from dairy farmers and those in the business to get ideas on how to better market their product."

According to Gale Cole, judge of the open sheep show

More And Better Sheep Compete At PA Farm Show This Year

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff
HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.)

Gale Cole of Illinois returned again this year to judge the meat sheep during Farm Show competition on Sunday.

Of the eleven-hour show, he said, "It seems like there were more and better ones than last year's competition. It's always tough to judge, but it helps make it interesting when there are so many good ones to start with."

Suffolk

A new face in Suffolk competition at the Farm Show made a debut this year. Melanie Snyder of Parker in Clarion County won the champion and reserve in the ewe division.

"I'm happy. I didn't expect to do as well," the teenager remarked. "My ultimate goal was to win the championship, now I've got to establish a new goal—maybe competing nationally."

Her father, Jack, credited their win to a sharp eye for buying. "If you buy junk, you end with junk," he said.

As a Holstein breeder, Jack developed a sharp eye for prize-winning characteristics, which he said carries over into sheep.

The Snyder family decided to enter the sheep raising business about 18 months ago. "My wife despises cows but likes sheep," Snyder explained, "but we still milk 80 Holsteins although, I must admit, the whole family fell in love with the sheep."

Melanie inserted, "Some people say sheep are dumb, but that isn't true. Sheep know their names. When I call them by name, they come to me.

Her father agreed. "Sheep are so much more responsive than cows. If you step in the barn, sheep have a tizzy if you don't pet them. Our family returns that affection."

Snyder purchased his sheep from McConnel-Hunter Farms in New Wilmington. Frank Hunter is the Snyder's advisor and fitter.

Snyder said, "The sheep are Melanie's. Showing, I think, is basically for the kids. After we set up at Farm Show, I said that we won't be back, it's too much work."

But after their successful showing, Snyder had to admit that the "show bug" had bit him.

"My only concern is that success has come so early. Now we need to keep it up," he said.

"We've established ourselves as showmen now we must establish ourselves as breeders."

Snyder said that the premier breeder is probably the most coveted show award. It shows what you've got at home."

The Suffolk premier breeder award went to the renown Pine Have Farm in Cumberland County.

Steve Kwisnek showed the champion ram in Southdown competition.

Jenny Snyder from Clarion County made an impressive debut in Suffolk competition. The Snyder family entered the sheep raising business only 18 months ago. Jenny shown with her father, Jack, won both the champion and reserve champion ewe.

Pine Haven brought only four sheep out of their 100-head flock to competition this year. But those four carried on the Pine Haven tradition of winning grand and reserve champion ram like their sheep have every year since 1985. "Fuzz Buster" took the grand champion ram for his outstanding soundness, easy moving and size and bone dimensions.

"Fuzz Buster's sire was Finnatic, a second-place buck lamb last year. The dam was a first place yearling ewe in '88 for John and Dianne Conaway who manage the 100-head flock.

Dorset

Nix Besser farms from Narvon proved once again that there are "none finer" Dorsets than those showed by Dr. and Mrs. Robert Herr. Like last year, the Herrs won the champion ewe and ram.

The Nix Besser farm showed five ewes and three rams to claim titles for fall ram lamb, pair of ram lambs, yearling ewe, fall ewe lamb, pen of lambs, get-of-sire and flock categories allowing them to claim the champion ewe and ram.

The Herrs' champion buck last year produced the this year's champion ewes as well as some others.

The name of the Herr farm, Nix Besser, which is Pennsylvania Dutch for none finer," sometimes finds it match. It did in the spring ewe lamb competition where the Herrs placed second and third after Lee and Louise Wagner of Easton in Northampton County.

Herrs took the premier exhibitor award, but the premier breeder award went to Jenny Zerby in Beavertown, Snyder County.

Thirteen-year-old Jenny is one of eight children who own a 350-head flock. According to her brother, Henry, each kid has a different breed. Jenny started with Dorsets three or four years ago. She buys a couple and breeds her own. The past year, Jenny's Dorsets did well at 13 different fairs and claimed that junior champion at KILE.

Hampshire

This year, Glenn Musselman of

(Turn to Page D15)

Henry Zerbe is shown with his sister's Dorsets. Zerbe, who is one of eight children in the family, said that each kid owns a different breed that adds up to 350-head flock on their Beavertown farm. Jenny won the premier breeder award in the Dorset division.

Gold Star Shrops from Berks County claimed the champion ewe and both reserve champion ewe and ram in the Shropshire competition.

More And Better Sheep

Lancaster is the "name" in Hampshire competition.

With his first place yearling ram and spring ram lamb, Musselman claimed both the champion and the reserve champion ram.

He also swept the champion and reserve titles in the ewe competition with his spring ewe lambs.

Hampshire premier breeder and exhibitor awards went to Wey Farms of Mertztown in Berks County.

Currently, Musselman has 48 purebred Hampshires and 35 commercial Polypays. He said, "I'm ashamed to say how many I'd like."

Confidentially, he'd like 100 purebred ewes. In a few weeks he'll be moving to a 12-acre farm where he can expand his flock. This year's champion ram was last year's first place ram lamb and the reserve champion was last year's grand champion.

Musselman's prize sheep are known for their overall balance with good hind saddle, which means a longer and broader loin that helps with reproduction and with choice meat pieces.

Cheviot

In the Cheviot competition, Donna MacCauley, Atglen, and Mike Koehler claimed the spotlight. Koehler of Schnecksville in Lehigh County took the champion ram award and John Eaton of York the reserve champion.

But it was MacCauley who pulled ahead with both champion and reserve champion ewe, and who was named premier breeder and premier exhibitor. The champion ewe went on to capture the supreme title for the best of the meat breeds, which included Shropshires, Southdowns, Suffolk, Cheviots, Dorsets and Hampshires.

MacCauley, who showed her sheep in competition that began Sunday at 9 a.m., had to leave before the naming of the supreme champion at 8 p.m. Her brother, Bill, said the cheviot yearling ewe has rmp blood lines and is exceptional for its breed.

Southdown

Traditional names like Steve Kwisnek, Kyle Fleener, and Matt Trostle dominated the Southdown competition. Kwisnek of Clarksburg showed both the champion ewe and ram. Matt Trostle of York County showed the reserve champion ewe and Kyle Fleener the reserve champion ram. Although only five years old, Kyle is following in the footsteps of his parents and grandparents who own Blu-Acre Farm in Robesonia.

SHROPSHIRE

Wey Shropshires of Mertztown in Berks County held their reputation for stiff competition in the Shropshire breed. The champion ram and other top showings kept the premier breeder and exhibitor awards in their name. But fellow Berks countians Gold Star Shrops of Fleetwood gave the Wey operation a run for its money. Gold Star Shrops claimed the champion ewe and both reserve champion ewe and ram.

A partial listing of winners follow for the Shropshire, Southdown, Suffolk, Cheviot, Dorset and Hampshire breeds.

In Southdown competition Kevin Kuykemdale showed the champion ewe for Kwisneks of Clarksburg.

The premier breeder and exhibitor awards again went to Wey Shropshires of Mertztown for their champion ram (shown above) and other numerous placings.

For the first time, a supreme champion of the meat sheep breeds was chosen at Farm Show competition. The honor went to Donna MacCauley's Cheviot yearling ewe. Donna, who is also the Suffolk Queen, had to return for a college class before the supreme champion was chosen. Her brother, Bill, (right) is shown with the supreme champion and with Chuck Kline, Farm Show director.

Farm Credit Promotes Staff

SHOEMAKERSVILLE (Berks Co.)— Gery J. Fisher, a native of Oley, Berks County, has been recently named Vice President of Credit for the Eastern Division of Keystone Farm Credit, ACA.

After graduation from Oley Valley High School, Fisher attended Delaware Valley College where he earned a bachelor of science degree in horticulture in 1970.

Fisher joined Farm Credit in 1984 as Branch Manager of the Shoemakersville branch. Prior to that, he was Agronomy Department Manager for the Montgomery-Bucks Farm Bureau in Souderton. In his new position, Fisher will be responsible for all credit and appraisal functions in the Shoemakersville and Hegins branches; he will be working out of the Eastern Operations section of Keystone Farm Credit, in the Fogelsville office.

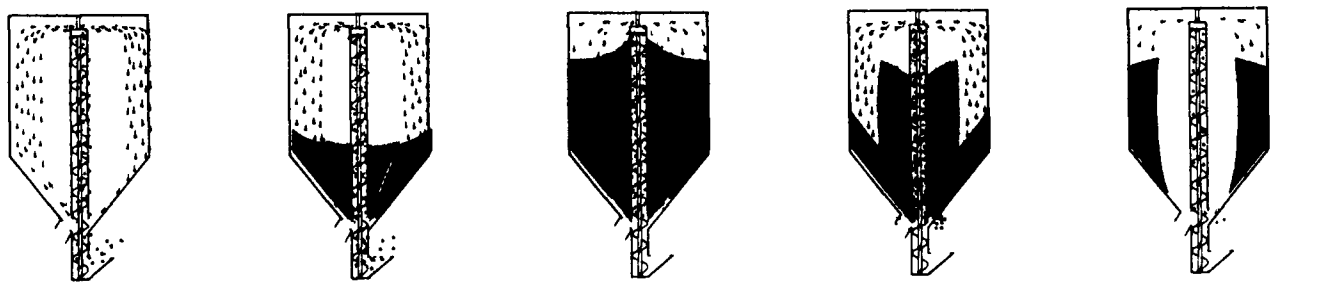
A member of the Berks County 4-H Development Board, Fisher is also Chairman of the Public Relations Committee for the AgriBusiness Committee of the Berks County Chamber of Commerce.

David R. Stutzman has been promoted to Branch Manager of the Shoemakersville office, filling the position vacated by Fisher. Stutzman graduated from Kutztown High School in Berks County and from Kansas State University in 1982 earning a bachelor of science in agricultural economics.

Stutzman began his career with Farm Credit in 1982 as a field representative in the Fogelsville office. He was promoted to loan officer in October 1983, senior loan officer in May 1985, and to executive loan officer in May of this year.

A member of the Hopewell Church in Fleetwood, Stutzman resides with his wife, Joy, and two children on a 150-acre cash crop farm outside of Kutztown which he operates.

WHICH IS IT? A MIXER OR SEPARATOR?



As vertical mixer is filled, materials are lifted and flipped from top of auger But because of centrifugal force the mixture's heavier particles travel further and accumulate near cylinder wall while lighter materials (small particles, etc) fall into center area Then as the auger draws from batch's center core (mostly the lighter material) moves downward rapidly, while material near wall hardly moves! What gets recirculated? The lighter products! As batch is unloaded, center core naturally comes out first This means that the first material drawn off consists largely of lighter-weight particles The last material to leave the mixer is heavier particles which, for all practical purposes have been "mixed" only with other heavy particles

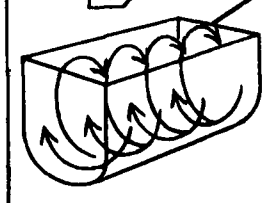
VERTICAL MIXER
... consists of a tank with its contents recirculated through an upright auger. Actual agitation occurs only in auger which occupies less than one-tenth of the width in a typical 1-ton upright.



HORIZONTAL MIXER*
...turns the whole batch simultaneously, with agitator lifting and tumbling the entire mass up to 15 times per minute. At the same time, materials are circulated from one end of mixer to the other. Has both the room and strength to handle various types of materials, dry or liquid.

Milking the Cow's Rumen

Most dairymen are very familiar with milking and recognize the benefits of doing the job well. What they may not fully appreciate nor understand is that in order to get good milk production, they must also become skillful at "milking" the cow's rumen. What do I mean by this?

In addition to breaking down feed and releasing nutrients for absorption into the blood stream, one of the main functions of the rumen is to produce large, active populations of microbes for digesting feed. As these microbes move out of the rumen, along with the feed, they become a very valuable source of protein for the cow. Microbial protein is a very high quality protein, and a major source of protein for the cow. You might say that it is a form of by-pass protein which is digested after it leaves the rumen.

To "milk" the maximum amount of microbial protein from the rumen, the rumen must be functioning at full capacity -- continually. Throughput or dry matter intake is also important. The greater the amount of feed and the faster it moves through the rumen, the greater is the number of microbes that become available for the cow to digest. When microbes move out of the rumen the rumen produces more microbes in an effort to maintain a high level of rumen activity. As a result of this, total microbial protein yield increases. It's similar to milking cows' udders; the more you milk a cow the more room -- and incentive -- you give the cow for making milk and the more you discourage her from drying off.

Flat Milk Production

How do we get maximum microbial population in the rumen, good feed throughput and maximum microbial yield? Provide the microbes the nutrients and the environment they need, and provide the right amount of digestibility to move a lot of feed through the rumen while being careful it doesn't escape digestion by moving too rapidly.

This is hard to accomplish by feeding forages of inferior quality, and by feeding insufficient quantities of good quality forage. Needless to say, this is a big problem on many dairy farms this winter. Consequently, production is flat. As long as cows lack good quality forage in the ration they'll never be able to attain and sustain high levels of milk production. feeding more grain can help recover some of this lost production, but don't expect it to fully make up for the loss of good quality forage.

Rumen microbes, like animals and people, need nutrients to grow and work well. They need a soluble or rumen degradable supply of protein or non-protein nitrogen (NPN), PLUS a readily available supply of energy, vitamins and minerals to match up with the protein and NPN -- in proper amounts and at the right time.

Without an adequate supply plus a proper balance and proper matchup of nutrients, microbial activity will decline. Digestion will be incomplete, more long fibrous particles and whole kernels may start appearing in the manure, dry matter intake will be lower and milk production will suffer.

Excesses and imbalances of nutrients available to rumen microbes can create other problems too. If sufficient energy is not available to match up with the soluble protein or NPN, the soluble protein or NPN will not be fully utilized. It'll be absorbed into the blood stream and excreted, which is poor use of the protein you fed. Or if the levels are excessive, toxic situations may develop; blood urea nitrogen levels may rise and reproductive problems may develop. On the other hand, excessive levels of readily available energy may cause acidosis, which reduces dry matter intakes, depresses fat tests, predisposes cows to displaced abomasums, foot problems, etc.

Soluble vs. Insoluble-- This Year

In recent years much focus has been placed on increasing the amount of insoluble, by-pass, or rumen undegradable nutrients in the ration in an effort to support higher levels of milk production. This is good as long as we do not overlook the cow's need for soluble or rumen degradable nutrients to keep the rumen functioning at a high plane of activity. This may be particularly important on many farms this year.

Many of this year's forage crops were weathered excessively, and a lot of the very valuable soluble nutrients were leached out. Because of this, some farmers may need to include more soluble protein in the ration. This could be in the form of soybean oil meal, NPN, etc. Then, be sure you have enough readily available energy, vitamins and minerals to match up with the protein. That may require feeding more barley or corn, more oil seeds, more fats and oils -- and feeding it close to the time the soluble protein is fed. Feeding more of these energy feeds may also increase the need for buffers.

In many cases, poor weather conditions delayed harvests. Crops were more mature and more fibrous when harvested, and once harvested, were subject to more weathering. Consequently, fiber content is higher and digestibility is lower. The reduced digestibility of these forages, combined with prolonged plant respiration due to slow drying and the loss of soluble carbohydrates due to excessive leaching, resulted in lower energy values for these forages. The energy content of feeds is further reduced by the presence of mold organisms. Reduced digestibility slows down the passage of feed through the rumen. This reduces dry matter intake and the yield of microbial protein. Poor quality, less digestible forage also hogs up valuable space in the rumen, similar to a dry cow occupying a stall that could be filled by a high producer. In other words, less energy and protein are available to the cow, and production suffers.

As the winter feeding program progresses, it is not uncommon to see a weakening of cows' immune systems; infections increase, cows respond more slowly to treatments, conception rates may decline, etc. Part of the reason for this is, the level of soluble vitamins and minerals is lower in stored feeds and cows' body reserves become depleted before they receive fresher feeds.

Because more soluble nutrients, including some vitamins and minerals have been leached out of our forages this year, cows may show signs of weakened immune systems much earlier than usual. Additional vitamins and minerals may be needed in some situations this year.

Options and Concerns

There simply is no substitute for good quality forage in the ration for high producing cows! It sure would be nice to see more truckloads of good quality, green hay moving down the road to fill dairymen's needs! What can you do if you don't have good forages or if prices exceed quality? I certainly don't have all the answers -- only a few ideas.

Focus on the basics first such as feeding adequate amounts of forage, saving good forage for the best producers, feeding adequate levels of rumen degradable and rumen undegradable protein and energy, increasing the nutrient density of the ration, improving feeding techniques such as using TMR's or feeding more frequently and offering feeds in proper sequences, reducing parasite loads, etc.

Try to get some good alfalfa for your high producers. How much EXTRA can you afford to pay for good alfalfa over normal-year prices or over this year's prices for junk hay? An EXTRA $100 per ton increases the price by $0.05 per pound. If 10 pounds are fed per day that's an increase in feed cost of $0.50 per day. If this helps high producers improve milk production by 10 pounds (not guaranteed) income is increased about $1.60 ($16 milk); that's a pretty good return!

I wouldn't be surprised if some of the corn fodder that's been baled for bedding would have a higher feed value than some of the junk hay I see on trucks moving down our highways.

Also be concerned about the mold content of feeds and products of abnormal fermentation. You may have your rations properly balanced, but some of these off quality feeds could be keeping your ration from doing the job you expect of it.

If you have off quality feeds, what do you do with them? You might be able to feed them in reduced amounts to lower producers, dry cows and heifers, but be very cautious. Remember, your dry cows and heifers are tomorrow's producers. Don't sacrifice the future by making poor decisions today.

This is a good year to rely more heavily on corn silage, but remember that a lot of our late planted silage corn wasn't as well eared and doesn't have quite the energy and protein value of normal-year silages.

Feeding generous amounts of corn silage along with generous amounts of grain, especially high moisture grains, can cause acidosis. To help prevent this problem, add buffers to the ration, feed less barley or corn, and feed grain more frequently. Barley and corn are high in starch. They break down quickly in the rumen and can contribute to acidosis problems if fed in large quantity.

Corn silage could be a better buy than high priced, low quality hay. Expect to lose some quality in the transfer process as it goes through a second heat. To reduce this risk, purchase well-preserved silage and transfer it when it is cold.

When you buy silage, consider its moisture content, quality, transportation and convenience. The drier the silage, the more it is worth unless it is too dry to ferment well. If 70% moist silage (let's call this our reference silage) is priced at $25 per ton, how much is 60% moist silage worth? Divide the dry matter of the silage you are buying by the dry matter of the reference silage and multiply this by the price of the reference silage. In this case it would be 40 ≥ 30 x $25 = $33.

If decent forage simply is not available, look for other sources of digestible fiber; work closely with your nutritionist. Increasing the forage content of the grain ration can help, but it won't have the same impact as fiber from long stemmed or coarse-chopped forages which stimulate cud-chewing activity.

Production vs. Profit

Although we desire to make more milk now to cash in on the high milk prices, this may be a year when less means more. In other words, look carefully at the cost of getting the extra production, the long range impact of your decisions, and the affect it has on profit margins.

High milk prices encourage farmers to hang onto cows and milk them longer, and to increase cow numbers. Some of these long lactation cows may have high cell counts. If they carry contagious infections, they also are a risk to other cows in the herd.

Recently, I was in a 50-60 cow herd where 4 cows were responsible for 67% of all the somatic cells in the bulk tank; some of them were chronic cows. If two of these cows kept the farmer from getting a $0.10 quality premium payment on 3000 pounds of milk produced that day, that's a $30 loss in exchange for about 100 pounds of milk worth $15.17, not counting the risk of infecting other cows.

If you are buying cows to make more milk, be careful not to expose other cows to new infections. Until you have a chance to culture the new cow and know that she is free of contagious infections, milk her last to minimize the risk. Ideally, she should also be housed separate from the herd for observation, or until she or the rest of the herd has had time to be properly immunized. Work closely with your veterinarian on these herd health concerns.

The Woods mow'n machine™

It runs circles around trees, shrubs, fence rails and the competition.

Maximum maneuverability is the key to the mow n machine s growing popularity Because engine power is supplied to each wheel independently, a true 360° zero radius turn can be made smoothly without any damage to your lawn

And the mow n machine makes all the right moves even in those hard-to-reach places That keeps you from having to double-back for time-consuming follow-up trimming

Available with either a gasoline or diesel powered engine the mow n machine also features an out-front mower deck finger tip controls for speed direction and breaking and a comfortable vinyl-padded driver s seat

Adding versatility to the mow'n machine is easy with these easy-on, easy-off attachments:

Grass Vac 8 cu ft capacity Slide-in Nylon Bag

Grass Vac 13 cu ft capacity Metal Hopper

Snow thrower with cab clears a 47" path

Dozer blade clears a 48" path

Sweepster™ brush cleans a 48" path

For Yield... W-L alfalfa stacks up.

FOURTH YEAR

W-L	Competitors
W-L Alfalfa varities are strong producers throughout the life of your stand. You can't afford to settle for less.	If your alfalfa doesn't make it to the fourth year, you've reduced the overall profitability of your crop.

In test after test by public and private researchers, W-L alfalfa yields stack up for profits. For more than 25 years, W-L alfalfa varities have been bred for long stand persistence, quick recovery after cutting, multiple pest resistance and extra leafy, fine-stemmed forage. With proper crop management, you'll have strong fourth-year yields that stack up for a profitable crop.
